Sketches from life by Westerman.

Multiply this by one hundred thousand then multiply by two and that's what the walk looks like. When you start out in one of the baby buggies you recall your infant-hood days and just naturally feel around for a rattle or a bottle.

The puppy peddler. Thousands say: "Ain't they cute!" to one who says: "How much?"
 The big boardwalk traffic cop rather traffic shepherd. His signs are a broad smile, and a beckon.

The privilege of "from hotel to beach in bathing suits" gives the walk a "back-stage-follies" appearance.

When the fat, the weak, and the weary rubbernecks are all in, they sit in the board sheds along the board walk and rubber some more.

The tenderfoot who tried to walk from one end of the walk and back.

It's odd how a little buggy-pusher will draw a package like this to cart around, while a big burly hustler will draw a couple of one-hundred and tenners.

A month-ender from Texas.

And a week-ender from New York.

The funniest things you see from the walk are the daredevil horsemen who never rode any kind of a horse excepting a wooden one on a carousel galloping wildly up and down on the (rented) nervy steeds.

SEVENTH DAY

Fannie Thurst.

Minnie worked in the Biggest Store. Six days out of her week she doled out hairpins and thread, and wore tissue paper wristlets; six days she called "cash," and carried a lead pencil in her hair; six evenings she ate her lonely little meal in a table for ladies' lunch room; and one hour later crept wearily into her small iron bed. But, ah, on the seventh.

This history has to do with the seventh.

At 4 o'clock on Sunday afternoon, Minnie took her tan suit off its wire hanger, dragged her hatbox from under the bed, and unweathed a small and scarcely worn pair of tan pumps.

While she discarded the sateen shirtwaist for the tan outfit, we will discuss her.

Minnie lived in a hall bedroom, with a small iron bed, oak bureau, washstand, bowl and pitcher, a straight-back chair, and two feet of floor space. She cooked her breakfast which invariably consisted of a boiled egg and two toasted soda crackers, over the gas jet, and there were a pewter spoon and a china egg cup on the window ledge. She shared the room with the occupant of the adjoining room, and on the small iron landing outside the window she kept a jar of jam and a stewpan. There were three pink paper vases in a glass case on Minnie's bureau, and a paper-back copy of "Lady Aubrey's Secret" inserted beneath the mirror to give it the desired tilt. It was to this that Minnie returned six out of her seven evenings.

But there is a saving circumstance. On the seventh day Minnie emerged from her chrysalis and black sateen shirtwaist and skirt, and the six days of Biggest Store were left to the empty cocoon of the week. From 4 until 8 o'clock each Sunday, Minnie Stradolis ceased to be, minutely observed for the tan suit and the shirtwaist, the beacon of the glowing hour which was the beacon of all the weary ones that preceded it.

At each week end there was one dollar and thirty cents in Minnie's tan purse; that meant a club steak, shoe-string potatoes, and tip in a gold hotel dining room, and that was the end of her week. To be sure, the one dollar and thirty cents was a small sum, but it was the end of her week's earnings, seven hungry noon hours and tortuous walks from the Biggest Store to the hall room, but those homely secrets were her own.

When she strolled into the marble lobby of the highest-storied and highest-priced hotel on Broadway, she was flushed with a beauty that is commonly born of morning sleep and massage; when she established herself, as was her wont, in a quiet corner of one of the numerous and perfumed parlors, she was a daughter of fortune, fresh from her bath of milk and rose leaves. Who could know that she was waiting the grand climax of her week, and that when the crowds came, fastest and the lights were brightest, she would venture into the gold dining room for one hour—one dollar and thirty cents worth of dream and that had cost her six days of aching feet behind the counter? It is true that at 10 o'clock Cinderella was once more in the small iron bed, but the beacon light of the seventh day was shining truly across the week's chasm.

Today Minnie put the finishing touches to her toilet with lingering care; she drew the neat-fitting coat around her figure, and regarded herself over one shoulder. After the manner of women, she fluffed her hair out from beneath her hat with needless repetition, and sat at herself in the mirror, a half smile hovering on her lips and in her eyes.

She pictured herself walking smartly through the lobby, she saw glittering feet turn as she passed, she even relapsed the racy moment when the steel of her knife sank deep into the red of the steak, the quiet dignity of her "Keep the change," and the obsequious bow of the waiter. She hurried to the door, she folded the black sateen shirtwaist away, and shoved the empty hatbox under the bed; then she took a final survey in the mirror, a half new boarder in the adjoining room lurched noisily about, and with the weariness born of experience she closed the window which opened out on the joint fire escape landing, and turned the key in the best drawer, which contained her Bible and mother-of-pearl card case; incidentally she turned her back on Minnie.

There is a parlor in the highest-priced and highest-storied hotel on Broadway, which is done in pale gold and pink; it is like a small, rare jewel box softly tufted in satin and lighted with opal globes; through its gracefully hung doors you can see into the glittering lobby beyond, but the only sounds that penetrate are strains of far-away music and the soft swish of women's gowns.

Within this golden retreat, Minnie dropped into the soft embrace of a brocade divan, and gave herself up to the luxury of closing her eyes over so slight a slumber, she closed herself journeying through Lady Aubrey's gardens, in a gold and crystal sedan chair, with a graceful ennuil in her hair, and a calm, bliss in her hair. Lady Aubrey's hair, and a graceful ennuil in her hair. The hush of velvet rugs and faint music lulled Minnie's dreaming senses, her tense hold on the tan purse—one dollar and thirty cents relaxed, and she rested deeper in the pink brocade.

A man in a frock coat and shiny patent shoes dropped wearily on the farthest end of the divan. His hair was gray at the temples, and his eyes were sufficed with too much living; he was the typical clubman and dilettante of the seventh-day world.

Minnie regarded him with the little intake of breath which invariably caused her. From the super-correct cut of coat to the shining finger nails, he bespoke Inverness coats and cane. Minnie did not exactly know what constituted an Inverness coat, but no drawing-room novel was complete without one. She could also picture this third-eyed man in the dark mahogany quiet of his den, or strolling the white and brass deck of a yacht. Her half-closed eyes to all intent and purpose were regarding an old painting which hung beyond his head, but none of his details was lost upon her; she knew that his cane had a gun-metal knob and that his shirt studs were gold.

She had rehearsed her hour for so long that she was not even surprised when he leaned toward her and spoke.

"That is a very warm and rich bit of work. You admire his school?" He referred to the oil painting, and his tones were deep and serious.

"It's just beautiful," replied Minnie, who had not even observed the portrait, and who was vague as to his meaning.

Her temples were throbbing violently, she felt that she was contemplating this seventh-day creature in even replying, and that he would resent her if he knew, just as she resented Mr. Snuggs in the white goods.

"I see you riding in the park quite often. Only a few mornings ago, I was bold enough to catter after you, admiring your mount."

"Thank you," she replied, taking the plunge, and tilting her small head a bit. "The women in my family have always ridden well."

"If you bespeak the race, I doubt it not."

He spoke the words with a patrician grace that thrilled her, she dropped for a suitable reply, but none came. There was a pause; she observed that he wore a crest ring on his right hand. She felt it incumbent upon her to justify her unattended presence, and glanced with well-restrained impatience into the lobby beyond.

He was on his feet immediately. "You are waiting for someone. Can I be of assistance?"

"Thank you, no. My maid will be here presently; she is unnecessarily long."

She sank back, and let her eyes rest on a misty landscape framed in silver.

He followed her gaze. "I have the twin coronet to that rare bit in my private collection. I am very fond of it."

"Oh!" she murmured. "How lovely!"

"There is something compelling in the strength of that stretch of mere meadowland," he said.

"Yes," she agreed cautiously. "I love the country."

He adjusted a pair of pince-nez, and regarded her as if seeing her for the first time.

"You are an exotic, and yet you crave the natural?"

She closed her eyes, and the delicate line of her profile met the pink brocade.

"Yes," she recited, "this artificial life, the routine of ball and function, the formality of livery and society, makes me long to fly back to Nature."

The man moved toward her with a new interest.

"Strange," he half mused, "that when I left my club an hour ago that same call within me prompted me to tell my man, on the spur of the moment, that we are off for the West. I know, I know, I am weary of the bank of the automobile, the chug of a yacht, the titter of society. I want the witness and the mountain tops."

She sighed appreciatively. "I sometimes even long to change places with my maid."

"I cannot tell you how all this interests me," he said. "Often have I sat behind my chauffeur and envied him. We suffer from ennui, but we do not heed the call; we crave houseboats, but cling to the yacht and ocean liner."

"True, too true!" assented Minnie.

The man regarded her intently. "You will pardon the personality, I cannot escape the feeling that we have met before. Could it have been on the Continent?"

"Doubtless," she replied. "One meets so many."

He glanced at his watch. "Since your maid is delayed, may I crave the honor of dining with you?"

"Thank you, but I am dining in my own apartments. I cannot account for this delay. Annette is usually most punctual."

He did not press further, but bowed and handed her his card.

"At least these few moments have been a pleasure, dear lady."

"H. Dudley Livingston." The name meant nothing to her, but she read it with an intelligent raising of the eyebrows, and glanced again toward the lobby.

"Knowing you at least by hearsay, and since you ask it, I will dine with you, if you will return me here immediately."

Annette is stupid."

He smiled with pleasure, and rose.

"I will station a page here to await your maid."

She placed a quick, detaining hand on his sleeve.

"No, no; she will wait."

"As you will, dear lady," he acquiesced, guiding her through the passers with a quiet ease and dignity.

As they passed through the crowded lobby she ventured an explanatory remark.

"I almost feel that I am disregarding no convention in dining with you, Mr. Livingston. The wonder of it is that we have not met."

"Life is full of ironies," sighed Mr. Livingston.

They dined beside a splashing fountain with a bank of fern and carnation between them.

"You have redeemed a hopeless, dreary day for a dreary old bachelor."

She smiled at him through the frework of fern.

"And you have tempted my adventurous nature to a shocking indiscretion."

"I wish that I might tempt you to reveal your name."

She shook her head prettily. "That would take all the adventure out of the situation."

"I am bound to discover it sooner or later, and besides," he added seriously, "I am obliged to obey the dictates of my engagement."

"Oh," she said archly, "not the beginning of the end?"

"You know better than that," he admonished.

They laughed, and he leaned across the table, holding a crystal goblet aloft.

"To the beginning!"

"To drink in water is an evil sign," she observed, but raised the glass to her lips, and the ice tinkled against the frail sides.

"We will probably meet some day," she added.

"Oh, it may be on the high seas, at the opera, or in the drawing-room."

"But now that I have found you, why begin the search anew?" he urged.

"The prince must rescue the maiden from the tower."

"Ah, I see!" he exclaimed, in mock enlightenment. "You want to meet me on a prancing steed instead of in the satin parlor of a Broadway hotel."

"Yes, and you must have jangling spurs and a shiny helmet."

He took a long-stemmed carnation from the bank between them.

"At least wear your knight's colors."

She in turned snapped the stem of a fragrant red carnation near his head and presented it to him with silent grandiloquence.

"And you the lady's," she whispered.

They looked into each other's eyes.

"At least wear your knight's colors."

"I am beginning to fear that I am encroaching upon your evening," she said, after they had finished with the salad course.

"If releasing me from a stupid soiree, and an hour of cards at the club can possibly mean encroachment, you are offering a delightful substitute; this is a happy reprieve."

"Yes, but I cannot permit you to sacrifice your social obligations in my behalf, I am obliged to obey the dictates of my engagement."

"Let us ignore those dictates together."

She laughed, and she said, "I have already been sufficiently indiscreet."

"I dared not hope that you would heed me."

She watched him blow thoughtful wreaths of cigarette smoke, and leaned back in her chair contentedly.

"Is it possible," he asked her slowly, "that I could have met you at one of Lady Stanhope's house parties last autumn?"

"No, I was in Italy last autumn, but I have heard Lady Aubrey mention Lady Stanhope's house parties."

She stirred uneasily and looked toward her wraps.

"It grows late," she remarked. They passed out through the crowded dining room and the brilliant lobby. At the entrance to the little parlor she gave him her hand.

"Goodbye, and thank you for the pleasant hour."

His eyes read into hers with well-bred insistence.

"Isn't it to be au revoir?"

"I am afraid not," she answered, with a low note in her voice. "At least, not until the knight finds the tower."

"At any rate, you have made me very happy, even if I found you only to lose you."

He pressed her hand and she slipped in between the heavy curtains.

It was 9 o'clock when Minnie Stradolis climbed up to her hall bedroom; there were two pink spots on her cheeks and her throat was throbbing delicately like a dove's. With nervous care, she replaced the hat in its box and the tan suit on its wire hanger, then she filled the egg cup with water for the long-stemmed carnation, and placed the cup on the iron landing outside her window.

She propped the stem against the stewpan, and mothered and encircled the fragrant head.

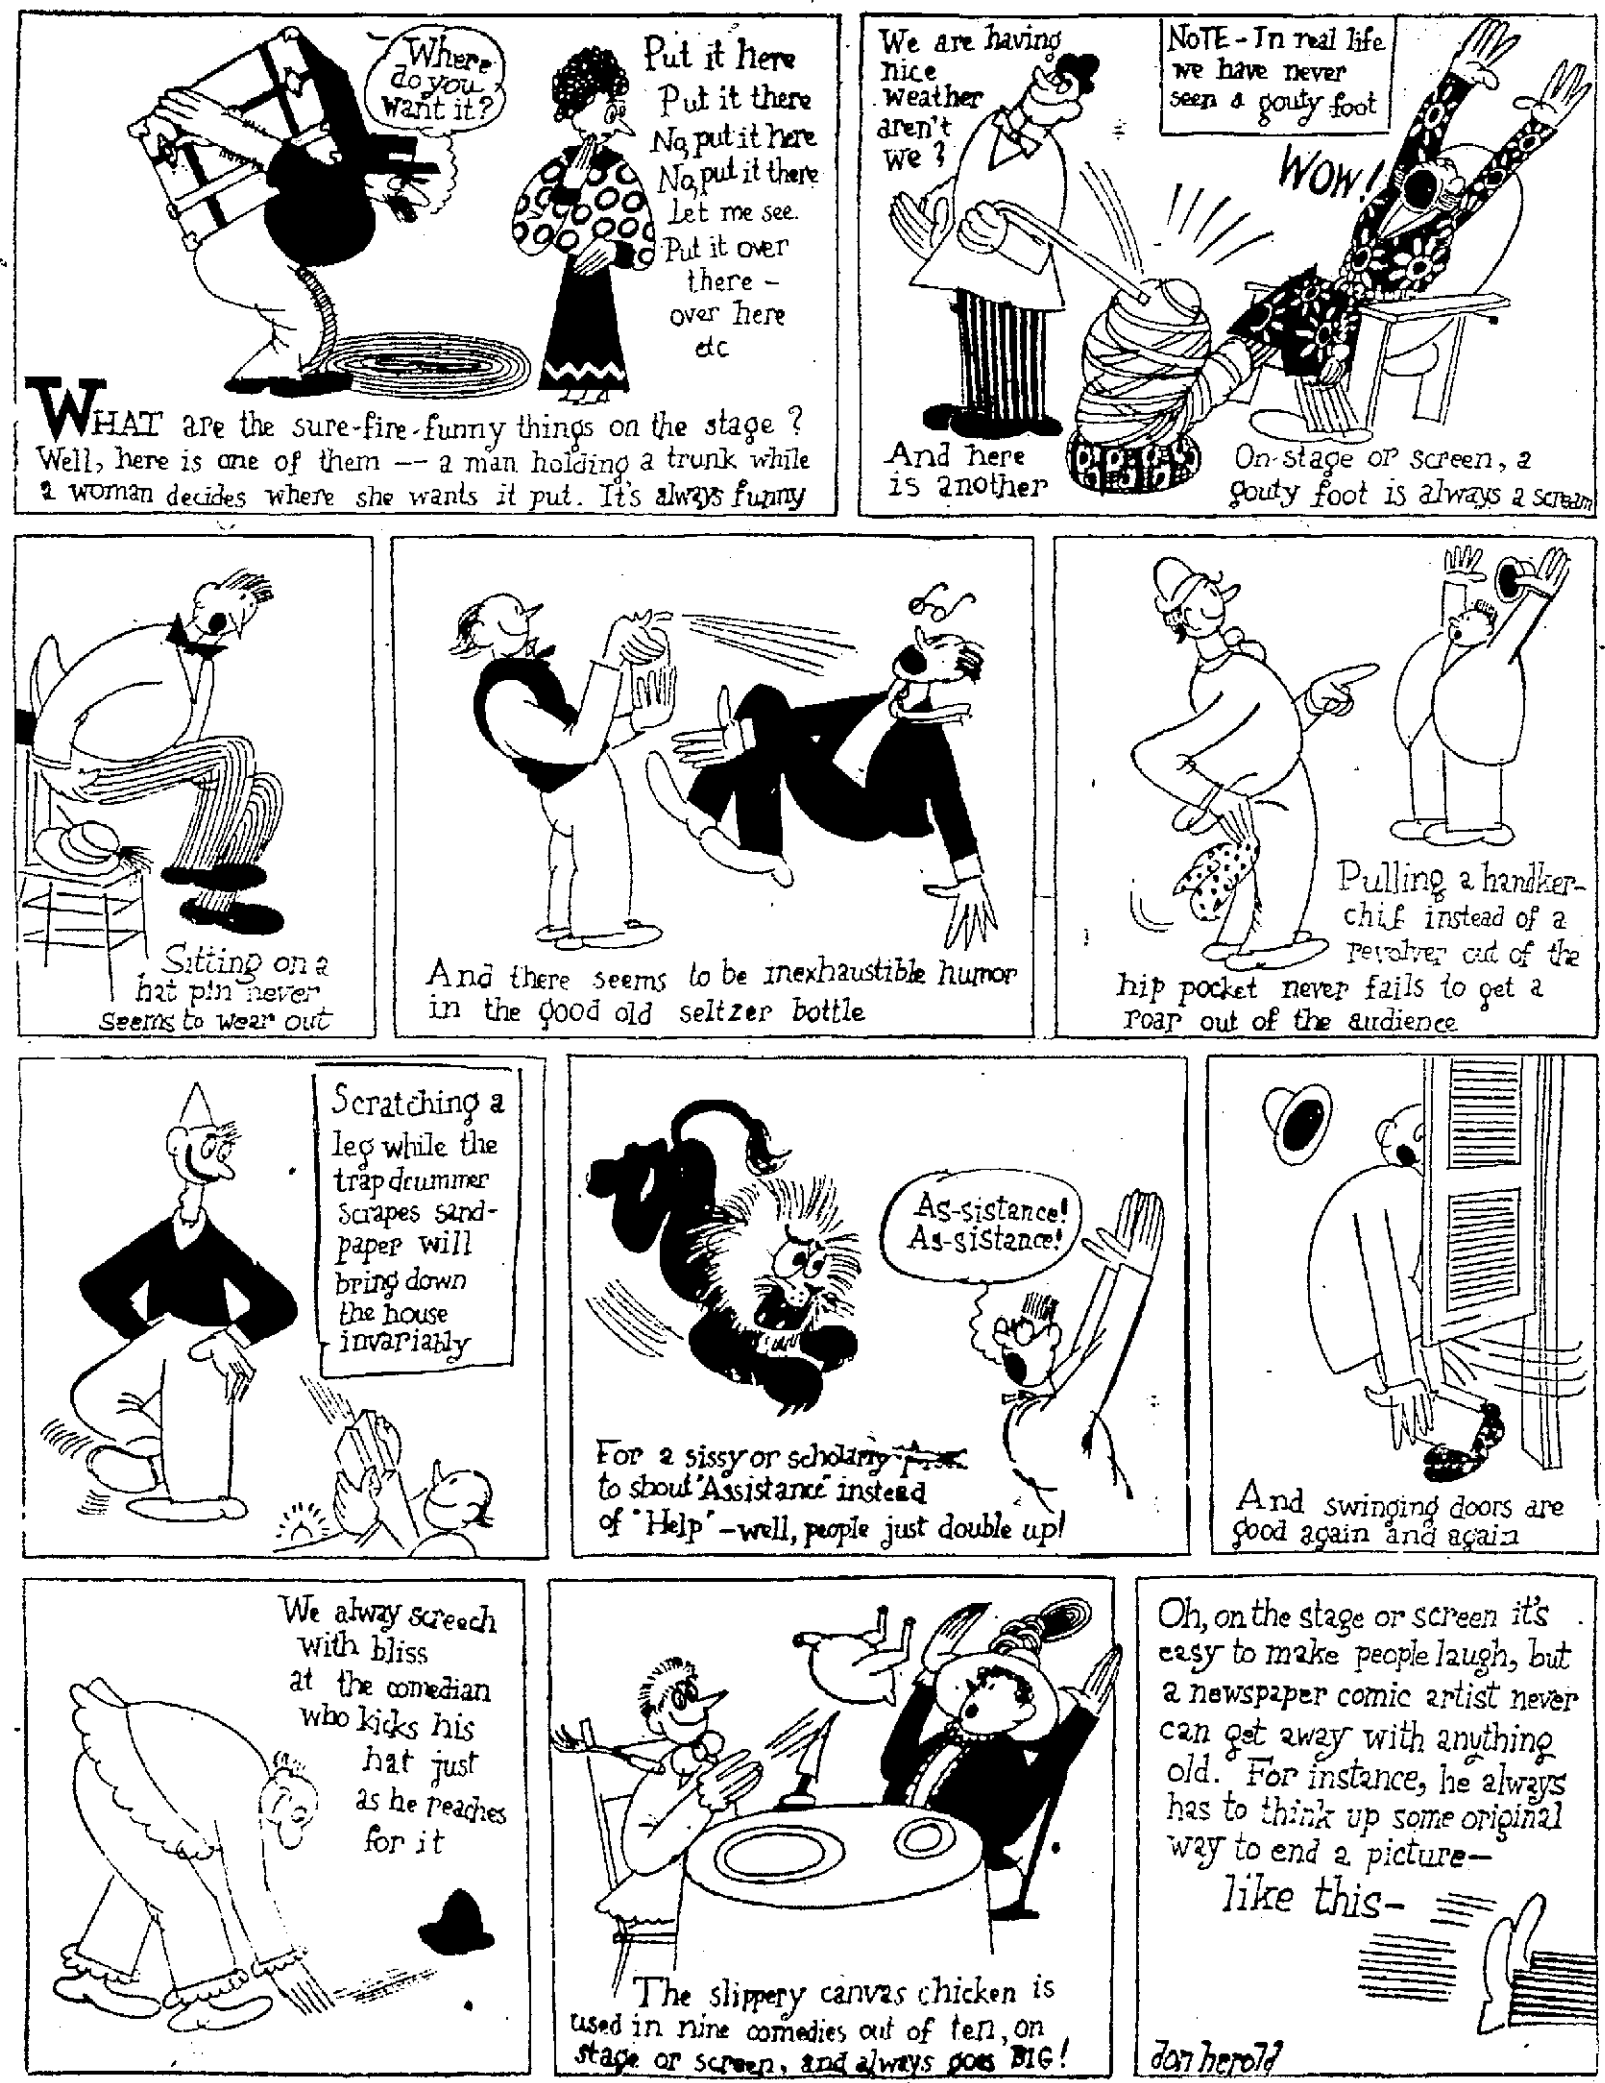

The sash of the adjoining room opened and a new patch of light fell across the fire escape. A man with hair gray at the temples placed a silver-mounted carnation on the window sill. In the square of light she saw that on his right hand he wore a cheap ring with a crest engraved upon it, and her discerning eye also noted that his shirt studs appeared to be gold.

THE END.

What Miss Wines Said to Startle

Madge

Miss Wines and Miss Pratt—disrespectfully alluded to by their younger colleagues as "Old Grouchy"—were hurrying down the corridor to the office, whispering in low hurried tones.

Always the first to arrive at school, the last to leave, they present perfect types of the conscientious drudges who carry to their work no real love or inspiration. That they did not expect to see us was evident in the simultaneous, explosive "oh's" that left their lips.

"Good morning," Alice Holcombe said gravely, while I merely inclined my head. "Of course, you have heard."

"Yes," Miss Pratt returned solemnly, while Miss Wines turned a slow, speculative look upon me, which made me tingle, for to my excited imagination there seemed to be a sly malice in her eyes. I remembered the look she had given me the day before when I had told her that I expected Mr. Stockbridge to come to the school, wondering apprehensively if he meant to speak of it, was glad indeed to hear Miss Dean's excited, high-pitched voice from the doorway, and to see behind her three or four other teachers, all visibly excited.

"THERE ARE LIMITS," "Isn't this perfectly awful, girls?" she shrilled. "Poor, old Miss! She threatened to kill herself often enough, but I never thought she'd do it."

"What makes you think she's done it now?"

Miss Wines' voice was dry and caustic.

Bess Dean whirled on her.

"Look here, Wines! What are you trying to do, join the bunch of lunatics in this forsaken town that are mixing up Kenny's name with his wife's death?"

Miss Wines' sallow face took on a purplish tinge, but her voice did not change from its annoying pitch.

"If I were in your place, Bess, I would not let people hear me speak so familiarly of your principal. Of course, we know that his wife was fearfully jealous of you but—"

Bess Dean stepped so close to the older woman that their faces almost touched. "Let me tell you something, Wines," she said. "There are limits in this forsaken town that particular brand from you again."

MISS WINE'S WORDS HAD ALARMED HER, although she would have died rather than admit it. But because of her own vanity she had put herself into a position where her name might be coupled with that of Kenneth Stockbridge, although I was sure that in the old homely phrase he had "never looked twice in her direction."

I had myself heard her say with a meaning smile that Miss Stockbridge "has no use for me, you know," and had observed several other indications showing that she was willing to have people believe herself the object of the jealous woman's dislike.

I caught her looking at me furtively, wondering if she feared she might inadvertently repeat what she had said. I hastened to reassure her without appearing to mean anything save a generalization.

"Surely," I remarked, there are enough sensible people in the village to effectually dispose of all these rumors. We all know poor Mrs. Stockbridge was not quite sane, and—"

"You must have special knowledge then, Mrs. Graham," Miss Wines' voice put in smoothly. "I for one, never knew it or guessed it. But Miss Pratt going down the walk, I was afraid my foolish curiosity was wholly in your own imagination, and in course, be prepared to take the consequences."

I heard a little involuntary murmur of applause from the other teachers, of course, with the exception of Miss Pratt, who I knew Miss Wines' room-mate, shadow and echo. The sound gladdened me, for I had shown them that I, a new-comer among them, had won a place in their friendship which made them champion me against the woman who had been in the school so many years.

Miss Wines' face was black with anger, but she evidently was cowed by my words and manner. She flung out of the office with the caustic expression:

"I don't waste my time talking to trash! Come on, Bess!"

Miss Pratt obediently followed her with a half-frightened look at me. As the door closed behind them Bess Dean clapped me on the shoulder with an hysterical little laugh.

"Gee!" she exclaimed. "Give me these quiet people when they once get started! Believe me, I'll not tackle you—you looked about seven feet tall 'tween now."

BOOK REVIEWS AND LITERARY NOTES

"The Imperfect Mother" Maureen

J. D. Beresford, Author of "The Jervaise Comedy," Has Written Story of Struggle of Mother and Girl for the Love of a Lad—Elopement of Parent Turning Point in Boy's Career.

J. D. Beresford has never written an inconsequential book. He has seldom written anything in which the incident surpasses in interest the mental clashes and struggles of his characters. It is in the handling of the situation, the expounding of attitudes and the balancing of finely drawn book-inhabitants one against the other, that he has the power to hold the reader as one holding a secret or watching, with him, the unfolding of important truths.

"The Imperfect Mother" is a story of two historical laughs, the one who treated a son when he begged his mother not to run away with her lover, and one who met him again from a girl when he proposed. Each had, for a time, a terrible effect. Stephen, one of three children of the unusual mother, lived in a little town in England. The whole family bowed to the genius of the mother and held her in a wondering awe. Yet Stephen was the only one who understood her and the only one really loved by her. The little bookkeeper who was the husband went mad, or pretended to be mad, when Cecilia ran away with the organist and Stephen stole his heart in the belief that his mother was thoroughly bad, because she had laughed when he pleaded with her.

Later Stephen learned that the mysterious laugh of his mother was not so much a matter of number of things and in the tearing he discovered the heart of another woman. His story through school and into the employ of a builder is one told with a rare sympathy, and is attended by an understanding and in-

Patrick Macgill Tells With Sympathy a Story of Peasant Life in Northern Ireland.

Come sit ye down and warm yer shins by the turf fire and yer insides with a wee drop iv pipin' hot tea. 'Tis a weary way indeed, a booklover has to follow, an' now that ye are come to Donegal by the noria country of old Erin, it's not that ye'll be leaving us 'thout ye know the story of Maureen O'Malley, is it now?

"Maureen," the latest novel from the pen of Patrick Macgill, is a vivid, sympathetic portrait of peasant life in Northern Ireland, of Gaelic ways and the national aspiration of the Sinn Féiners. It truly possesses "the supreme quality of truth," as the London Times has said before.

Macgill's people are crude farmers who have no time for play, so hard must they work to draw forth their existence from the barren soil. Superstitious they are, and merciless in their judgment of wrongdoers.

The tragic story of Maureen O'Malley, daughter of Kathleen O'Malley, an unfortunate romance, is told with the same intimacy which would be granted us were we to sit by the fireside of any Dungarrow family and hear it from the lips of the household mistress. Therein lies Macgill's charm in this novel.

Sinn Féin is introduced in a casual way in the story, in a forceful way, wholly within its place, which is not a dominant one. It is seen in the occasional raising of the dormant national consciousness of the peasant by some British aggression.

Macgill's story is not light reading. It is considerably longer than most of the current novels. Many of the incidents recorded are not happy ones. For that reason and because of its truthful portrayal of the modern peasant Irish it is more probably destined to a permanent place in literature than to fame as a best seller.—E. C.

JANE D. ABBOTT, author of "Happy House," a story of joyous moments.

"HAPPY HOUSE," LIFE STORY OF BUFFALO BILL JANE D. ABBOTT

Unfortunate in the fact that another widely read novel of the year bears the same name, "Happy House," by Jane D. Abbott, is nevertheless particularly entitled to the appellation. It is a happy story, one of healthy moments and joyous gestures.

Through the pleasing coincidence of bearing the same name, little "Anne" Leavitt of New York—always called Nancy—and big "Anne" Leavitt of California are drawn to each other and form a beautiful friendship with great longing for service. In two weeks she is starting for Siberia, and hopes, by teaching the peasant children, to bring to the pitiful captivity of Russian ignorance the enlightenment of American ideals.

Anne's invitation from a great aunt whom she has never seen, and seldom heard of, the excitement begins. Anne must hurry on to Russia to begin her life work and care nothing for the broad acres and fortune which her aunt intimates will be hers if the visit proves her a worthy bearer of the proud old family name.

Really Anne Leavitt thought not the odds she supposed to be Nancy's, her masquerade by the thought that she is helping her beloved chum, and with divided feelings of curiosity and dread, journeys to Happy House and begins her eventful life with its unhappy moments.

Her joyous, infectious spirit makes her a real missionary, as she brings sunshine into their proud, lonely lives. Her alternate fear of discovery and her growing love for these people is pictured as the unfolding of the story transforms the old mansion into a truly happy house.

Aunt Sabrina is won away from her must traditions of dignity and surprises the community as she opens up the house and finds joy in sharing her abundance with others.

Peter Hyde is an important figure. Ostensibly a hired man on a neighboring farm, who has not served his country according to Nancy's ideals,

War Mystery

"The Secret Spring" Is Unusual More for the Manner of Its Telling Than the Content of the Tale.

More in the manner of the telling than in the substance of the tale is "The Secret Spring," by Pierre Benoit, remarkable. A combination of war narrative and a story of fiction that made Anthony Hope famous it offers material to whittle away the idle hour, to mystify, and to thrill.

The device of having the story told on the battlefield by its hero and of bringing the action back from the domestic scenes in a mythical grand duchy to the tense and dangerous war present proves effective in giving a note of impending tragedy and of making more real a central that has many breathless moments.

The story is one of a young French scholar who goes into Lautenberg as a tutor to a young prince. There he falls in love with the grand duchess, a woman of all of those romantic qualities and startling beauties that belong to the "Prisoner of Zenda" type of story. How the tutor discovered a secret of greatest importance to the grand duchess and how his love story grew until the outbreak of the war occupies the chapters until the close. Then there is an exciting escape across the line and the story of one soldier to another.

The mystery in the story is one that is not told in so many words. It develops and unfolds itself only with the aid of the reader and because of this is a mystery more worth the solving. The tale is one for the reader of exciting narrative. It is easy to see why it should have been so popular in France.

THE INTRUDER

As I sat, to sift my dreaming
To the meet and needed word,
Came a merry interruption
With insistence to be heard.

Spilling stood a maid beside me,
Half alluring and half shy;
Soft the white hint of her bosom—
Escapade was in her eye.

"I must not be so invaded"
(In an anger then I cried)—
"Can't you see that I am busy?"
Tempting creature, stay outside!

"Pearly rascal, I am writing:
I am now composing verse—
Pie on antic invitation:
Wanton, vanish—fly—disperse!"

"Bargain, in my godlike moment
What have I to do with thee?"
And she laughed as she departed—
"I am poetry," said she.

"THE LISTENER'S GUIDE TO MUSIC"

There are two shortcomings of most elementary explanations of music: Either they are not elementary or they do not explain. Yet the need for such treatises is large. There are more people in our concert and opera audiences by far who do not understand music even rudimentarily than do. It is not unwillingness or, in most cases, indifference, that keeps them untutored, but the belief that musical culture is difficult of achievement except through musical practice. Of course, this is not true. One can learn much of music, most of music, without playing an instrument or singing a song.

Form, meaning, arrangement, quality, materials are intelligible things, their exposition needs but to be plain and untrammelled by the usual professional mystery-mongering to be understood.

One of the best little volumes to unravel music's apparent intricacies which has recently been published is by a British writer, Percy A. Scholes, and was made primarily for the use of soldiers of his country who attended the classes which were conducted during the war. It was easily translated into a popular text for more general use, and this purpose it serves well.

Mr. Scholes' style alone would make it delightful. He has, however, added various excellences to this. The book does not aim at scientific accuracy, yet escapes inaccuracies that would confuse or offend. The elementary difficulties of terminology are removed and thereafter the writer proceeds to tell his composers how their music should be understood.

He deals authoritatively with the fundamentals of ship management and operation, such as freight rates, labor problems, shipping cargo, etc., while the latter takes up the inevitable difficulties and problems which our merchant marine must face. Both authors are unusually well qualified to discuss their subject and it is understood that they have handled the material in a way to appeal not only to the business man but also to the general reader.

Japan

"Have We a Far Eastern Policy," by Charles H. Sherrill is in the Main Discussion of the Japanese Problem.

Charles H. Sherrill, lawyer, diplomat and author, has made a journey to Japan, the Philippines and elsewhere and has returned with a load full of information and ideas. Sherrill is convinced that there is a yellow peril, he sees the Japanese side of the Shantung question, believes that in the matter of Korean massacres the Japanese have been maligned by certain American diplomats.

Certainly for the oppositeness his views to those generally held hereabout Sherrill is deserving hearing.

"If I were a Japanese," he says, "I would loosen my hold on Shantung at the same time that I would acquire the Philippines and their acquisitions of China." Sherrill's investigation, however, made an investigation. He found that the picture was taken of the Japanese invasion was not the man being shot was a Chinese spy who had been caught in costume of a Korean. The unit shown in the picture had not worn in Japan within five years, the time of the Korean massacre.

The book, though, is mainly interesting for its chatty description of the life and customs of the people visited. Sherrill knows how to travel, the travel story and his writing, particularly his handling of the Japanese invasion, is as interesting as any journeyman's may be.

"The United States," Sherrill says, and this is an indication of the touch that marks the book, is bounded on the south by the Doctrine, on the east by the opportunity for service in stricken East on the north by the Anglo-American racial tie, and on the west by the last-named problem will not be those of many in California. These are the subjects which are surrounded by some colorful and interesting descriptive matter.

"Have We a Far Eastern Policy," by Charles H. Sherrill, New York, Charles Scribner's Sons, $2.50.

YOUNGER POETS.

"Spires and Popples," by A. R. Bellenger, is a volume in the Yale Series of Younger Poets, published by the Yale University Press. Concerning the volume, Prof. Charlton Miner Lewis, editor of the series, says: "This book contains a noteworthy sequence of poems of the war, and the French racial tie, and on the west by the last-named problem will not be those of many in California. These are the subjects which are surrounded by some colorful and interesting descriptive matter."

Korbin's "Lithuanian Village," Translated

Leon Korbin, one of the chief Yiddish writers of present day, who has a long list of successful plays, short tales and novels to his credit, has done an excellent bit of work in "A Lithuanian Village," which has recently been brought out by Brentino's. To Dr. Isaac Goldberg, American reader of public affairs, is due the translation of Korbin's work, which is a charming group of pictures of a strange life.

The "Lithuanian Village," remote geographically from us is even more remote in spirit. Pervaded by strange customs, animated by quaint spirits, the village is presented to us with a wealth of color and atmosphere, its descriptions are in the simplest, charm of manner and mood in the best that has been written concerning the picturesque people of whom it tells.

The story deals with the village in all of its human aspects, its rivalries, hatreds, common fears, its play times and its grief, its hopes and its aspirations. Among his own people Korbin's "Lithuanian Village" has been hailed as a jewel of rare worth, unmarked by that brutal realism which characterizes some of his short stories.

The author, himself as interesting as his village, has been hailed by students of Yiddish literature as the "discovered of the tenement" of New York, the man who first put the tenement house and its numerous dwellers on the literary map. The long-ers on the literary map, whence he came, which crop out in so many of Korbin's stories of immigrants, seems to have triumphed over him for the time being in his "Lithuanian Village," and from the distance across the seas he presents for English readers the land whence so many of the immigrants came. His story depicts the dwindling of the village through immigration to America, the country to which the young people of the village turn.

Dr. Goldberg, in the translation of "A Lithuanian Village," makes accessible in English for the first time some of Korbin's writings. He promises more, a promise whose fulfillment will be awaited with keenest anticipation once one has read "A Lithuanian Village."

The chapter headings in the volume give an idea of the various aspects in which the author presents his village. Among them are: "The Village of B.," "Summer," "The Days of Penitence," "The Day of Atonement," "The Village Children at Liberty," "A Sad Sabbath," "The Feast of Esther," "Preparations for the Fair," "The Fair" (two of the most vivid chapters in the book), "Love in the Village" and "News of America in the Village," by Leon Korbin, New York, Brentino's, $1.75.

"My Neighbors"; Caradoc Evans

The old truth concerning the only country wherein a prophet has no honor has been reversed in the case of Wales and one Caradoc Evans, a Welsh journalist, author of "My Neighbors." With Evans it is a case of a country being without honor among its own prophets, for one chapter's reading in his latest work, "My Neighbors," convinces that Wales cannot be and is not a popular place for him.

From a poverty stricken youth, on a dock farm of Wales, to a blithering struggling young manhood in England, where in addition to financial distress there was the task of learning English, Evans' life has run an eventful course. Success crowned his efforts when he went into journalism and through his pen came the publication of his first group of Welsh sketches, "My People."

Now comes his second book, "My Neighbors," and one wonders just how much Wales thinks of Mr. Evans after the things he says about Wales and its neighbors there. For his pictures, as included in this book, certainly are not flattering—they are not even just, one would like to think. But they are cleverly drawn ("Authentic" his publishers assure us), satiric, grim, humorous, with unmingled truth to human nature as he sees it.

The collection of portraits calls to mind at once Maupassant's "Spoon River." That remarkable collection of epitaphs which was the sensation of a year or two ago, Evans has followed somewhat the same line of work, presenting his characters with their everyday manners and customs to the fore making no preparation for their appearance before "company."

There is on the whole a more kindly outlook upon life in these sketches than in the "Spoon River" collection, but none of the chapters can or will make any claim for recognition for any beauty contained therein.

Evans has written much in dialect, a fact which adds to the realism of the pictures, but detracts somewhat from the ease with which one can make the acquaintance of "My Neighbors."

From the standpoint of literature, as social documents or as authentic depictions of a people still intensely primitive and untroubled the book is a notable addition to literary history.

"My Neighbors," by Caradoc Evans, New York, Harcourt, Brace and Howe.

"Why Men Strike," By Samuel Crouther

After an able discussion of labor problems and conditions and a consideration of the strike in the light of the recent situation on the railroads, Samuel Crouther, who is becoming more or less of an authority in practical economics, reaches the conclusion that the question is one of human nature.

"One cannot reasonably urge an order of society in which all are the same—an order in which aptitude and ineptitude will be alike rewarded, but we can hope to come within striking distance of the abolition of poverty by making ownership of property easier, by cultivating the habit of riches as opposed to the habit of poverty," he writes, by making the social competition that which exists between the several grades of those who have and abolishing the competition between those who have and those who have not. Instead of destroying Capital why not destroy Poverty?"

The above paragraph voices the appeal of the book but, of course, cannot indicate the research the author has done or the field covered. A few of the chapter headings may aid in doing this: "Where Wages Go and Why," "What are Men Striking Against," "The More Popular Misconceptions of Capital," "The Man Who Has Money," "The Employers' Part in Industrial Thrift," etc.

"Why Men Strike," by Samuel Crouther, New York, Doubleday, Page & Co., $1.75.

THE YOUNG DIANA

To know a girl named Diana May years ago—before I was married. Not like this girl—no, though she was pretty. I wonder if she's a relation. I must know her, when she saw it in our register, she said the manageress, "for she inquired if you and your family were staying here. I say 'Yes' and she said, 'I know Mrs. Preston,' but she replied that she did not."

Captain the Honorable had become absent-minded, and murmured "Oh," and "Ah!" as if he were not paying very much attention to the driver of her automobile wait at the door of the house.

"We are fools to marry at all!" he inwardly soliloquized. "At fifty-five a man may still be a fool, but before that age a woman is done for!"

Meanwhile Diana was having adventures of a sufficiently amusing kind. She had retained the capability of being amused by anything "merely" human. She arrived at her former old home a little on the outskirts of Richmond, and made the driver of her automobile wait at the carriage gate, preferring to walk up the short distance of the drive to the house. How familiar and yet unfamiliar that wide sweep of neatly-rolled gravel, banked up on each side with rhododendrons, through which came occasional glimpses of smooth green lawn and beds of summer flowers. How often she had walked and watered those beds, when the gardener went off on a "booze," as had been his frequent custom, pretending he had been "called away" by the illness of a near relative.

"So I imagine," and Diana, without being asked, sank gracefully into an easy chair, which she remembered as comfortable—"I was also here," she said, "in the old days, when I was a girl."

"Oh, in that case—But does she expect you?"

"Hardly," and Diana smiled. "But I am sure she'll be glad to see me. You are Miss Preston, yes? Well, then, Miss Preston do please go and tell her."

"At that moment a loud voice called: 'Lucy! Lou-ee! Where's my pipe?'"

Diana laughed. "The same old voice," she said. "That's Mr. May, isn't it? He's calling you, and he doesn't like being kept waiting, does he?"

Miss Preston's face had suddenly flushed very red. "I'll tell Mrs. May," she stammered, and hurriedly left the room. Diana gazed about her on all the little familiar things she had so often dusted and arranged in their different places. They were all so vastly removed now in association that they might have been relics of the Stone Age so far as she was concerned. At all at once the door opened and a reddish face peered in, adorned with a white turban moustache, then a rather stout body followed the face and "Pa" stood revealed. With an affable, not to say engaging air, he said: "I beg your pardon! Are you waiting to see anyone?"

Diana rose and her exquisite beauty and elegance swept over the little sensual soul like a simoon. "Yes!" she answered, sweetly, while he stared like a man hypnotized.

"I want to see Mrs. May—and you?"

"Me!" he responded, eagerly—"I am only too charmed!"

"But I had better speak to Mrs. May first," she continued—"I have something very strange to tell her about her daughter."

"Her daughter? Our daughter? My poor Diana! And Mr. May! I'm sure she'll be glad to see me. You are Miss Preston, yes? Well, then, Miss Preston do please go and tell her."

"At that moment a loud voice called: 'Lucy! Lou-ee! Where's my pipe?'" gooseberry eyes rolled in her—her small, pursy mouth opened though gasping for air. Not a word she uttered till Diana made the utterance of a gasping cry. "What's the matter?" she asked, when she saw the girl's shrill scream like a railway whistle—another and yet another. "I was a scamp of feet outside—the door was thrown open and I was in the house!"

RICCARDI RENEWS M'DONOUGH CASE
'GRAFT' CHARGES

SAN FRANCISCO, June 19.—When Superior Judge Franklin A. Griffin today called a recess in the trial of Peter McDonough, charged with perjury, the turgid pool of secrecy which has shrouded McDonough's participation in the so-called "graft" activities in the hall of justice was stirred sufficiently by Attorney Bert Schlesinger to bring to the surface an official evidence hitherto disclosed by the confessions of Attorney C. Vincent Riccardi, McDonough's former associate.

Riccardi in substance reiterated his charges against McDonough in connection with the distribution of alleged bribe money and denied emphatically he was promised or expected immunity from a felony charge now confronting him in return for his disclosures, and incidentally supplemented his statements in connection with the alleged bribe money activities engaged in by Riccardi and McDonough.

The witness manifested considerable agitation when he was asked by Schlesinger if he had not known or believed the grand jury had indicted himself, McDonough and Theodore Lutzo, who was in charge of Riccardi's office in this city. Riccardi denies knowing that his former associate, Lutzo, ever had taken part in the grand jury investigation.

CHURCH FEUD AT END WITH PLANS OF REORGANIZING

BERKELEY, June 19.—Out of the differences which caused a warm disagreement between the First Christian church and the South Berkeley Christian church three years ago will arise a new consolidated Christian church which plans the immediate construction of a large house of worship and the adoption of an expanded program of church activity.

The split arose over a controversy concerning the method of baptizing new church members to be used in the case of members who had been previously baptized in other churches. The Rev. H. J. Loken, then pastor of First church, contended full immersion was not necessary to supplement the ceremonial of other denominations. A certain faction in the First church said that it was and when Rev. Loken refused to concede the point and when the pastor was upheld at a district meeting of the church, this faction withdrew from the First church and went over to the South Berkeley church.

After a series of conferences arranged by the Rev. Frederic Price of the South Berkeley church, a reorganization meeting of members of both churches has been arranged for July 11, when the two churches will unite. According to J. N. Taggard, 2214 Dana street, who is an elder of the church, full immersion for interdenominational converts has been agreed upon.

Workers Enjoined From Interfering With Employers

(By Universal Service)
ROCHESTER, N. Y., June 19.—Supreme Court Judge Adolph J. Rudenbeck this morning handed down one of the most important court decisions on matters involving the rights of labor ever made in the American courts. The decision grants a permanent injunction to the Michaels-Stern Company, clothing manufacturers, against the Amalgamated Clothing Workers and Sidney Hillman, its president, forbidding them to interfere with the plaintiff in the conduct of his business.

In addition to the injunction the court rules that the plaintiff is entitled to collect damages from the defendants for strike injuries.

EARLY SETTLER OF COUNTY DIES

William Wallace Haley, one of Alameda county's earliest residents, died Friday evening at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Peter J. Crosby, in Hayward. Haley reached his eightieth birthday March 8 and since that time his health had been failing. Members of his family were present at his death.

Born in Yarmouth, Nova Scotia, in 1840, he followed his father and brothers and took to the sea at an early age. Returning from a voyage in 1855, he found his father about to make his second trip to California and the two decided to make the trip together. They crossed the Isthmus and reached the Golden Gate that same year. Both settled in Alameda county, and for the first four years Haley engaged in the sheep business in Murray township, later moving to Washington township, where he purchased a farm near the present site of Newark. In 1888 he came to Oakland and since that time he has been engaged in the commission and real estate businesses in this city and San Francisco.

Haley was a member of Oakland Commandery No. 11, Knights Templar, Alameda lodge, F. & A. M., Centerville, and was one of the few remaining of the Pioneer Association of Washington, Eden and Murray townships. He is survived by the widow, Ella F. W. Haley, two daughters, Mrs. Peter J. Crosby of Hayward, and Mrs. Walter Smith of New Zealand, and four sons, William Wallace Jr. of Hayward, Lieutenant James E. Robert W. and Horace L. Haley of Oakland.

WILL RADIUM AT LAST OPEN THE DOOR OF THE GREAT UNKNOWN?

If you are sick and want to Get Well and Keep Well, write for literature that tells How and Why this almost unknown and wonderful new element brings relief to so many sufferers from Rheumatism, Sciatica, Gout, Neuritis, Neuralgia, Nervous Prostration, High Blood Pressure and diseases of the Stomach, Heart, Lungs, Liver, Kidneys and other ailments. You wear the Degnen Radio-Active Solar Pad day and night, receiving the Radio-Active Rays continuously into your system, causing a healthy circulation, overcoming sluggishness, throwing off impurities and restoring the tissues and nerves to a normal condition—and the next thing you know you are getting well.

Sold on a test proposition. You are thoroughly satisfied it is helping you before the appliance is yours. Nothing to do but wear it. No trouble or expense, and the most wonderful fact about the appliance is that it is sold so reasonable that it is within the reach of all, both rich and poor.

No matter how bad your ailment, or how long standing, we will be pleased to have you try it at our risk. For full information write today—not tomorrow. Radium Appliance Co., 571 Broadway Bldg., Los Angeles, Calif.—Advertisement.

Wild West Factors Parade Streets of Oakland and San Francisco

All is in readiness for the big Rodeo to be held at Livermore July 3, 4 and 5. The wildest horses that can be found in California have been rounded up, saddles have been groomed, cinches reinforced the grandstands at the Rodeo grounds have been roofed over and a score of pretty cowgirls have signed up and agreed to ride any animal that may be led or herded into the field.

Cowboys and cowgirls, champions of one of the Far West's last stands, garbed in the dress of the ranges, paraded on the streets of Oakland and San Francisco yesterday, advertising the coming event. The vanguard of the range riders arrived here and made their camp at the foot of Broadway. Yesterday the entire outfit assembled and rode in double column through the streets.

A free camping grounds for automobilists, with water and water furnished gratis, has been provided at the Cresta Blanca bridge, four miles south of Livermore, where campers who wish to visit the Rodeo for the three days may do their own cooking and sleep out.

The Rodeo, which is the third annual event of its kind to be held in Livermore, will be staged at the new athletic field which has been dedicated to the men of Livermore who took part in the world war.

The event is being sponsored by the Livermore Stockmen's association. Julius Johnson will have charge. A ball will be given at the Sweeney opera house in Livermore on the evening of July 2. Street dances will be held each evening during the round-up.

Some of the most famous riders of the west will participate, many of them having ridden at the Pendleton, Ore. round-up and elsewhere.

Girl Bank Cashier At Rio Vista Weds

A quiet wedding was celebrated at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Totman, Sunday evening when John A. DeBack of this city, and Miss Hazel Totman of the city, were married. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. B. Blood of the local Baptist church. Miss Lois Totman and Mr. Louis Totman were witnesses. The bride was dressed in a dark blue suit and green traveling hat. Until recently she was cashier at the Bank of Rio Vista. She is a graduate of the local high school and one of the most popular young women of this city.

Immediately after the wedding, Louis Totman, brother of the bride, whisked the newly weds to Molena, where they boarded the electric train for a two weeks' honeymoon at San Francisco and Lake county.

WILSON UNREPRESENTED.

CUMMINGS ASSERTS

That Cummings is the sole representative of President Wilson at the convention and President Wilson will have no long distance telephone connection with Chairman Cummings. It is placed in nomination it will not be done by any man who has been named or who will be sent here for the purpose, but by some one of more than 100 delegates who will act on his own initiative.

The telegram from Colby saving that he was not a candidate for the permanent chairmanship caused no ripple in the national committee.

"To be sure he is not a candidate," Cummings told the newspapermen today. "No one is a candidate for the place which is filled by the committee."

When the mentioned Cummings admitted that Colby had been advised that it would be wise for him to many will stand in with him. This refers to the league question and the prohibition.

Cummings attacked the Republican platform as a "calculating and premeditated attempt to satisfy the irreconcilable things," and declared that there will be no bossing in the Democratic convention regarding candidates and no attempt to dictate plans "aside from that of the President. Cummings explained, has already frankly expressed his views.

TWO-THIRDS RULE

TO CHOOSE PRESIDENT

In accordance with his policy of refusing to discuss candidates, Cummings would not refer to the McCord withdrawal.

That the two-thirds rule will stand before the committee and convention is the opinion of a majority of the national committee members.

"If we drop the unit rule we may drop the two-thirds rule," declared Vice-Chairman Kremer. Delegate Charles Boeschenstein said be understood that Colby, today, is the most probable choice. Much the same way he said regarding the selection of Carter Glass for the chairmanship of the resolutions committee.

It is a fine rule, he said, it happens to favor your candidate. Otherwise, it is not so good. I have heard Bourke Cockran speak for it and against it and so eloquent was he that I would have voted with him each time."

"I know of no opposition to him said Cummings. "He is thought of highly by all Democrats." The chairman admitted, however, that he had no idea of other men mentioned for the place.

The attitude of Chairman Cummings toward the anti-Wilson faction in the convention was expressed sharply when he was asked "he said not think that; the selection of Glass would be displeasing to the men who opposed Wilson."

When asked as to Glass that is based on antagonism to President Wilson," responded the chairman, "is not worth talking about."

The selection of the 12 Nations before the conference Cummings said.

"The story has persisted that the President would have the treaty and League of Nations accepted without the dotting of an 'i' or the crossing of a 't'. There never was and never will be such a condition."

Wilson said that "any change that will not kill the vital parts of the treaty or league and that will not break faith with the nations who

CHERRY FIESTA
AT SAN LEANDRO

SAN LEANDRO, June 18.—Cherry carnivals and fiestas today were marked by a parade which started at 2:30 and went through the principal streets of town. Edward Merrill was marshal of the parade. Fred Merrill was his assistant.

Directly following was the San Leandro municipal band and a delegation of San Leandro Red Cross girls in the uniforms which they wore during the period of service in the war. A decorated automobile float bore the officers of the local Red Cross chapter, a large number of automobiles from the local orchards and decorated with cherries brought up after the Red Cross celebration.

FIRE DEPARTMENT LEADS.
The second division of the parade was led by the fire department with the city firemen in uniform, followed by a number of boys with early decorated bicycles.

The line of march was down East Duvallo avenue to East Fourteenth street to Chumalia, countermarching to Davis and down Davis to Hayes, along Hayes to Hepburn street, to East Fourteenth street, along East Fourteenth street and disbanding in front of the plaza.

At the conclusion of the parade, hundreds of visitors to the city who were here to attend the first cherry carnival held since the war, thronged the amusement row, which is a central feature of the fiesta days.

RED CROSS CHEERED
Musical programs were rendered at the town plaza this evening by the San Leandro Municipal Band.

Cheers rose from the hundreds of spectators at the showing made by the Red Cross delegation in the parade. More than a hundred local girls and women marched.

Plans are being made for the biggest cherry festival ever held in the city, as hundreds of Eastbay motorists will pass through the city tomorrow on their way to the country.

Women Whet Wits for Affray Club Training to Be Levied On

By LAURA BRIDE POWERS.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 19.—The "Little Cabinet" is in daily session. It sits in the rose room of the Palace hotel at luncheon and dinner in a snug corner, with Mrs. George Bass as the genial presiding spirit. With her come her immediate entourage, and then, one by one, in come other important women from various corners of the country, making a group of from a dozen to fifteen. "Is it Palmer? Is it Wilson? Is it McAdoo?" asks the gallery, eager to listen.

Their aesthetics may not drop a notch during these absorbing political abstractions, a fresh basket of flowers is duly placed in the center of the table. Sometimes a woman brings the musing of California color that runs the whole chromatic scale. And how the Eastern women adore these baskets. California's prodigality with flowers leaves them breathless.

PARTNERS SHIFTED OFTEN.
There, I didn't quite meet that. The ladies are not really breathless, as you can readily see when the "Little Cabinet" is in session.

As with "The Cabinet" that has been the big table in the corner of the Palm Garden these twenty years and more, the women sit where they find the most congenial souls. It becomes necessary to talk over some deep dark scheme without taking the world into their confidence.

As a matter of fact, the women have much to say to each other at the end of a busy day, and they have to say it. The big pre-convention meetings are soon to be held, and this convention business is a new stunt, and they must be up on their toes to meet it. True, nearly all of the leaders now in San Francisco have had previous training in the big clubs of the nation. Mrs. Bass having acquired her P's and Q's in the Chicago Women's club, one of the most efficient of the kind in the country. And tell it not in Gath, but the club training that women have given women is going to save a lot of talk and time when the convention gets down to business.

For, as you know, in women's clubs, when a five-minute speech is asked for, the bell is rung at the end of the time and unless the body expresses a desire to extend the time, it's five minutes. And as a result, a trained woman can say a lot in five minutes—when the stop watch is held aloft.

MANY LEAVE FOR WEEK-END.
Yesterday was rather a dull day around headquarters, many of the visitors having been carried off for week-ends around the bay and down the peninsula, a group remaining, however, to attend the luncheon given by Mrs. George F. Mara, wife of National Committee man Mara, in the Palm Court of the Palace.

Her guests of honor were Homer Cummings, chairman of Democratic national committee, and Mrs. Cummings, and the thirty-five members of the 1920-21 Executive Council of Bridgeport, Conn., who are en route to attend the Imperial Shrine carnival at Portland, Mr. and Mrs. Mara are from Bridgeport, Conn., so the party afforded them the opportunity of greeting their friends far from home.

A long oval table was placed in the center of the court and was gay with baskets of flowers, such as Brechinridge loves to paint.

Tomorrow the Misses Marsh and Glass are to join their respective fathers, Wilbur Marsh and Carter Glass, at the Palace, which by the middle of the week will be a swarm with delegates and committeemen and women and alternates. For wherever the visitors are quartered, the Palace having captured the official pre-convention headquarters, will be the hub of the town.

NOTABLES ARRIVE.
Miss Elizabeth Marbury, associate of Anne Morgan and Elsie De Wolfe, in all their war enterprises, and sharing their peace projects in the coming back of France and America, arrived yesterday. She comes as a delegate-at-large from New York, and a member of the Executive Committee of the convention. She comes of old political stock, her father having been a Tammany chief of note. She thinks straight and talks straight. She will probably be an honor guest at Oakland's luncheon on the 26th, with the other big women who are sharing 50-50 with the men the duties that shall devolve upon the Executive Committee of the convention. On it are 17 men and 17 women who will manage the details of managing the big show.

KENTUCKY COMING.
Miss Laura Clay, delegate-at-large from Kentucky, is due to arrive in a day or two. She is a daughter of George Washington Clay and Mary Jane Warfield Clay, born in the ancestral home of the Clays in Madison county. Miss Clay, who inherits many of the qualities of her illustrious forbears, is a graduate of the University of Michigan, and a straight thinker by nature. But this seems to have been a Clay quality. She is a distinguished suffragist, having fought the fight since 1888, when she organized the Kentucky Equal Suffrage association. She is now the manager of her own big farm, and does it with the efficiency one would look for in a woman of her type.

After all, the world is coming to accept the fact that sex doesn't determine brains. True, lack of opportunity has been something of a handicap to women. But this seems into the game late," says Professor Griggs, but they are making up for lost time, say.

FAMILY WOMEN.
A scanning of the roster of delegates shows nearly three-fourths of them women of family. Most are not designated by the discriminating prefix, but those that have added matrimony to their experience, and have so stated, could carry anything on the convention over the heads of their bachelor sisters.

Oakland is to be represented in the convention by two clever women, Mrs. Charles Landon Donahue and Mrs. George Ormsby, both of whom are doing their part to lead a hand to their sisters from without our gates to adjust themselves to their new duties and pleasures. For all must not be work.

Tea time at the Palace is coming to look like tea time at the Ritz.

Couple On Sidewalk Auto Crash Victims.
SAN FRANCISCO, June 19.—Efforts of Louis Puccinelli, 1123 Market street, to drive his car around another ahead of him on Upper Grant avenue tonight resulted in the partial demolition of his car and a motorcycle, the serious injury of Mr. and Mrs. Bertrand Du Bois Phillips, wealthy residents of Vancouver, and the arrest of Puccinelli on a charge of speed and two charges of battery. Neither he nor the motorcycle were hurt.

The motorcycle struck Mr. and Mrs. Phillips, hitting them to the sidewalk, and causing serious injury to both.

NEGLIGENCE RESULTS IN LOSS OF HAIR.
Chicago Specialist Says Proper Care Would Prevent Many Cases of Baldness.

The mere use of the comb and brush three or four times a day is not sufficient attention to pay to one of nature's most wonderful gifts, says Prof. John H. Austin, bacteriologist, hair and scalp specialist of Chicago, who now has offices at The Owl Drug Co.

Both men and women owe it to themselves to keep their hair healthy, beautiful and abundant—and the proper corrective treatment of scalp disorders will do this.

Nature's signs of distress—dandruff, itching scalp, falling hair, dry or brittle hair—warn you of approaching baldness. Do not wait a day, but call on Prof. Austin, the hair specialist—he will advise you what to do.

By showing you the roots of your hair, he will tell you the thousands of times, pointing out to you the parasites that are destroying your hair day by day, gradually killing every root until, in time, the head becomes entirely bald, you will be convinced that any delay may be deeply regretted. Prof. Austin says the use of mange cures, dandruff cures, hair tonic, etc., is like taking medicine without knowing what you are trying to cure.

FREE MICROSCOPIC EXAMINATION. of the hair and scalp—both men and women, invited to private office at The Owl Drug Co., 14th and Washington, Oakland; 775 Market St., San Francisco. Hours 10 to 12 and 2 to 4—Advertisement.

U. C. Summer Students Are Thronging Campus Record Session of About 4000 Seems Assured

By LAURA BRIDE POWERS.

BERKELEY, June 19.—The most distinguished faculty ever assembled for a University of California summer session has arrived in Berkeley to hold forth on the college campus during the next six weeks.

Today's influx of students from all parts of the country fulfilled the predictions of Fred Oatfield, Morris Hart for a record-breaking session at which the enrollment is expected to exceed the 4000 mark.

The aesthetic feature of the summer curriculum has attracted to Berkeley some of the best-known musicians and dance artists of the country, who will serve as instructors in the diversified courses offered. In the department of music, headed by Frederick Alexander, there will be associated Miss Madge Quinley, talented pianist, who will give two courses in harmony and ear training; Sascha Jacobinoff, violinist of international reputation and pupil of Carl Flesch, and Miss Marie Mikova, gifted pianist, who has delighted audiences in all parts of the continent.

TEACHERS ARE EXPERTS.
The world of terpsichore will contribute to the college faculty for the summer Miss Katherine Edson, whose gestured motion form of dance has given aesthetic circles something new to talk about.

Dealing with the more serious courses will be experts in their lines of endeavor from all of the leading universities of the country. In the group of distinguished educators who will hold places on the summer session faculty this year are: Mark Jefferson, geographer at the peace conference in Paris, and professor of geography at the Michigan Normal College, Ypsilanti, Michigan.

REGISTRATION CONTINUES.
Morris Jastrow, Jr., professor of Semitic languages and librarian at the University of Pennsylvania and former president of the Society of Biblical Literature.

Walter Goodnow Everett, professor of theology and natural theology at Brown University.

Walter B. Pitkin, professor of journalism, Columbia University, former New York newspaper writer. Registration for the summer courses will continue Monday on the Berkeley campus, regular class instruction being scheduled for the following day.

Miss Foy is blessed with a sense of humor and tells with hearty laughter of a time when there was no one in her district running for state senator—it seemed, she said, as if the office were to go begging.

It was rumored about that time that she, Miss Foy, was to run for senator—and she says that at once innumerable candidates appeared—their consciences had been awakened by the rumor and they arose with one accord to save the country from disaster. "Get up a contest," is her advice to the women. "Run for office yourself and see how many men will jump into the breach—out of the lot the women can pick the best."

The women of California, in fact live up to Miss Foy's estimation of them. She says that the women of the east look upon the women of the west as pioneers; that they are watching to see how these pioneers meet the responsibilities of government making. Miss Foy is an optimist in regard to the final ratification of the suffrage amendment. She says that beyond a doubt all from politics as if it were a plague. She tells the women to get out and vote by November—and thousands run for office. To her it makes no difference whether they be elected or not—the mere running is a salutary thing.

RACE DECOYS MEN.
Miss Foy is blessed with a sense of humor and tells with hearty laughter of a time when there was no one in her district running for state senator—it seemed, she said, as if the office were to go begging.

It was rumored about that time that she, Miss Foy, was to run for senator—and she says that at once innumerable candidates appeared—their consciences had been awakened by the rumor and they arose with one accord to save the country from disaster. "Get up a contest," is her advice to the women. "Run for office yourself and see how many men will jump into the breach—out of the lot the women can pick the best."

The women of California, in fact live up to Miss Foy's estimation of them. She says that the women of the east look upon the women of the west as pioneers; that they are watching to see how these pioneers meet the responsibilities of government making. Miss Foy is an optimist in regard to the final ratification of the suffrage amendment. She says that beyond a doubt all from politics as if it were a plague. She tells the women to get out and vote by November—and thousands

Mrs. Fiske's appearance will take the form of an actress in the interests of bird and animal conservation. There will be no admission fee. The actress is scheduled to talk at 3 o'clock and will be introduced by Dean Walter Morris, head of the summer session.

Other events scheduled include: Saturday evening, June 26, Ruth St. Denis dancers.

The engagement of the St. Denis dancers next week will be marked by the initial presentation in the west of Messner's "Eucharist" ballet. For the Players Club production a cast of semi-professionals from about the bay is being arranged. Playing the title role of Richard III will be William S. Ranney, former campus actor.

With the Madist Choir will compete William Finnegan, known as the "boy Gull-Curel."

The summer season at the Greek Theater will be closed with the presentation of "The Quest."

"The Quest" is the work of Sidney Cox Howard of Berkeley, brother of Mrs. Duncan McDuffie. Professor Stime will supervise its presentation.

Frederick Alexander, head of the department of music in the State Summer University Summer Session, will have charge of the choral music.

A feature will be an exhibition of Elizabethan folk dancing under the direction of Mr. Theodore Viehman. Viehman produced the Tudor Folk Dance Festival last year.

Miss Katherine Edson will be in charge of dancing.

OPENING OF BUILDING TO BE EVENT

Public interest in the formal opening of the new building of the H. O. Harrison Company at 124 Grand avenue, which will cover the three-day period beginning Wednesday, June 23, and ending Friday, June 25, will be increased by announcement of the various features which will mark the event. In location, size, furnishings and structural and mechanical equipment this building is regarded by competent critics as a model of its kind, one of the finest erected exclusively to the automotive industry west of Chicago, and its formal opening in consequence will be epochal in the history of the industry in the Eastbay district.

Every department of the new home of the company will be thrown open for public inspection during the formal opening period from 1 o'clock in the afternoon until 9 o'clock in the evening. In the two large modern display rooms on the main floor, fronting Grand avenue will be shown the latest models of the makes of motor cars for which the company is Eastbay dealer, which probably will prove one of the most attractive features of the occasion.

ELABORATE DISPLAY
A unique feature will be the display of Dodge Brothers motor car No. 12 in conjunction with the 455-555th car turned out by the big Detroit factory, bridging a gap of time in which has been witnessed one of the most notable achievements in the history of automotive manufacturing. Car No. 12 is the first ever shipped to the Pacific coast, being sent by express to J. E. French, district representative of Dodge Bros. Car No. 455-555, received a short time ago by the H. O. Harrison company in San Francisco, was the feature of an intensive advertising and publicity campaign.

Arrangements have also been made to screen, twice daily, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon and 8 o'clock in the evening, the "Trail of the Arrow" film, a vivid thrilling reproduction of the adventures of Nell Shipman, movie actress, and Marie Cole, a Los Angeles society girl, on their trip through the desert country north of Old Baldy in southern California to the Devil's Punch Bowl.

BUILDING IS FIREPROOF

The new building, into which the company moved some time before it had been furnished and equipped with the completeness regarded as desirable for a formal opening, is of reinforced concrete and absolutely fireproof. It is four stories in height, including the mezzanine floor, has a 140-foot frontage on Grand avenue and on Twenty-third street, and extends through the block a distance of 125 feet. The floor space provided in the structure is approximately 70,000 square feet. The two salesrooms are tiled and cement floors prevail generally throughout the remainder of the structure. The front is plastered to produce a stone effect and has an ornamental cornice and a plate glass vestibule. In the rear of the salesrooms on the main floor is the service department, from which an elevator, 8 by 22 feet, is used to convey cars to the second floor, the entire length of which north of the corridor is occupied by the general and executive offices. The front part of this floor, comprising the major part of its space, is used for the storage of parts and accessories.

MANY DEPARTMENTS

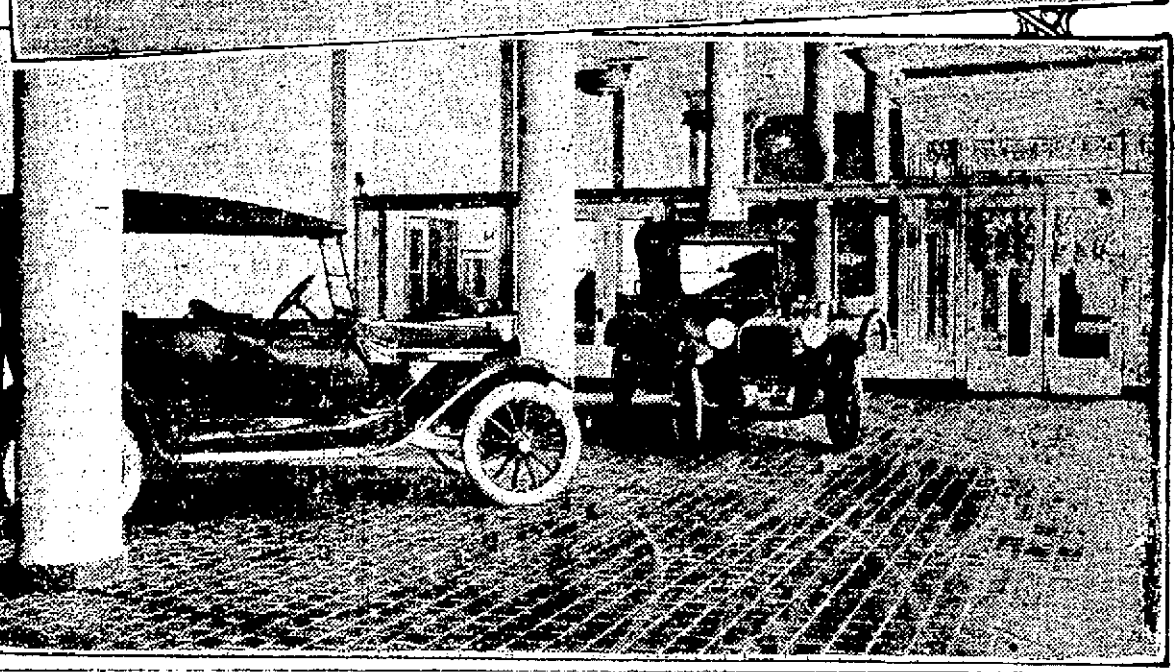

On the third floor is located the painting, trimming and upholstering department. If the present situation should change and cars at any time come through fast enough for such a requirement, a part of this floor will also be utilized for the storage of new automobiles. At present one section is being used temporarily for the display of used cars.

The fourth floor holds the repair department, in which has already been installed up-to-date time and labor-saving tools and devices in addition to the machinery usually found necessary for such a department. Among the new features will be modern electrical equipment for taking cars of the battery troubles of owners of any make of automobile.

It is planned to construct in the near future a board replaster on the roof of the building, with glass roof and sides, to be used by employees for rest and recreation during the luncheon period. The scenic view from the roof of the structure is exceedingly beautiful.

In arrangements for the health, comfort and convenience of employees.

INTEREST IN LOCAL MOTOR CAR CIRCLES THIS WEEK CENTERS ON THE FORMAL opening, Wednesday of the H. O. Harrison Co. building. As the three views presented here depict, it is one of the most pretentious in the West. Upper photo shows the Grand Ave. front; lower, one of the new car salesrooms and center, a partial view of the repair department.

plays the new home of the company is in the highest class. The ventilation and lighting effects are as nearly perfect as could be attained by scientific progress, and the structure is steam heated and provided in every department with hot and cold water.

TOKYO MOTOR CENTER
Tokyo is the center of motorization in Japan. Automobiles are usually imported by agents there and distributed thence over the country.

Terminal Polarity Tested By Current

When charging terminals are not marked plus and minus to indicate the positive and negative sides the following method may be used to determine the polarity. Attach both sides of the circuit to small lead plates and place these plates in a tumbler nearly filled with battery solution or electrolyte. Turn on the current and after three minutes remove the plates. The one which shows brown discoloration is attached to the positive side.

Well-Oiled String Stops Pipe Leaks

A satisfactory temporary repair of a leaking water pipe may be made by binding around the seal of trouble several layers of string well soaked in thick oil.

Wobbling Wheels Are In Need of Jacking

Criticism of the condition of the wheels of his neighbor's car is a common falling with most motorists, and yet the very man who is finding fault probably has a worse set on his own car. Wobbling wheels are a common ailment in motordom. At least once in two months, and better once every month, the car owner should jack up the wheels of his car, grasp opposite spokes and shake them to see if excessive end play has developed. Rear wheels are particularly liable to looseness and this condition induces rapid tire deterioration. The wobbling may be caused by bearing wear or by a bent shaft.

TIRE TALKS

NO. 2—FLAPS

The flap, one of the most important parts of an auto tire, is probably the part of the tire that is least understood and most neglected.

The function of the flap is to protect the inner side of the tube from abrasion and injury by the rim.

The flap performs its function of protection only when it is kept in good condition and is properly applied to the tire. But a damaged flap or one that is improperly applied may be as great a source of tire trouble as any nail or bit of glass on the road. When the flap is carelessly inserted in the tire or is otherwise abused it will fray on the sides to an edge that will saw its way through the tube. Or it will wrinkle to a sharp edge and cut the tube.

The real tire expert will devote a great deal of time and attention to applying a flap properly. He knows that the life of the tube on which he is working depends on his skill and care. The best expert uses a special machine for putting in the flap and this machine automatically gives the flap a proper adjustment. It prevents fraying and wrinkling.

Berger Bros. use just such a machine. It is typical of the sort of work they do and the service they give.

MANY MILES OF SCENERY ALONG WAY

ing a year ago, especially so in Oregon, where, until present grades were established, there were several "corkers" requiring about all the available power the average motor car possesses. A notable instance is the old and new grades through Wolf Creek Canyon. The old one tested the power, skill and disposition of any driver, while the new one, of approximately six per cent, is wide and can be climbed in high by the ordinary pilot. Other changes could be cited, such as the new Cow Creek, and also the new Pass Creek grades, which will soon open, the former within a few weeks and the latter when a bridge has been built across the narrowest portion of the canyon.

Weather conditions in Oregon, in districts where dirt roads exist, will govern the comfort of those pleasure bent. If heavy rains are encountered there will be plenty of mud, and with the mud, of course, comes retarded speed and careful driving.

Throughout California's sister, at least along the Pacific highway, there are frequent evidences of the road building activity Oregon is carrying on, and the finished evidence of present labors will be more definitely visible next season, at this period, than it is now. For, at this time a hard surfaced ribbon will almost completely bridge the gap between the California state line and Portland. When that time arrives it will not be uncommon to hear of the tour being completed by pleasure travelers in two days running time.

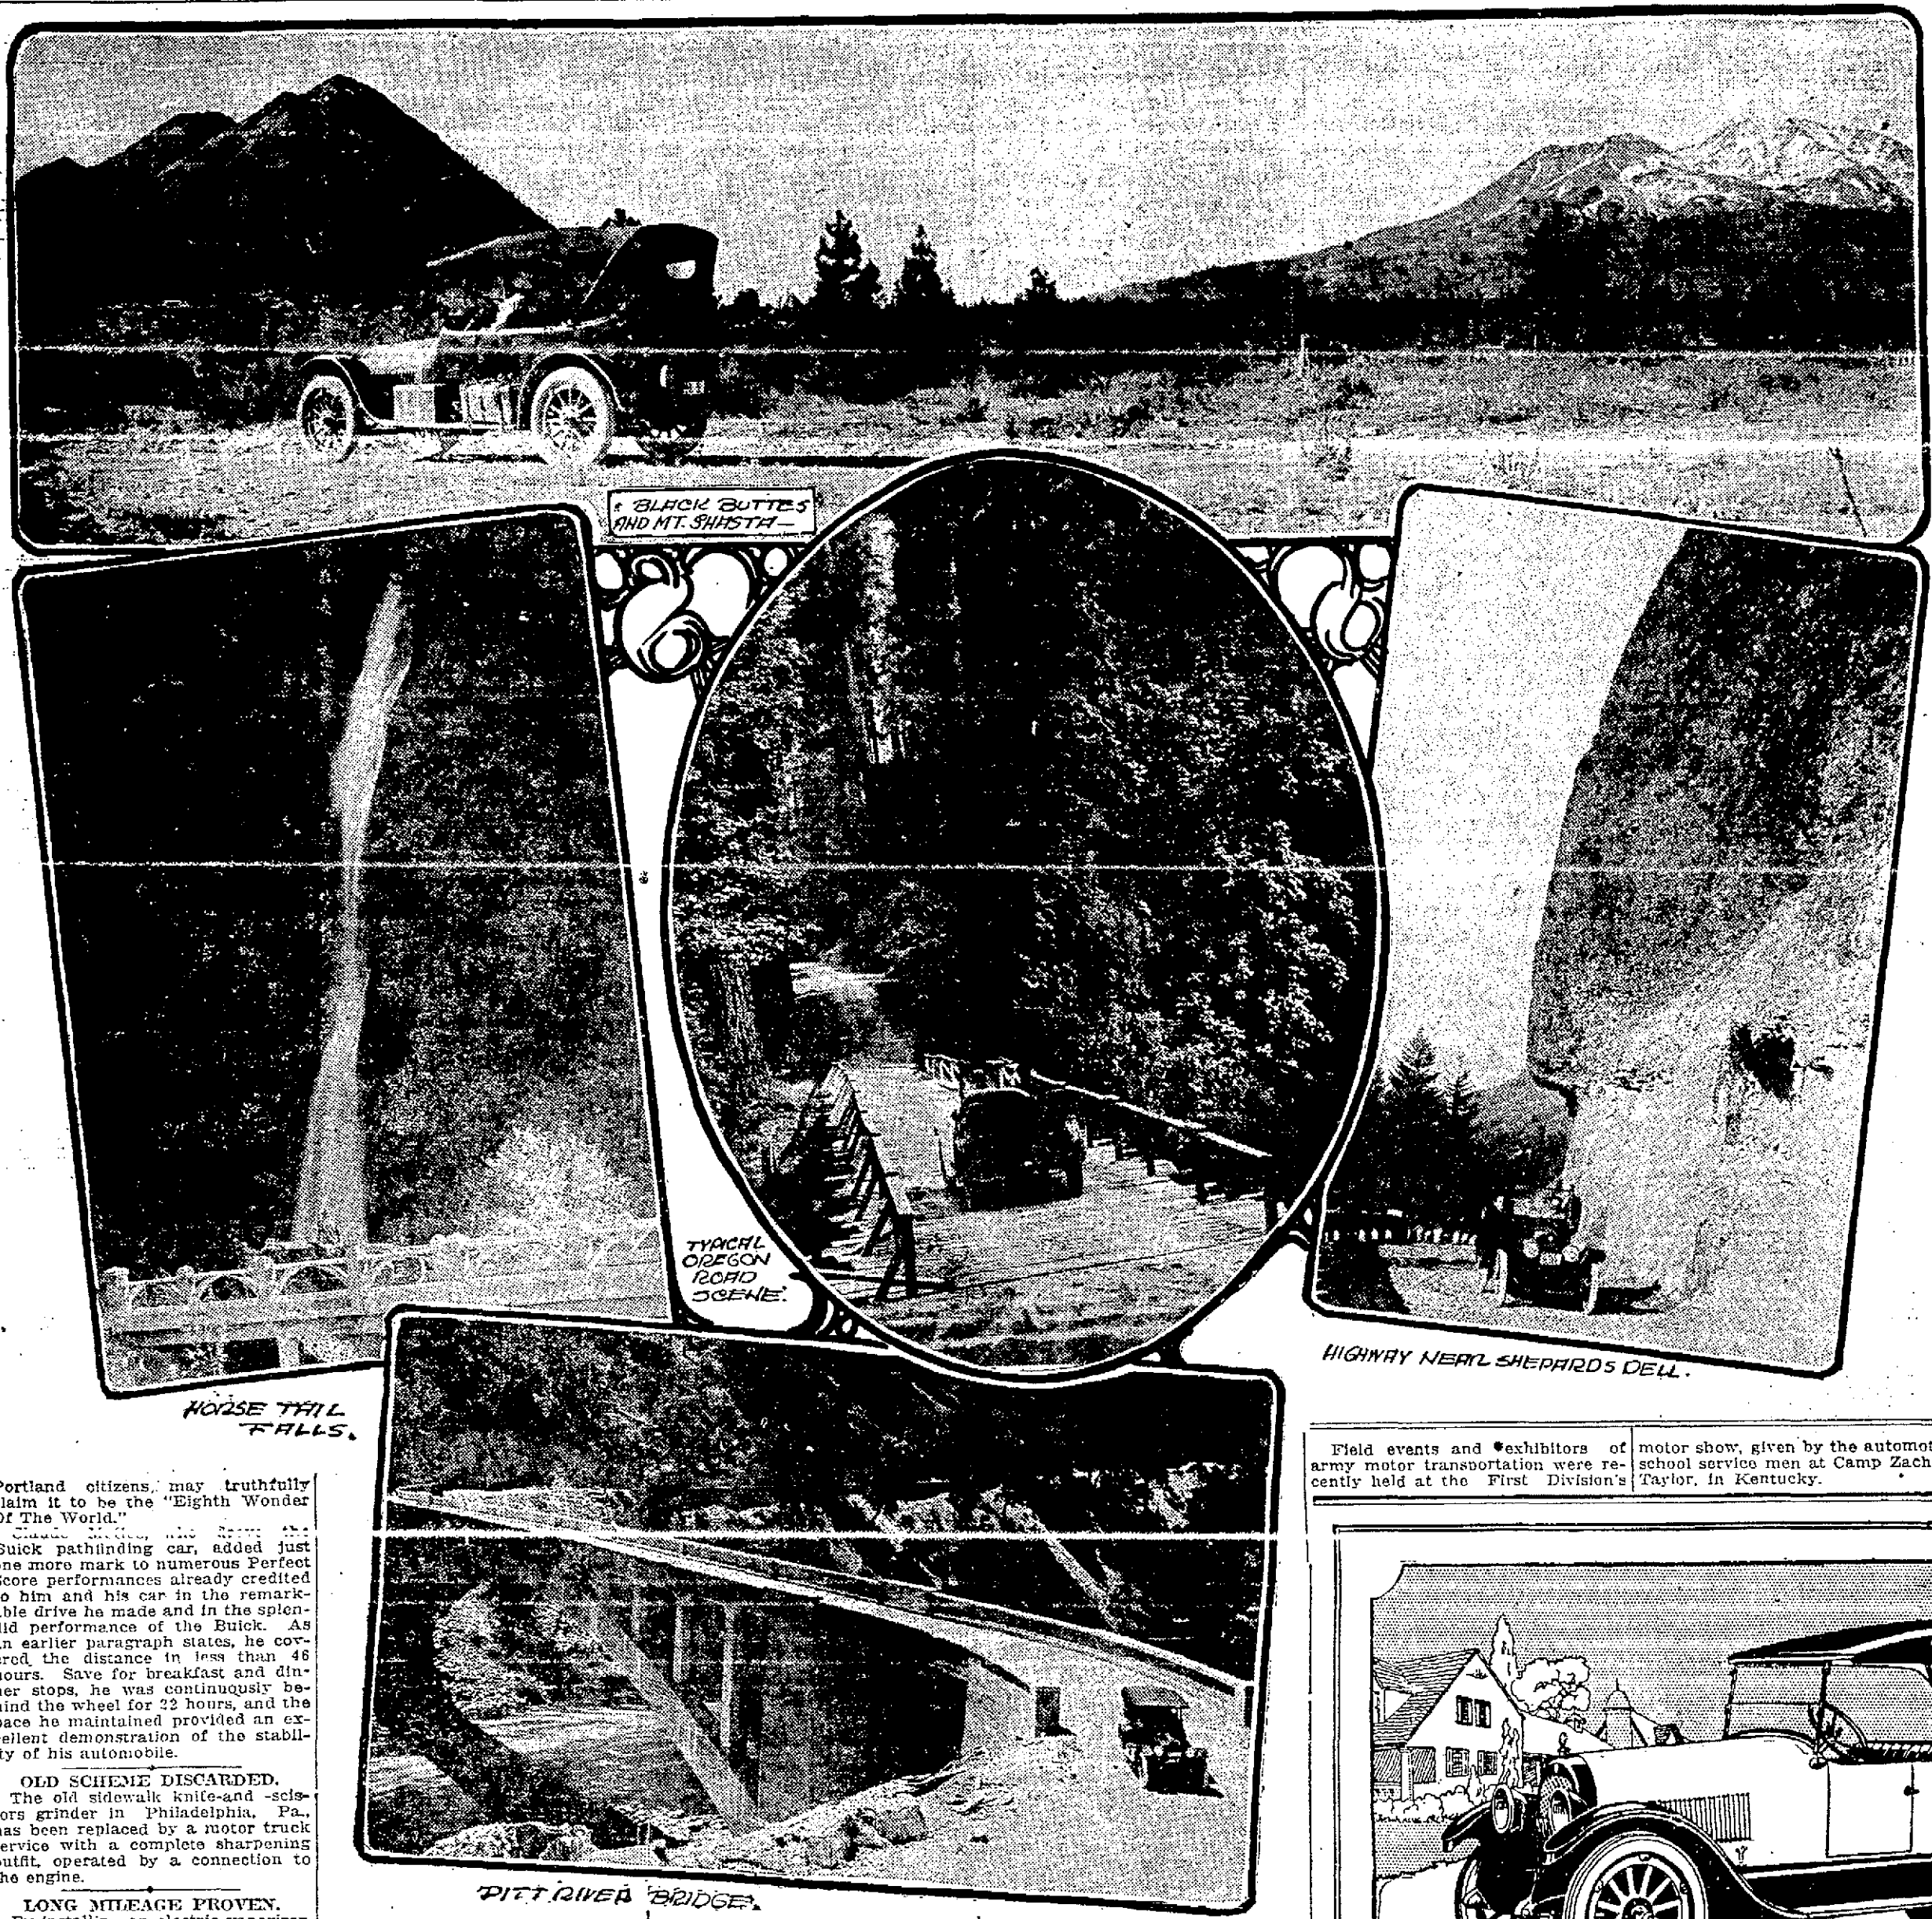

Until this year the route was unfinished through the Sacramento canyon, between Redding and Dunsmuir. Now, work is needed on but a few miles. The remainder is excellent highway. The scenery through this canyon is beautiful.

NEW BEAUTY SCENES
Oregon offers the Californian a different kind of scenic beauty from that to which he is accustomed in any part of his native state. The frequent rains coat the hills and valleys with a refreshing shade of green which we view only in the early spring. The rains, too, create innumerable streams, most of which eventually find their way into the large Oregonian rivers, among these being, the Columbia, Willamette, Rogue, Umpqua and Yamhill. On either side of these streams are valleys of the same names, whose agricultural products are famous throughout the United States.

At the end of the trail in Portland, there starts a drive which cannot be surpassed the world over in its scenic wonder. The Columbia River highway, beginning at Portland and continuing almost to the Dalles, follows a course which parallels the Columbia River, rises at one point to nearly 500 feet above the river, then drops to the water's level and in succession rises and drops to the river along a route which boasts of eight different waterfalls, the highest being Multnomah Falls, second in size, in America, to Yosemite Falls. These eight natural wonders are found within a twelve-mile space along the highway.

MILES OF SCENERY
At what is regarded the Summit—Crown Point—there is available a view for miles and miles, east and west of the Columbia River. The sight beggars a justifiable description. Its grandeur must be seen in order to properly comprehend the thrills it affords. Natural obstacles confronted engineers who laid out and later built the road. In some instances it is hewn out of rock and in other places bridges are required to span canyons. If no other compensation were offered for making the trip from the bay cities to the north, a drive over the Columbia River highway would amply repay the effort, time and expense involved.

IMPROVEMENT OF OREGON ROADS HAS BEEN RAPID DURING THE LAST YEAR AND CALIFORNIA MOTORISTS WILL FIND MANY MILES OF GOOD HIGHWAY IN NORTHERN STATE. The Columbia River Highway, alone should be the incentive attracting local tourists. In the views shown below, all of which are labeled, appear the Buick Six in which Claude A. McGee, veteran pathfinder of Howard Auto Company, transported the Tribune automotive editor and two San Francisco newspaper men. McGee negotiated the 745 miles in 45½ hours.

DRIVES FROM WALLA WALLA TO OAKLAND

During the past week several long-distance motorists driving Cleveland Six cars arrived in the bay cities, but the most notable trip that has been reported by the E. L. Peacock Title Company is that of Prof. George L. Lawrence, instructor in modern languages at the Whitman college of Walla Walla, Washington, and Mrs. Lawrence. The Lawrences drove down for the purpose of attending the summer sessions at the University of California, where Professor Lawrence will have charge of some of the classes.

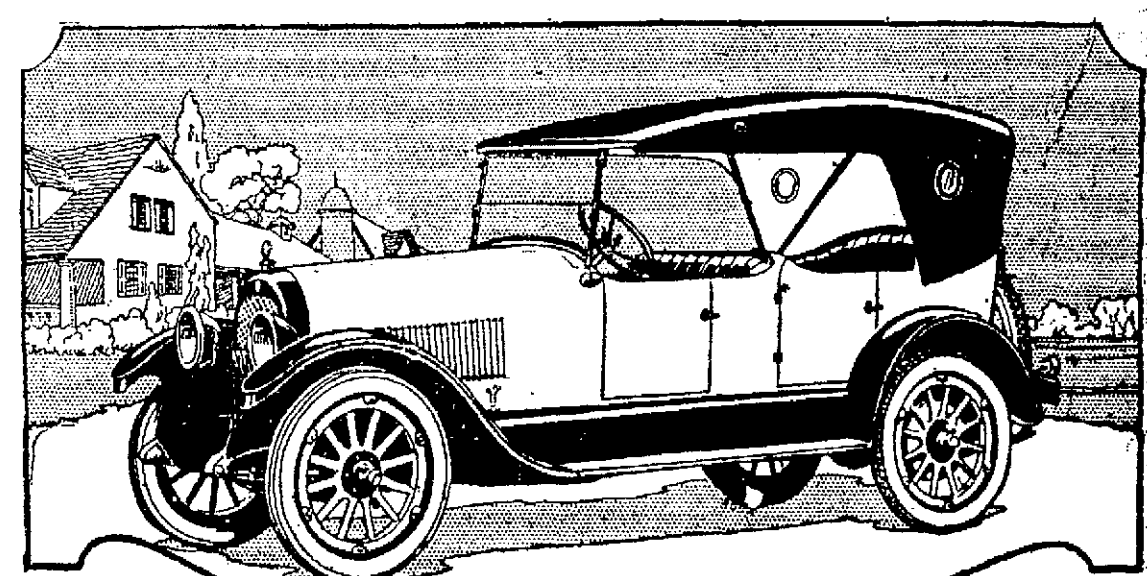

According to Professor Lawrence, before their departure from Walla Walla they were urged to not attempt to drive overland, on account of the extremely bad road conditions. The roads, particularly over Mount Hebron, were found just as they had been reported to be—extremely bad. Besides, two heavy rainstorms were encountered and for two days the driving was very difficult due to the fact that the roads were exceedingly muddy and dangerous.

ROADS WERE MUDDY
"At times," said Professor Lawrence, "both axles were dragging in the mud. Frequently we were into it over the hubs and running boards. Driving was very tiresome, but we rested occasionally; then we'd start up again. Most of the rain and mud occurred between Bend, Ore., and Klamath, and between Klamath Falls and Sisson. In the vicinity of Sisson we drove through a pouring rain for several hours. It was a source of much satisfaction and surprise to us the way our car kept right on going through the mud; likewise, it was a relief to the fact that we certainly encountered some might steep stretches.

MAKE TRIP LEISURELY
"We left Walla Walla on Friday June 11. We did not fast drive principally because we had laid out a daily schedule for ourselves. Usually we drove from 8 o'clock in the morning until 8 o'clock at night. We made each point each night that was originally planned to make. Our route was by way of Wasco, Bend, Fort Klamath, Klamath Falls, Keno, Klamath Hot Springs, Aser, Montague, thence down the Sacramento valley to Woodland, Benicia, Martinez and Berkeley, arriving at the latter place at 1 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Our total mileage was 918.

"We started out with a full tank gasoline and took on additional supplies at every point of importance that we passed through. We were never able to buy much gasoline; at only one or two places were absolutely refused. We arrived Berkeley with practically a full tank."

Merchants Can Profit by Packard's Method of "Truck Rating"

UNDER the new plan, each Packard truck is rated for tonnage capacity with a complete knowledge of the job on which it is to work.

As hauling conditions vary, the tonnage rating will vary. The Packard factory guarantees the rating set by the local Packard distributor.

Nothing is done by guesswork. The rating is stamped on the truck with the size model and name of the buyer.

Business men interested in getting the maximum efficiency from their truck equipment will profit by consulting our transportation engineers concerning the ability of Packard trucks to handle their particular work.

It costs them nothing but may eliminate costly errors in the selection of truck equipment.

INTEREST IN TRAFFIC COPS' SHOW GROWS

District committees appointed throughout the nation by Lieutenant Dan Sylvester of San Francisco, president of the National Traffic Officers' association, are sending in enthusiastic reports of the interest being taken all over the country in the convention of that organization to be held here in August.

Lieutenant Sylvester is nearing the end of his tour of the nation in the interests of the traffic officers' convention, and already the district organizations formed during the earlier part of his trip are reporting results in the shape of large delegations signed up to attend the August meetings in San Francisco.

C. DeWitt DeMar, who is accompanying Lieutenant Sylvester on the tour, in the interests of the Safety First exposition which will be staged in the city auditorium here, in connection with the traffic officers' national gathering, also reports success for that end of the August affair.

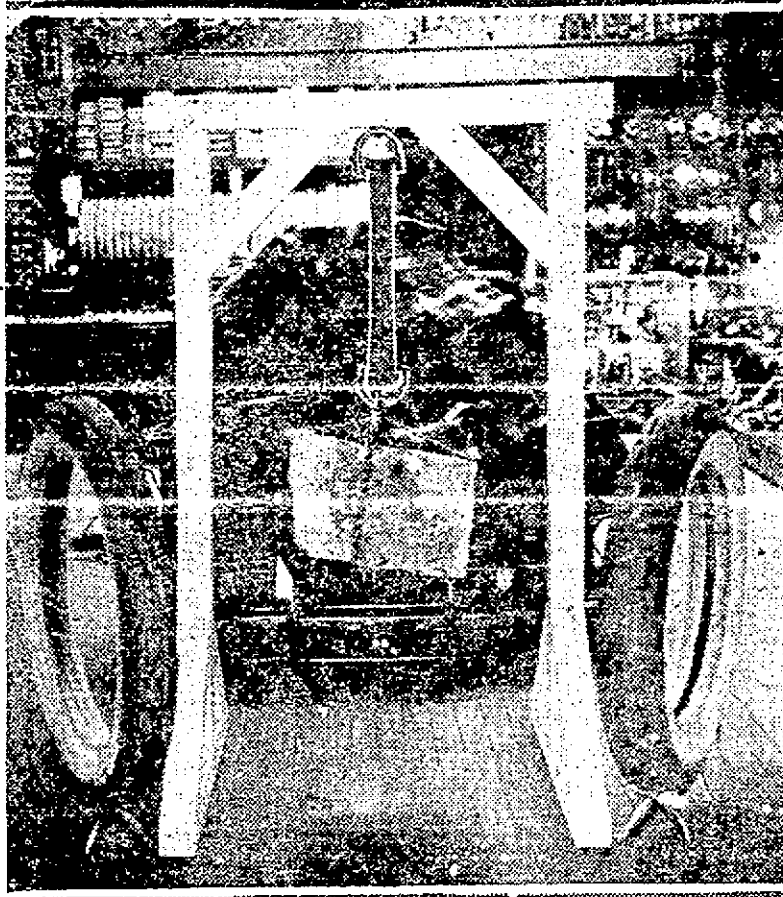

In addition to hundreds of interesting exhibits of safety-first devices by eastern concerns, quite a number of Pacific coast firms have also taken space for the exposition.

Oil Wells Are Better Than Grease Cups

Modern constructional practice is leading toward the elimination of grease cups and the substitution of oil wells and oil cups. There are many car owners whose vehicles are equipped with grease cups in great profusion who can at least expense do away with the trouble due to this equipment. For example, the grease cup is generally located at the clutch for lubricating the thrust bearing or throw-out collar. This may be removed and a large oil cup may be substituted. The owner who is mechanically competent may install a large oil reservoir with flexible leads running from it to various parts of the mechanism requiring lubrication which is now supplied by grease cups. Such a system may be constructed after the pattern of a mechanical oiler with a control for each lead.

TIRE EXPERT, HOME AGAIN, TAKES POSITION

O. J. Smith, one of the best known tire experts in this part of the country, has joined the force of the Miller Rubber company, according to announcement by H. O. Alexander, special factory representative.

Smith just returned from the Orient where he investigated conditions in the rubber industry, with a view of entering the production field. He found opportunities but did not like the country, so returned here. He visited China, Japan, India, the Straits Settlements and other Oriental countries.

Smith was, for many years, connected with a large tire firm here and has been in the tire business since he was a boy.

His many friends are congratulating him on his new connection.

SIGNBOARDS TO TELL TOURISTS STATE AUTO LAW

Signs are to be erected by the California State Automobile association at the principal highway entrances to the state, warning non-resident motorists entering California of the provisions of the state motor vehicle act, requiring registration within twenty-four hours.

The law provides that if the cars of non-resident motorists are registered for the current year in their home state they will be issued non-resident as well as permitting them to operate their cars in California for a period of not to exceed ninety days without tax. Application for this non-resident permit may be made at any office of the state motor vehicle department at Sacramento, San Francisco, Fresno or Los Angeles or at any of the twenty-two branch offices of the California State Automobile association.

370 POUND ROCK LIFTED BY TUBE

How many persons think it possible for a four-inch inner tube to hold up a rock weighing 370 pounds? It is possible and was accomplished last Monday in the presence of several authorities on rubber and tires.

The most difficult part of the feat was getting enough strong men to raise the big rock to a position so as to hook it on to the rubber tube, and then slowly release it to the floor. One would hardly believe that a small piece of rubber could undergo such a strain and remain in that position for a couple of weeks, without breaking.

W. E. Sire, who was recently named to distribute Norwalk tires and tubes, decided to give the Norwalk tube a test of some kind so as to be entirely sold on the tubes. The suggestion for this test came up from R. H. Chase, district manager of the Norwalk Tire and Rubber Company Inc. He felt that this and the scissors test were two tests that would assure his new dealer that a tire properly made will not tear or break under any hard test.

The scissors test is a little more severe. A strip of rubber from one of the tubes is clipped in several places and stretched to its capacity between two objects.

These two tests were made and they are on exhibit in Sire's accessory store.

TRACTORS IN NEW JOB.

In Belgium, motor tractors are towing canal boats of 350 to 400 tons from Liege to Antwerp. The distance of ninety-five miles is made in five or six days.

HARRY BOYLE, well-known Oakland business man, who has been made sales manager of McCaw Tire Company.

FARMERS HEAVY BUYERS.
Farmers in the United States are buying approximately 60 per cent of the manufacture of motor trucks of two-ton and under capacities.

The average sales of gasoline in Louisville, Ky., daily are placed at 60,000 gallons.

CLOSED MODELS GROW IN FAVOR

Absolute comfort, in summer as well as winter, this is the factor that has made the closed car the popular vehicle it is today, believes Charles Burman, agent for the Oakland Six.

"All that the skeptic has to do to be convinced of the superior merits of the closed car is to travel in one over some tough old mountain grade or over a stretch of desert in one of the remotest portions of the state."

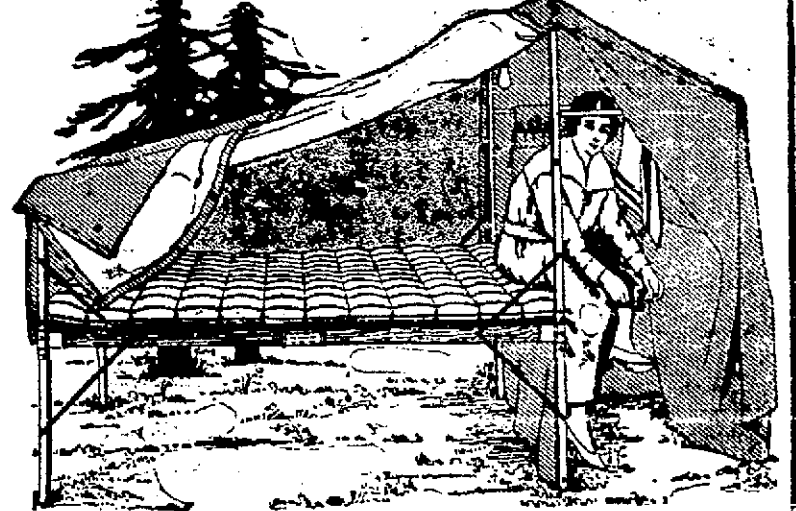

"Take the Oakland sedan, for instance. Owners have made the hardest climbs in the state without their radiators boiling, and more than that, the passengers have ridden in comfort no matter how hot the day. The closed car has a big advantage over open models in that its temperature can be kept approximately the same no matter what the season. In spite of the heat of the day it is always possible to force a draft into a closed car and the resultant circulation of air keeps the occupants cool at all times."

Suggestions Given for Tube Patching

Ordinary tire tape may be used to patch inner tubes by running it twice around the tube and overlapping the ends so as to cover the leak. Surgeon's plaster may be used in the same way in an emergency.

Automobile owners of North Carolina have already paid more than $1,400,000 to the State treasury, which amount under the 1920 law goes to the road fund.

Then and there you learned the difference between claims and facts.

Now, Jim, we sell Lee Tires and we don't need to brag or boast about them.

Down deep in our hearts there are no better tires than the Lee and we want you to believe it too.

To make you believe we must present facts and be able to prove them.

A good tire must be good all the way through inside as well as outside and in between.

Lee uses only the fabric made of Egyptian long staple cotton as foundation for the carcass of the tire.

This cotton has greater textile strength than any other the result is a better foundation for the outside part which you see.

One feature that adds to the long life of Lee Cord Tires is the more than ordinary amount of cushion between the cords.

But here's the feature which your bragging bully should have had—it would have kept him from getting licked.

The boy you licked wasn't cured properly—wasn't sure of himself—but the curing is one of the secrets of Lee Tire mileage.

Lee semi-cures the carcass then finishes the process with carcass and tread joined.

That's a lot better than the other way of curing the rubber on the carcass then putting on the tread going through the same process and cooking out the strength by overdoing it.

The Lee way has proved for the better way as results show in mileage records from satisfied users.

The Lee way is the confidence-inspiring way the way of the determined boy who did the licking.

Yours very truly,

NO PROSPECT OF DROP IN AUTO PRICES

There is no prospect of a drop in the price of automobiles this year. This is indicated positively in a letter from J. E. Roberts, the general sales manager of the Cole Motor Car Co., to L. D. Allen, northern California distributor for the Cole Aero-EIGHT, received yesterday. In the factory chief sets for manufacturing conditions as they actually exist, and announces that the Indianapolis factory will guarantee that the price of all Cole Aero-EIGHT models will not go down before the new year. If they do, the amount of the decrease will be refunded to the purchaser.

This is the first evidence of price conditions given by any of the manufacturers since the recent rise in prices. It shows that the automobile leaders, in spite of energetic efforts toward economies, are beset by conditions which they cannot control.

Seeking to protect the purchasers of Cole Aero-EIGHT, Allen wrote the factory asking for an expression of opinion regarding stability. This is Robert's reply:

"The product of the Cole Motor Car Company today is not overpriced and is based on contract prices of materials ordered and on hand for our production for a considerable number of months.

"This condition is not only true of the Cole, but of all other production plants, thereby making it impossible to see any reduction for a long time to come. Therefore, the Cole Motor Car Company will guarantee to return to you or to your owners the amount of any reduction on all cars shipped on and after June 1, up to January 1, 1921."

REPAIRS, PAINT ADD LIFE TO CAR

Very few motorists know exactly what condition their car is in. Yet it is a fact that as long as the engine is running smoothly and there is sufficient paint left on the body, that their machine is in good condition overall.

But there will come a day when that machine will have to be overhauled and repainted, and the bill will be much larger than was expected. If they had only inspected and cleaned their car thoroughly every month or so, that added expense would have been avoided," points out Ray Hollaway, McFarlane distributor.

It stands to reason that if you wash and polish your car once a month, the paint will last longer and look better at the end of the year than if you only wash and polish it once a year. The same thing applies to the engine of your car. Replace worn parts that are bound to give you trouble sooner or later and save a tow bill and the unpleasantness of having your car in the garage for a couple of weeks."

"Used Car" Agent Enters Broader Field of Action

C. R. KITTO, WHO HAS been named used car manager of L. D. Allen, Inc. Oakland store.

Increased Service and More Careful Work Promised in Auto Trade

Charles Kitto, long identified with Oakland's automobile row as a salesman and used car manager, is now manager of the used car department of L. D. Allen, Inc., distributor for the Cole Aero-Eight, Sevens-Duryea and Sixes trucks. Kitto is rated one of the best men in his field and his addition to the executive staff is following Allen's plan of gathering about him a corps of "live wires."

The change in the used car manager also brings a change in policy in the conduct of this department. Hereafter all Cole Aero-Eights will be rebuilt before they are offered for sale, regardless of how far they have been run or how long. When they come out of the shop they will be sold with the same guarantee as applies to new cars.

A twenty-hour service book will be given with all used cars. This is done to eliminate any doubt regarding the condition of the car and to give the buyer something tangible in the way of service.

"We know the Cole well enough to give this guarantee," said S. S. Keeney, manager of L. D. Allen, Inc. "There is a steadily increasing market for a used car of the Cole type and we find that where the car has been rebuilt and guaranteed the number of prospects increase."

"The policy of guaranteeing all Aero-Eights, regardless of the service they have seen, results from our aim to see that every owner is satisfied."

N. Y. RECEIPTS BIG.
Seven million dollars has been paid for the registration of motor vehicles and the licensing of chauffeurs and operators during the first four months in New York State.

MANY CARS ENTERED IN TALLAC RUN

SACRAMENTO, June 19.—With more than a score of cars entered in the Sacramento-Tallac reliability and economy run, the event promises to be the largest of its kind held in California in recent years.

The run is to be held on June 21 and 22, stopping over night at Tallac, on the shore of Lake Tahoe. The first day's run will be to the lake by way of the Placerville road and the return trip will be made the following day by way of Truckee, over the Emigrant pass and through Auburn.

The rules of the contest prohibit coasting down hill with the engine switched off or the gears in neutral, and also prohibit stopping the motor except while in an official control, except under penalization.

In preparing the rules the advisory board of the contest endeavored to have the cars operate as nearly in the same manner as they would if the average owner was driving the car, as they believe that this will give a better knowledge of the reliability and economy of the cars in actual service.

L. G. Thompson of Earle C. Anthony, Inc., who was requested by the advisory board to draft the rules for the contest, has arrived from Los Angeles to look after the Reo and Dord cars entered by that firm. Preliminary trips made over the route indicate that all cars winning a perfect score will have a creditable performance to point to, as the average rate of speed must be twenty miles an hour, and cars that exceed the state speed limit at any point will either be penalized or disqualified. This will prevent excessive speed on the highways and across the valley to make up for the slower speed necessary on the long grades up to and from the summit of the high Sierras.

AUTO TRIPS SHOW STATE IS BOOMING

Prosperity throughout the interior counties of northern California is evidenced by bumper crops of grain and fruit, is the word brought back to Oakland by motorists who have been visiting the smaller cities of the up-state territory. The same conditions apply to the districts closer in, according to C. J. Hulen, manager for O. N. Hirsch, eastbay Lexington distributor.

Hulen has spent the greater part of the past week in touring the various counties which comprise Hirsch's Lexington territory. These business in Singapore.

include Alameda, Contra Costa, Napa, Sonoma, Solano and Marin counties.

"Everywhere there seems to be an air of prosperity, with satisfaction expressed by practically every one as to the size of the harvest. The fruit growers are looking forward to one of the best seasons they have ever experienced, and are already figuring on how to spend their profits."

"The day has passed when the small farmer thought only of purchasing the cheapest make of car on the market. Ranchers, both big and little, are looking for finer grades of automobiles; more than this they are lifting up the hood and taking note of a car's 'insides' more than was formerly the case. A nice coat of paint no longer sells a car; the farm-owners are demanding real automobiles of the highest grade obtainable. What's more they are getting them, and paying cash, or at least a larger-than-average deposit, when they do the sign-on-dotted-line act."

More than 300 motor trucks are in operation in British Malaya, due to the increasing volume of rubber.

TWO OF CAR SALES FORCE TAKE BRIDES

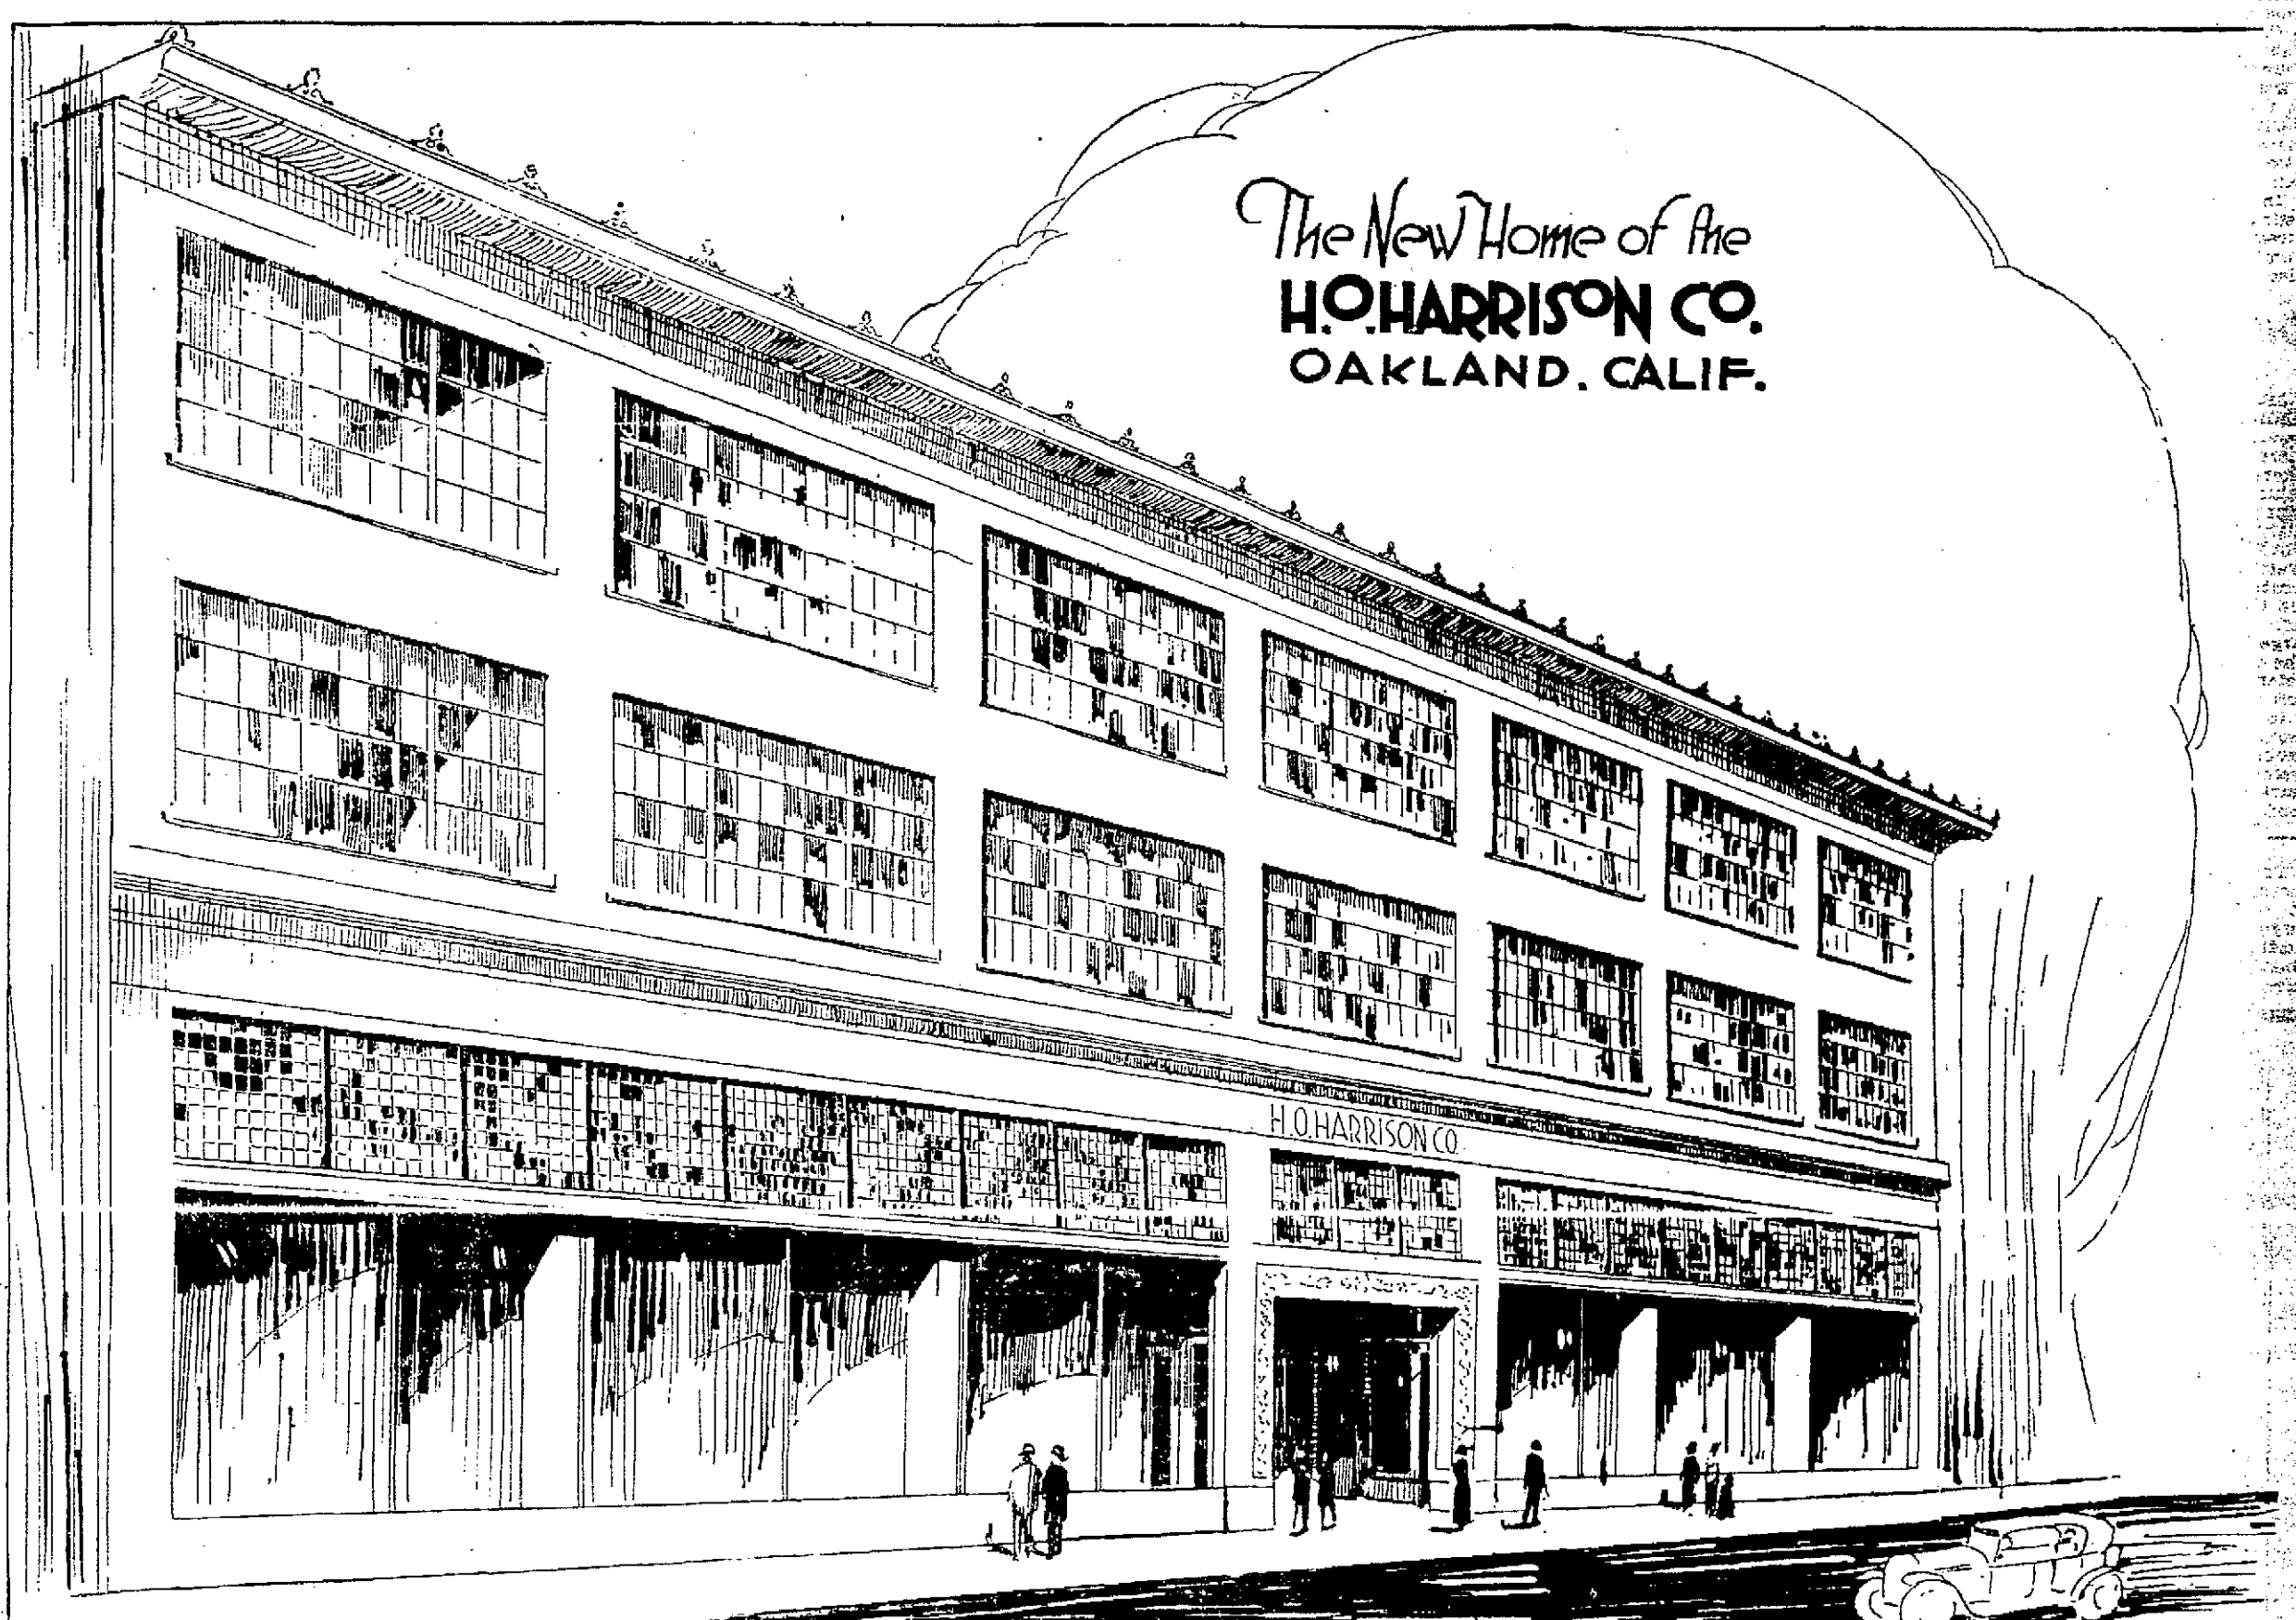

If you want to be a member of the Philip S. Cole Haynes staff in Oakland, the first qualification you must comply with is to be a home-loving married man, or you must be on the threshold ready to take the long march down the middle aisle. And the only exception to that requirement seems to be Charlie Penfield, who claims to be very much single.

If verification is needed for the statement which opens this little yarn, E. E. (Pat) Gleason will furnish it. For "Pat" has just got married. Penfield and Nahl take all the credit and Pat very little credit for the matrimonial step, claiming that they were forced to threaten him with the old-time blue envelope didn't propose to and be accepted by Miss Vida M. Clark. Now Penfield claims that within five days from the moment Gleason's was received, he had hunted up license clerk, later found Judge timer Smith at home and his marital ties bound.

Preceding Pat's little pact Cupid was the marriage, a few prior, of S. K. Lorigan, a member of the sales force, to Virginia Martin.

The only old bachelor left of the staff is Penfield himself. Phil Cole let drop a hint yesterday that Penfield would have to be thinking of taking the long step.

HIGHWAYS TO YOSEMITE IN GOOD SHAPE

CAMP CURRY, June 12.—Motorists who desire to reach the Yosemite Park from Northern California points are advised to take the Big Oak Flat road, while those from Southern California should route their trip by way of Fresno, Madera, Coarse Gold and Wawona, advises Foster Curry, manager of Camp Curry.

"Not only is the Big Oak Flat road shorter, when the starting point is from the northern part of the state, but owing to the fact that it has been open only a few weeks it is in much better shape than the more heavily traveled Wawona route," declares Curry. "Motorists entering the Yosemite via the Big Oak Flat road at the present time will find that they will encounter a minimum of dust for the same reason."

"Of course, if one is starting from Fresno or any point south of that city, the Wawona road is much the shorter way to reach the Valley. Whenever possible, the motorist should enter the valley by one route and make the return trip by the other, for in this way a much greater variety of scenery can be enjoyed, and both the Wawona and Tioga routes of big trees can be visited."

"The heavy snows in the high mountains which are keeping the wonderful waterfalls of the Yosemite region at their best are also holding back the opening of several of the high mountain roads. One of these, the Glacier Point road, which winds from the Valley to the Point by way of Chinquapin will be open about July 1. The other still drifts of solid frozen snow, ranging from three to eight feet in depth, across the road in many places."

"On the Tioga road the snow is even deeper. It being reported in ten-foot drifts at Snow Flat. The opening date for this road will be the same as usual—about July 15."

Although the higher Sierra country cannot yet be reached by automobile, quite a few parties are packing in or hiking in, with Camp Curry as their base. In spite of the fact that the streams are still higher than usual, good catches are reported from the Washburne and Merced lakes regions, which is a veritable fisherman's paradise."

Graphite Is Good Motor Lubricant

There seems to be a general belief among motor car owners that graphite has its application only as a lubricant for gears, joints, etc., and not at all for the motor. This idea is absolutely erroneous; graphite is an excellent lubricant for use in the motor, when the flake form, the proper one, is used in conjunction with the regular lubricant. There are certain forms of lubricant which employ graphite in various combinations with oils, and these are excellent for the motor, the graphite tending to fill minute depressions in the metal.

THE FERRIS SIX, CALIFORNIA'S NEWEST MOTOR CAR ARRIVAL WHICH IS NOW being shown at the Charles Griffith salesrooms. Sturdy of design, it makes an attractive-looking and speedy motor vehicle.

Traffic Show Will Be Big Affair Many States to Send Delegates

The convention of traffic officers and the safety first exhibit, that will be held here in the Auditorium in August, promises to be one of the largest conventions ever held in San Francisco.

Chief Dan Sylvester, head of the Traffic Squad here, and C. De Witt De Mar, manager of the association, returned from an eastern trip this week, and found that there is a sentiment throughout the country in favor of making this the greatest convention ever held for the discussion of traffic problems in all parts of the nation.

Sylvester and De Mar visited over fifty cities throughout this country and Canada, and found that there will be no city of any size in the nation not represented at the convention. Vancouver, B. C., Ottawa and Montreal will send delegates, including their chiefs of police. New York city will send its famous traffic squad, that regulates the greatest stream of vehicles in the world. With them will come a model showing how the new lighting system of signals is operated.

The Rubber Association of America is planning on sending one of the most comprehensive exhibits of tire making ever assembled. This will be shown in the Auditorium. The government has taken countenance of the situation, the departments of commerce and interior, W. B. Lewis, superintendent of Yosemite National Park, has been ordered to attend the convention, by Stephen T. Mather.

From Detroit will come James W. Inches, commissioner of police, and one of the best-known police officials in the country. He is the originator of many safety first ideas. Automobile clubs of America, the A. A. A., has instructed all its associate members and clubs to send as many delegates as possible. This great motoring organization will try and have a model law framed so that states will have something to work on in making traffic laws. When the law is framed the Chamber of Commerce of the United States has agreed to distribute copies to all business organizations.

Sylvester and De Mar took New York by storm. The commissioner of police greeted them with open arms and staged a banquet for them. The mayor agreed to send delegates and the men who will come to this city will be picked in the near future.

From every city in the country that the envoys visited, letters were obtained endorsing the convention and promising to send delegations. Chicago will send a delegation instructed to make a bid for the next convention in the city by the lake.

NEW MODEL GIVEN STIFF TRIAL TRIPS

The new Ferris Six is here. For several months Charles Griffiths, who holds distribution rights, has been awaiting its coming.

The models he now has on display at his San Francisco and Oakland showrooms are the first of the new line to reach the Pacific Coast and will be followed in a few days by a shipment which will include open and closed cars.

Griffiths has been spending his time since the first Ferris arrived trying it out over level roads and grades on both sides of the bay, and expresses himself enthusiastically pleased with the way it performs. "I feel confident that the car will make good in California just as it has made good in the East during the past twelve months or more, since it was first placed on the market, nationally," he declares.

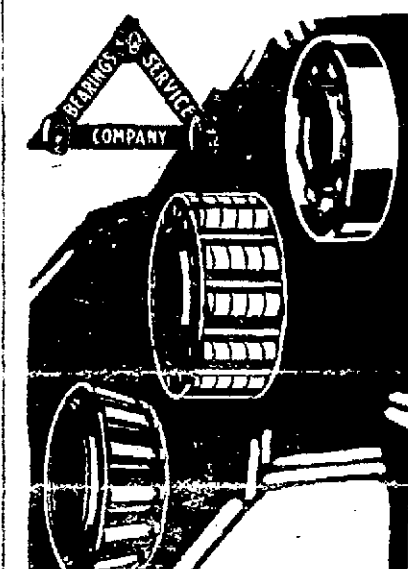

"Ferris will take its place among the leaders on the Coast, or in any other part of the country, for that matter. Substantially designed, with a powerful motor and staunchly built chassis, we claim it to be a quality car. Its individuality of design distinguishes it from every other make of car on the market."

Increased Amperage May Be Obtained

It is possible to get increased amperage from partly run down dry cells by crowding down the material near the carbon element with a small piece of wood and a hammer. This loosens the obstructing material from around the carbon and permits free chemical action. The asphaltum on top of the cell may be sealed again by application of a little heat.

Aero-EIGHT Hot-Blast Manifold Assembly

Operation of Aero-EIGHT Hot-Blast Manifold

The Cole Aero-EIGHT Manufactures Its Own High-Test Gas at No Additional Cost

Perfect Combustion—Smoother Running—Quicker
Get-a-way In Cold Weather—Less Carbon With Aero-EIGHT Hot-Blast Intake Manifold

Quick to realize that in order to get the maximum motor car efficiency something must be done to combat the handicaps imposed by the rapidly deteriorating fuel supply, Cole engineers developed a superheated intake manifold. Through this device, the gasoline was heat-treated before entering the carburetor and properly vaporized to insure smooth running, quicker get-a-way in cold weather, and the elimination of carbon deposits usually associated with the use of low-test fuel.

From this early vaporizer the present highly efficient HOT-BLAST MANIFOLD of the Aero-EIGHT was evolved.

This new device manufactures high-test gasoline as it is required by the motor. There is no additional drain on the fuel supply carried by the car—no subsidiary appliances, nothing to get out of order, nothing to require adjustment.

The heat expended from the time of the first explosion of the engine is utilized to accomplish the results, being concentrated where the fuel is most susceptible.

The quick get-away of the Aero-EIGHT, its smooth operation on low throttle, its exceedingly high mileage per gallon of gasoline, its freedom from carbon annoyance, its adaptability to varying conditions of temperature and its ability to give maximum efficiency even though the poorest test fuel is used are all traceable to the Aero-EIGHT HOT-BLAST MANIFOLD. It is a true revelation.

First, let us take you for a ride in an Aero-EIGHT that you may appreciate its superior performance.
Then let us show you how the Aero-EIGHT HOT-BLAST MANIFOLD manufactures its own high-test fuel while the car is running

TELEGRAPH AVE. NEEDS REBUILDING

A little bit of pavement makes a lot of difference. Take the route most automobiles take when traveling between Oakland and Berkeley, for instance. The logical, most direct route is, of course, Telegraph avenue.

Unfortunately for about a dozen blocks in Oakland, and for an even greater distance in Berkeley, there is no pavement between the car tracks. This has caused the greater flow of traffic to take to College avenue, a less direct and considerably narrower route.

So great has the congestion become on College avenue that it is becoming a dangerous street, particularly during the early "rush" hours.

At present there is no active organized movement on foot in either city to bring about the pavement of the remainder of Telegraph avenue. Eventually, this state of affairs may be remedied, but until this happens College avenue will continue overcrowded and many motorists will be forced to take the more roundabout route from Oakland to Berkeley, or vice versa.

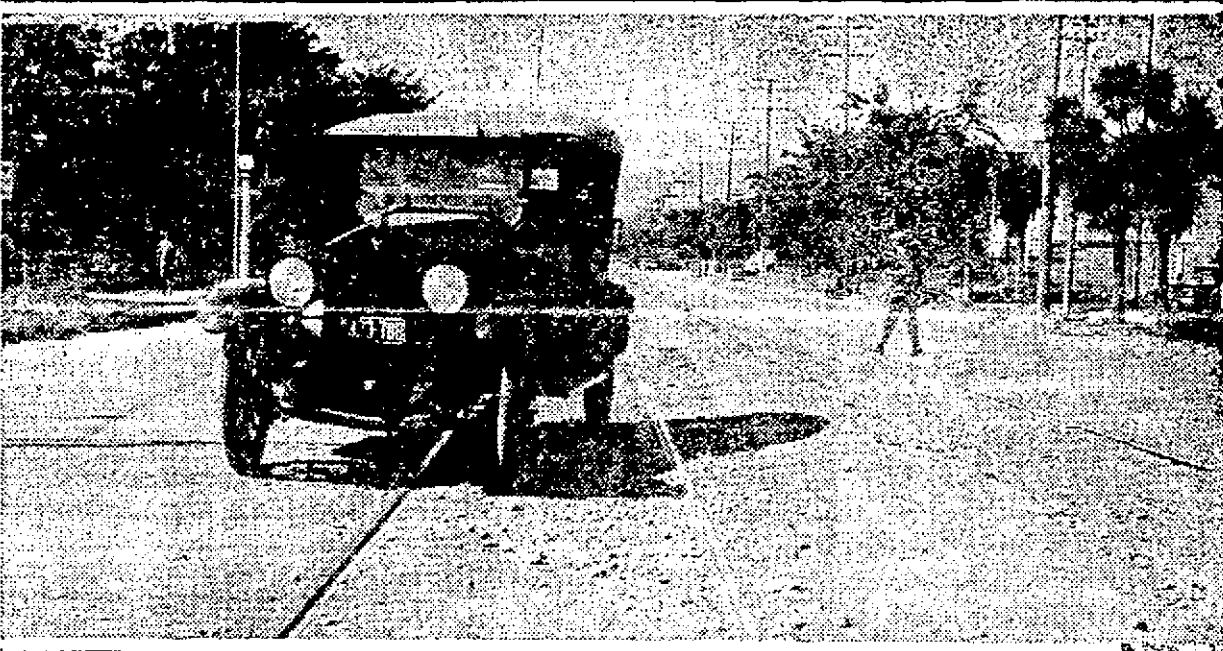

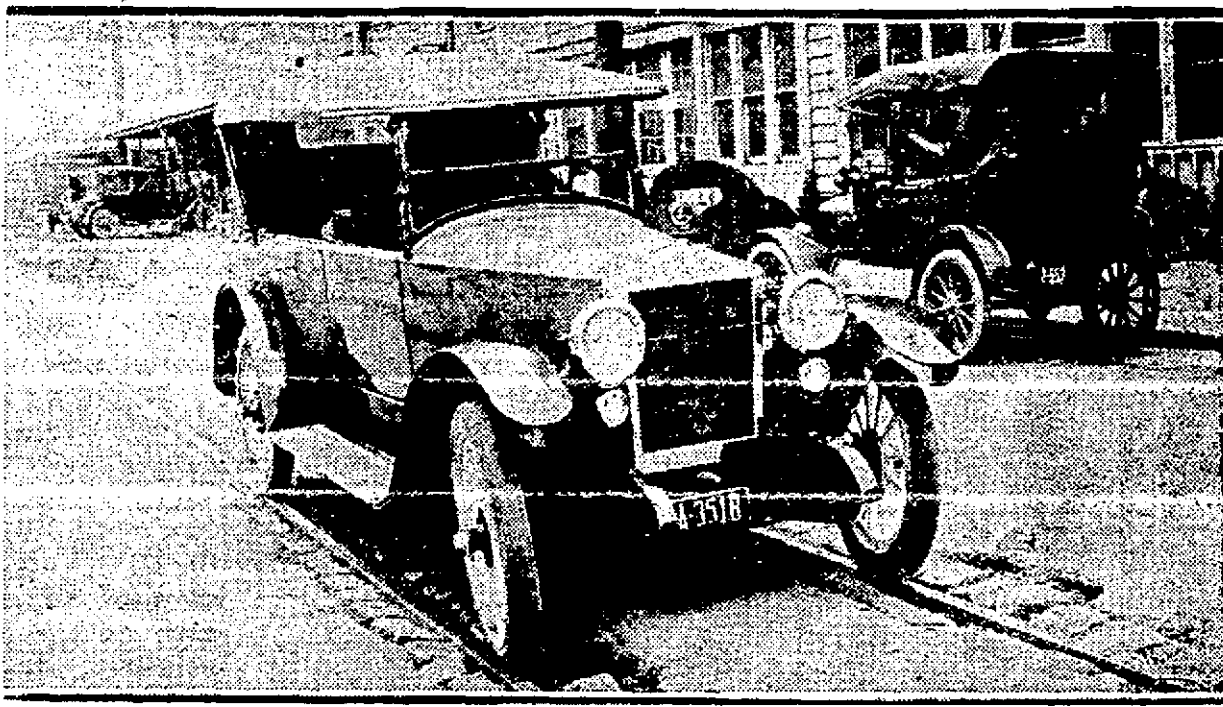

A Vette Six, furnished by the A. W. Rawling Company, Eastbay Vette and Marmon distributors, driven by Sales Manager R. W. Frieble, made a survey of the two Oakland-Berkeley routes, to check up on traffic conditions.

"Motorists who are not thoroughly familiar with Oakland street conditions should be especially careful when traveling along Telegraph avenue at night. From Forty-second street on out, there is no pavement between the car tracks, and drivers will find it rough going unless they stay to the side of the road," warns Frieble.

Clean Grease Cups Help Lubrication

Many car owners habitually neglect the grease cups that are ordinarily fitted to the spring shackles for the lubrication of the shackle bolts. Unless these cups are regularly turned down the grease in the passages becomes caked and hardened, preventing the passage of fresh grease to the surfaces needing it. If at any time difficulty is noticed in turning down these cups they should be removed and the obstructing matter should be carefully cleaned out, and then they should be filled with fresh grease.

THE DISINTEGRATED CONDITION OF CERTAIN STREETS, ON EITHER SIDE OF CAR tracks, similar to the scene in which this Jackson Six appears is not an uncommon one in Oakland. Will some remedy come soon? Motorists wonder, but hope, relief is in sight.

THE ROCKY ROAD TO DUBLIN HAS A MINIATURE LIKENESS ON THE BERKELEY section of Telegraph avenue, where, until new tracks are laid, the present poor condition of road apparently will continue. The car in the picture is a Vette touring model from the A. W. Rawling Company salesrooms.

Yosemite Hiking Party Is Planned

R. J. Kelley, salesman for the Western Auto Supply Agency, has organized a hiking party, and will leave shortly for Yosemite valley.

For several evenings the group of hikers have met and have planned to take along only such equipment as might be needed to tide them over during the trip. Time spent in the army and overseas by Kelley has taught him what should be taken to avoid a heavy pack on the back.

CHUCKHOLES ARE DANGER TO DRIVERS

If you want to save wear and tear on your tires and on your car as well, look out for the chuckholes. Thanks to the activity of the Oakland street department these are getting few and far between, but there are still a few left here and there, and the unheeding motorist will get more than one jolt if he does not watch where he is driving.

"Speaking of chuckholes, anyone who has driven much in San Francisco and in Los Angeles as well as in Oakland, will realize how few stretches of poor paving there are in this city compared to the other large municipalities of the state," declares John T. Thornton of the John T. Thornton Company, distributors here for the new Jackson Six.

"Where there may be one or two bad breaks in the pavement here there are a hundred in other cities on the Coast, while in the East street paving conditions cannot compare with those in California, in any way. Here in Oakland every day sees new pavement replacing old, which would seem to indicate that what chuck-holes remain will not be with us very much longer.

"Down near the waterfront there are several bad stretches the motorist should be on the lookout for one of these series of 'thank-mam's' being on Third street between Webster and Broadway."

"Handsome is as Handsome Does"

An old adage as true today as in all the yesterdays.

No car offers cleaner lines, more truly dignified gracefulness or deeper lustre of finish than does the Cleveland Six. But these qualities would be but a surface, were it not for what is beneath them.

The exclusive Cleveland motor, most highly developed of the powerful over-head type, gives a character of performance in flexibility of power and speed, and in dependability and endurance, that surpasses other light cars.

The sturdiness of its chassis construction, the ease of its control, the soft cushioning of its low underslung spring construction, the certainty of its brakes,—all these qualities add to the comfort and safety of its performance on any kind of roadway, on the steepest hills and in crowded traffic.

Take a Real Ride in the Cleveland, and You will know What a Good Car It Is.

AUTO IS NOW A NECESSITY, NOT LUXURY

"By far the greater part of the people of this country no longer regard the automobile as a luxury. So commonly is the auto regarded as a necessity at the present time that any individual who rises up and brands the modern motor car as a non-essential is given to scornful attention."

"From time to time magazine and newspaper articles have shown the trend of the popular thought in this respect," remarks W. W. Hall, distribution manager in Oakland for Philip S. Sole, 1140 Broadway.

"No one has summed up the present status of the automobile more effectively to my way of thinking, than E. C. Stokes, former governor of New Jersey, and now president of one of the largest banks in the state of New Jersey."

"Ex-Governor Stokes points out the immense value to the nation of the automobile as a promoter of the spirit of contentment and as an effective suppressor of the spirit of unrest. 'No owner of an automobile even though it be a pleasure car, who is able to enjoy its use for his family or his friends, is likely to become a Bolshevik or a Communist,' he says."

"Next to the church there is no factor in American life that does so much for the morals of the public as does the automobile. Formerly the pleasures of life divided the family. The father had one avenue of recreation, the mother another and the children another. Today our roadsides are crowded with family picnics, parties, who carry their lunches with them and who take their outing as a unit."

AGENCY OBTAINED BY OAKLAND MAN

Fred W. Hauger, well known automobile man of this city, who has been making a study of automobile conditions in the east, returned yesterday, bringing with him the agency for an automobile.

The distribution of this car covers eleven western states and the islands and Hauger will announce the name of the car in the near future. He has an air of mystery about him, and many friends all receive the same answer. He will not tell until he is good and ready.

Hauger has organized the Fred W. Hauger Motors Company, Inc., and is building a sales and service department at Larkin and Bush streets.

This building will not be ready for three months, so he has obtained temporary quarters next door where business will be handled until the structure is complete.

Hauger has been in the east for two months looking over all types of automobiles and automobile factories, and inspecting material outfits. His company is in an enviable position, because its president has associated with him as stockholders, representatives of all the companies making parts for the "mystery" car which Hauger will distribute.

BATTERY CARE IS NOT WELL KNOWN

"The storage battery is the least understood of all automobile accessories," claims W. A. Hall of the Motor Electric Company, distributors of U. S. L. batteries.

"When most car drivers actually know what to do when confronted with battery trouble?"

"A little practical information concerning the function of a battery, would come in handy."

"It would pay to know the probable causes leading up to the trouble. Perhaps, for example, the battery is partly discharged due to insufficient charging, or one of the battery cells has gone dead. Possibly the terminals and top connectors are loose or are corroded, or the generator is not delivering the full amount of current to meet the car's requirements."

"In any case you should know where to look if trouble develops. If the trouble is due to it, you can make your own correction, including such things as:

Choked Vents Cause Leaks in Radiator

One cause of leaks in the radiator is that the vents in the top of the radiator are choked. This is the result that sticks protrude from the radiator and the pressure, forcing an outlet, forces the water to the weakest point. A little cleaning of the vent will prevent the trouble.

GIRL DRIVING SMALL TRACTOR

How to "keep em down on the farm" has been partly solved by a Hoosier Lamerette who is invading California on a demonstrating tour for the Midwest tractor, a garden type tractor. The driver is Miss Olive Beaudien of Indianapolis, demonstrator of the Midwest tractor.

Miss Beaudien expects to visit the Green-Brasier-Joker Company distributors for Northern California, within a few days and a number of demonstration events have been planned. "It isn't hard work," says Miss Beaudien. "I can plow all day with this machine and not be tired to attend a dance at night. This particular machine will help the man with small acreage raise more food with less expense—and we all know we must have more food."

Sound Horn On All Mountain Grades, Warning

Motor car drivers are up in arms over the increasing failure of drivers to frequently sound horns on grades like the Tunnel Road, Skyline Boulevard, and in fact, every mountain road in California.

The motor vehicle act requires that proper warning signals be given and ordinary safety of all automobile passengers justifies the use of common sense and the little effort necessary to make known the presence of approaching cars at every turn.

Numerous accidents can be prevented if this precaution is adopted.

MOTOR COURSE IN SCHOOL.

As part of a course in automotive engineering, alterations are being made in one of the public schools in Philadelphia, Pa., for a runway to be constructed so that students can "dissect" a motor car or truck.

UNIFORM WATER HEAT ASSURED

One of the problems that has baffled automotive engineers for years has been that of keeping the water temperature of a car at the point of greatest efficiency. At first, it was largely a hit or miss proposition, mostly miss. In recent years a few models have appeared with radiator shutters operated from the dash. This method is successful if the driver of the car happens to be a good guesser.

Now comes the syphon thermostat which at last solves the question of absolute motor efficiency. This Columbia car, automatically controls the angle of the radiator shutters so that the motor is kept at a uniform temperature of 150 to 200 degrees the temperature at which a motor has been found to run most efficiently.

TRUCKS TO FARMS ARE BIG SAVERS

Motor trucks make a round trip to town possible where in the olden days the farmer was hitching up his team.

Trucks occupy but the space of a farm wagon leaving barn space available for cattle.

Truck milk delivery enables you to keep a schedule and keeps customers better satisfied.

Trucks make full loads of coal and send possible in winter or in the extreme heat of summer, when horses cannot pull more than half a load.

Trucks make it possible to work the horses all day in the field without overworking them at night with an extra haul to town.

Trucks are the coming means of solution of the farm-to-town haul.

R. C. Durant, sales manager of the Chevrolet Company on the Pacific Coast, says that the output of trucks and commercial cars will greatly increase during the fiscal year.

THE NEW

SAVAGE TYPE

CONSIDERED BY MANY MOTORISTS THE BEST FABRIC TIRE ON THE AMERICAN MARKET

FINEST SELECTED RAW MATERIALS

The hearts of the Great Chiefs of my people are filled with a determination to build the best fabric tire on the American market. It is a mighty undertaking; one that would frighten the faint-hearted; but the face of the Great Spirit is turned toward them, and they have succeeded. The wonders performed by the new "Savage" D Type—the tire that is "BUILT TO EXCEL"—is what tells me they are successful.

As a teepee is no better than the skins it is built of, so, as with all other things that have been done to make our big, over-size, flexible, extra ply, hand-built, wrapped tread "D" Type tire, the one best tire on the market, it is natural that my people should be as particular in the selection of raw materials as they are in the actual building of the product.

Only the finest quality of fabric, compounds and rubber will loosen the purse strings of my people. Even as the she bear rejects unclean food for her cubs do my people refuse acceptance of those raw materials that do not reach the high "Savage" standard. And sometimes we have been instructed to re-ship the rejected materials to other tire factories where the standards are not so high; even as carrion is consumed by the vultures.

My people are famed in all the land as being hard to please with raw materials, and great is our pride because of it.

1 SALUTE YOU, O MOTORISTS!

"Little Heap" as a character is symbolic of The Spirella "Savage" Tire Company. By both he is a "Savage"; by adoption, a member of The House of Spirella. Wise for his years, educated in modern ways and imbued with the spirit of the organization he represents, the little "chief" is an authority on the construction of "Savage" tires and tubes. It is fitting that the sterling qualities and the sturdiness of his race are characteristic, too, of the products with which he is associated.

DON'T LIST COMMENDED FOR OUTING

Now that every day sees its quota of vacationists driving off to the mountains for their summer outings, there are a lot of "Don'ts" and quite a few "Do's" that would be well worth heeding by the motorists.

"Driving an automobile in the mountains, and particularly in California's Sierra ranges, is a far different matter than 'chauffeur' around the paved boulevards of a city, and all motorists would do well to remember certain common-sense precautions before invading the land of tall, uncut altitudes," warns E. W. Milburn, San Francisco manager of Greer-Robbins Company, Hupmobile distributors.

"Even our best 'boulevardiers' find this out when they tackle grade after grade of going up on the occasion of their first trip to Lake Tahoe, the Yosemite or some other high-mountain objective.

MISTAKES SEEN
"Some of the mistakes one sees made on mountain roads are obviously those of the novice, but they are dangerous enough to risk mentioning. When behind the wheel, a driver who tries to coast down an honest-to-God hill with his car out of gear. Always keep in power, unless you don't care what happens to your party and your machine."

"If you have to change a tire, be sure to get well over to the side. Otherwise some rival make of car will come along and just naturally try to shove you off the road."

"Never be afraid to sound your horn, even when everything looks lovely. You may feel like an amateur doing it, but unless you know every crook and turn in the road, sound it anyway. The drivers of the mountain stage lines who cover the same grades day in and day out all summer long probably sound their horns or sirens more than the average tourist; they have seen enough accidents and near-accidents to know it pays to play safe."

"Don't park your car just around a curve or in a narrow part of the road. Here, like in many other instances, the driver should assume that every other driver is a combination joyrider, ignoramus and road hog. Experience seems to prove that this assumption is often correct. No matter where you do stop your car or why, always leave it in gear and with the brakes set. More than that, block the wheels."

BAGGAGE TO BE GUARDED
"Don't overload your car and in loading it dispose of your luggage so as to leave your car well-balanced. Careful baggage does not extend more than 12 inches over the running board, often there is barely room for cars to pass when both are entirely free of loads that bulge."

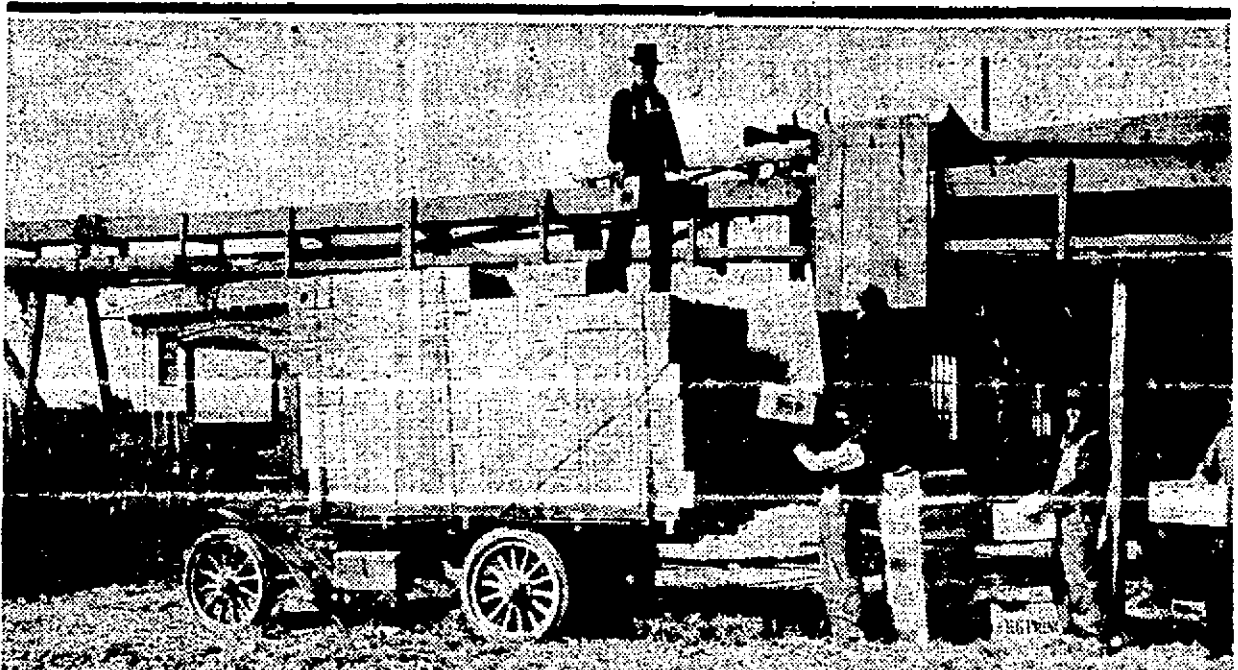

"Carry along the necessary tools and a small supply of extra fuel and oil. Although a hatchet is not standard equipment, it is the best emergency implement to have with one, especially when tackling less traveled roads. Of course for first-of-the-season trips a shovel is of great assistance in getting along. However, at this time of the year, unless one is out to pioneer new routes, neither shovel nor hatchet should be necessary."

"Don't speed; dangers of violating this caution are obvious, as are those of driving on the wrong side of the road. Motorists should remember that carburetor adjustments are not usually necessary."

"A lot of these don'ts seem elementary, but after you have cussed out half a dozen drivers you find violating them the next time you are in the mountains you will agree that they are good rules to cut out and paste on the inside of your windshield."

MAKE TUBES BY YARD.
Inner tubes for automobile tires are made by the yard, and at one large rubber factory in Ohio, a gang of men on a callendering machine rolled out 24,450 yards of tube stock during the month of February.

PICKING, THRESHING, CLEANING AND CANNING GREEN PEAS IN FOUR HOURS time is speedy work, yet this feat is accomplished by H. G. Prince canneries. Clarice Chan Is State Winner in Essay Contest

Miss Clarice Chan, winner of The TRIBUNE prize in the Oakland High Schools' Ship-By-Truck-Good Roads Essay, is accorded additional honors in having been proclaimed winner of the State Contest.

Her essay now goes to Washington, where it will be judged in competition with the winners in every other one of the United States.

Miss Chan's winning story was published in full in the June 6th issue of The TRIBUNE.

The judges in the California contest were State Superintendent of Public Instruction W. C. Wood and two assistants in his office.

PAYING HUGE SUM.

American motor car owners are paying from $1,800,000,000 to $2,400,000,000 annually for operating, maintenance and depreciation costs.

Ordinary ribbed glass, purchased at any hardware store, is an economical and effective glare reducer.

GREATER TRAVEL EARLY ASSURED

"The man who takes the transcontinental motor trip today is never in want of plenty of company along the road," according to J. L. Hawes, who, for several years has made a yearly round-trip between Great Falls, Mont., and California in his Velie six.

According to Hawes: "This summer will see four times as many automobiles on the great transcontinental routes as have traveled them in past seasons, and within a very short time the motorist will be able to get every kind of accommodation he may need at almost any point along these great roads."

"Supply and service stations are becoming more and more numerous each season and the motorist's nightmare of running out of gas or spare tire—and a good automobile."

SALES MANAGER VISITS OAKLAND

R. M. Kelvie, sales manager of the Apperson Company of Kokomo, Ind., is a visitor here. Kelvie is making a trip throughout the west, looking over conditions and making a complete survey of the automobile industry in this part of the world. "For a long time Apperson paid scant attention to the automobile business here in the west, because of limited sales," says Kelvie. "Now with increased facilities we are shipping cars here and the Pacific coast is third largest in distribution in the country."

"California in particular is taking Apperson fasten than we can ship them. During the war we were unable to send cars to our dealers as fast as they could handle them."

TRUCKS ARE PROVING AID IN ORCHARDS

These are days of considerable activity in the Alameda county orchards. Late cherries are being gathered on many ranches in the Eastbay territory, and the apricot growers are preparing to harvest their crop of fruit.

This year as never before, the truck is playing an important part in the actual gathering of the crop, and also in rushing the perishable fruit to the Oakland markets.

"Even the smaller ranchers are beginning to realize the economy that they can effect by using a small truck to expedite work in their orchards," declares H. G. Markham of Markham & Purser, Eastbay Oldsmobile dealers.

"By using a truck, or in case of the larger ranches, two or more trucks, the average farmer can now accomplish from two to three times as much work per day as was formerly possible. In a year or two more, the orchardist who does not employ a truck in harvesting his crop will be considered hopelessly out of date and decidedly in the minority. Incidentally, he will not be able to make the same money, per acre, as his truck-owning neighbors."

"Several owners of small trucks claim that by their use they have saved enough money in the first two years of service to more than pay for the initial investment. It is the truck that keeps running day in and day out that counts during the harvest season, when one day lost can be figured in hundreds of boxes of fruit over-ripened, which means quite a few dollars gone."

oil and having to hoof it to the nearest farmhouse, only to be attacked by the farmer's vicious dog and to learn the farmer has just sold his last drop of gasoline to the last motorist who went that way—this bad dream is fading, and about all the motorist needs now is a small extra reserve can of gas and oil, a spare tire—and a good automobile."

FUELIZERS SAVE 'MILEAGE, CLAIM

"Poor combustion makes more carbon," claims C. W. Hammond, distributor of Prisel Super Carburetor for Northern California. Tests recently made by three automobile men on this fuelizer are said to have proved that in ten days there was a saving of five miles on a gallon of gas and an increase of sixteen percent in power.

Hammond states that there are over ten thousand of these fuelizers now in use in California.

WATER CARNIVAL AT DEL MONTE LURES AUTOISTS

DEL MONTE, Calif., June 19.—The Del Monte Girls' Swimming Carnival, which will be held Friday, Saturday and Sunday of this week, has always been an exciting event for the motorist. On the first two days of the carnival, the girls perform in the picturesque open air Roman Plunge at Del Monte. There is parking space for machines on the drive away around the plunge and the spectators view the girls in competition from their machines. The affair takes on the aspect of a motor show as well as a carnival of swimming for the mermaids of California.

The carnival attracts visitors from all sections and many of them come in their automobiles. This is especially true of Oakland, San Francisco and the surrounding towns.

California Boasts of World's Largest Oak

What Sir Joseph Hooker, an eminent English botanist, declares to be the largest oak in the world, is located in Bidwell Park at Chico. It is a never-to-be-forgotten sight. Motorists who visit this spot always take back with them photographs of this remarkable tree, because not to see it makes difficult appreciation of the size of it. The tree covers an acre of ground and one thousand men could easily stand under it at one time.—The Automobile Blue Book.

NIGHT AND DAY SERVICE IS PLANNED

With the completion of the new home of the local Chevrolet retail branch, announced last Sunday in THE TRIBUNE, a day and night service system will be adopted.

This twenty-four hour service to Chevrolet owners was outlined yesterday by C. H. C. Miller, branch manager, after a conference with R. C. Durant, sales manager of the Chevrolet factory.

There will be a Chevrolet one-ton truck, equipped with parts, tools and rigged as a tow car. This service truck will be operated day and night, a man placed in charge with all night telephone connections which will enable Chevrolet owners and others to get immediate service throughout this territory, no matter what condition the car may be in.

This all night service system has been adopted by Chevrolet retail branches in other cities, and the plan has proved a boon to owners of motor cars of all makes, in practically every case.

A short time ago, Manager James E. Appleby of the Los Angeles branch installed the same system and the move met with great approval on the part of owners throughout Los Angeles county. When the service car makes a trip or tows a car into the service station, no charge is made, this service being rendered free to owners.

Loose Engine Bolts Upsets Alignment

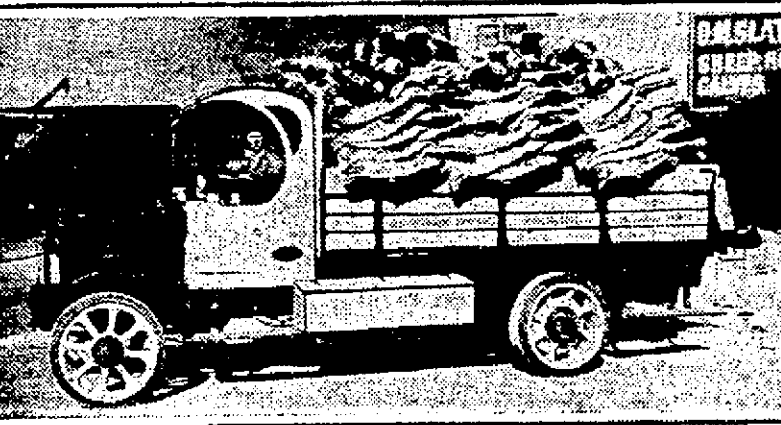

In certain cars a loosening of the engine bolts, those which hold the motor in place, may cause a misalignment of the engine, with serious trouble as a result. Even though the looseness be but slight, it may allow the motor support to hammer and thump. In time this may result in an actual breakage of the supporting arm.

Apply the brakes suddenly only in cases of emergency, for this frequently results in stripped gears.

Branch Opened Here for Lincoln Car Jas. Gray Named Mgr. Murphy Co.

The appointment of James Gray, formerly in charge of the Western Motors Co., as Oakland manager of the Lincoln distributors of the Lincoln car, was made known early last week and news of it was received with delight by scores of Gray's friends in motor car circles.

While little is known of what the Lincoln product will be, those in the know declare it will instantly take first rank with America's finest built motor cars. Henry Leland, head of the Lincoln Motors Co., is internationally known as an automobile designer. He is best identified as the former controlling owner of the Cadillac Motor Car Co. His interest in this organization was purchased a number of years ago by the General Motors Co.

Leland's was record—that of having built the largest number of Liberty motors within a remarkably short period, added additional honors to a splendid manufacturing career.

The present Lincoln car has been a matter of much mystery to automobile men for more than a year, and its appearance is destined to provoke probably the greatest amount of curiosity which has ever attended the debut of a high grade automobile.

In California the three branches which have been operated by the Murphy organization in San Francisco, Los Angeles and Pasadena, have already booked genuine orders for more than 200 models, despite the fact that the price of the car is not known, nor have its mechanical specifications been revealed. The Tribune automobile editor does not question the veracity of this claim, having been shown the list of purchasers in northern California, which includes men prominent in every walk of life.

Gray has taken temporary quarters in the new Konrad Gabel, Inc. building at 325 Twenty-first street. The permanent location of the Oakland branch will shortly be announced by Gray.

WISE MANAGEMENT OF TRUCK FLEETS

"Organization is just as essential to the efficient operation of a group of trucks as it is to any other phase of business activity," according to Merton K. Barber, manager of the Pierce Arrow Pacific Co. "Only by means of an organization can a fleet owner or manager direct the operation of his trucks intelligently and economically."

"The personnel of a fleet organization is divided into two groups, one of which is the maintenance division, and the other the operating division. In some of the larger fleet organizations, an inspection division has separate identity, but in the smaller ones this inspection service is directed by the maintenance division, or is performed by the truck manufacturer himself."

"The maintenance division should be headed by a superintendent who is a practical mechanic. He may have as many assistant mechanics as is necessary to maintain the fleet in good mechanical conditions. Washers and greasers are included in his department, and work according to a well-planned schedule."

The speed limit for automobiles in Japan is from 20 to 30 miles an hour.

New Manager Assumes Charge Of Local Field

L. E. CLIFTON, newly-appointed manager of the Western Motors Company.

Former Soldier Is Promoted to Supervisor of Water Agency.

Announcement was made this week of the appointment of L. E. Clifton as manager of the Oakland branch of Western Motors Company. Kissel and Maxwell distributors. Clifton succeeds James W. Gray, who has left the Western Motors organization to become affiliated with the Walter G. Murphy Company, which is to handle the new Lincoln car in California.

Clifton has had experience in the automobile business here and in Los Angeles. He has been connected with the Oakland branch of the Western Motors Company ever since his return from service during the war. During the months he has been in Oakland he has made a large number of friends who wish him well in his new position.

The latch dogs on emergency brake levers are called upon for pretty strenuous service on occasion and they sometimes break. It is a good idea to have a spare latch dog in the tool box against this emergency.

Air Regulations in Yosemite Described

CAMP CURRY, June 19.—Air regulations to govern the maneuvers of airplanes in the Yosemite national park, were announced today by Park Superintendent W. B. Lewis. Stunt flying of any kind is expressly forbidden in the edict, which leaves punishment of offenders to the judgment of the park authorities.

No airplane will be permitted to take off between the hours of 10 a. m. and 5 p. m., owing to the danger of its convection currents of air which prevail during the warmer part of the day. This rule will be strictly enforced by the entire ranger force in the Yosemite.

Jordan Wins Big Economy Run

Here is a unique story of how a live wire out in San Francisco, named C. D. Rand, stole a march on the Jordan factory.

Without our knowledge, and with no previous notice, Mr. Rand entered a Jordan in the big reliability contest in California. Here is his telegram—

"Jordan wins most remarkable economy and reliability contest ever held under sanction of American Automobile Association on the Pacific Coast. Run made from Stockton to Yosemite Valley and return. Referee Towne awarded perfect score to Jordan whose record was twenty-eight point eighty-five ton miles per gallon gasoline and two seventy-four point fifty-six ton miles per pint of lubricating oil. Contest over mountain roads through snow and muck, considered locally the most grueling contest ever given automobile."

Had Mr. Rand not made good in such a remarkable way, he might be charged with having fired one of the big Jordan guns before the main barrage was ready.

Jordan knew that the big pendulum of American motor car opinion was about to swing from ideas of extravagance to needs of common sense and economy.

For months thousands of Jordan owners throughout the world had been sending in proofs and proofs and proofs of Jordan economy and reliability beyond the ordinary.

A year ago, Jordan foresaw the passing of the big, bulky, ponderous motor car of old. He knew that the man who once found it necessary to choose a heavy car to attain reliability, was looking for a car in which reliability was combined with economy and distinction.

The Jordan weighing but 2800 pounds—of rare charm and dependability—is built to serve the owner over a period of years.

Is it any wonder that this nimble, light-footed, good-looking, perfectly balanced car of personality and style should win in the big economy run?

Some kinds of motor beauty are only surface deep; not so the Lexington.

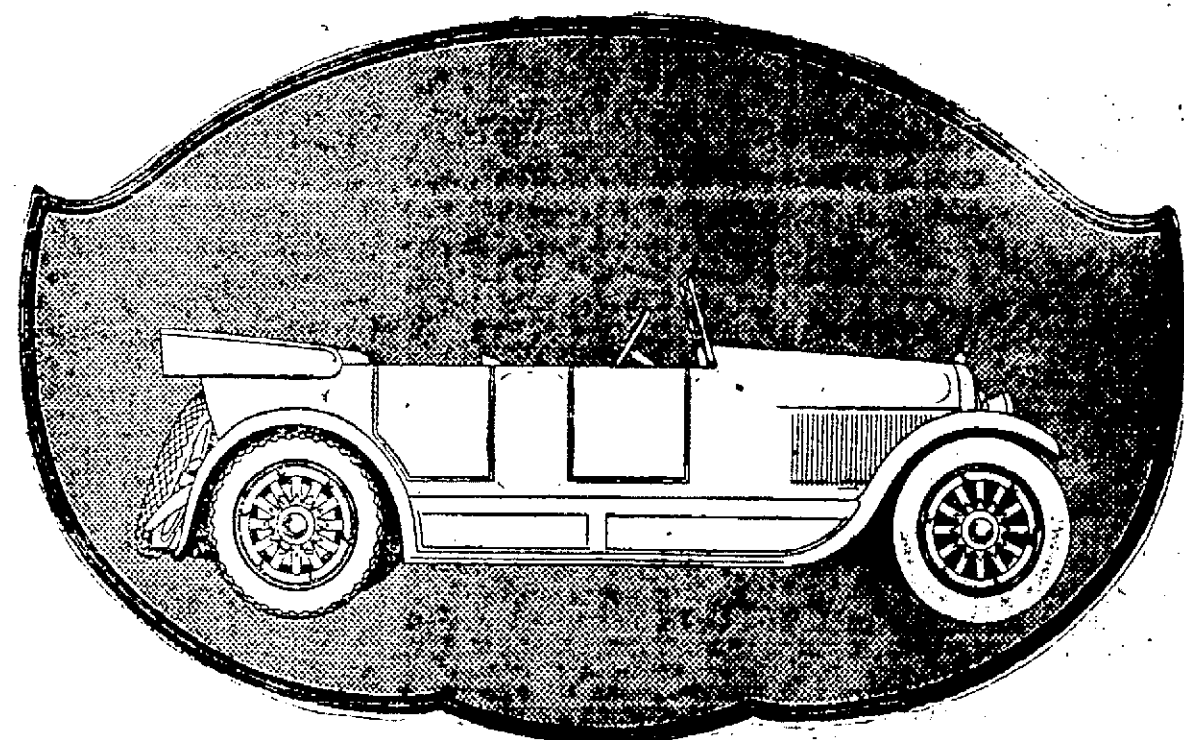

Lexington's handsome appearance is backed up by records of long and dependable service.

A thing of beauty and comfort, Lexington is a joy forever, for it is "all automobile."

more Firestone Cord Tires sold from November 1st to April 30th than for the corresponding period last year—more than five to one.

Because five men are buying Firestone Cords for every one that bought last year—or because the men who tried a Firestone Cord last year are equipping all 'round, including spares, this year.

Because the Firestone Cord Tire, first of the new standard oversize, proved the extra value in more material, greater air capacity—more mileage for your money. Most miles per dollar.

LONG A SUFFERER FROM CATARRH

Mrs. Wm. Brownfield, proprietress of a hair dressing parlor, gives the following testimonial one year after having been completely relieved of catarrh.

Oakland, June 15, 1920.

To Whom It May Concern:

I have suffered from catarrh for over ten years. My nose was stopped up and I had continual headache. My breath was so bad and its odor so offensive that I simply hated to live. I had consulted many doctors and tried almost every known remedy and had failed to get any relief. When I fortunately heard of the Fong Wan Herbs, I after I had drunk his Herb Tea for about two months, I was completely cured. This was a year ago, and up to the present time I have not had any return of the trouble. I am so thankful to this wonderful herbist for thus restoring me to health and happiness that I shall be glad to describe my case in detail to any person interested.

(Signed)

Sing Herb Specialists Relieve Nerve Inflammation

Neuritis, an inflamed condition of the nerves responsible for racking pains in various parts of the body, especially the shoulders and back, is successfully treated by the Sing Herb Specialists.

The congestion which causes neuritis is caused by the secretion of poisonous toxins by organs that are functioning improperly and the circulation of these toxins throughout the system by the blood. The Sing Herbs cleanse the blood and reach the primary cause of the ailment by restoring the organs to normal and preventing further secretions of poisons.

Swimming Tank Gossip

News of the injury of Phil Patterson, popular fancy diver of the Olympic Club, was conveyed to friends of Patterson in Oakland today in a letter received from Dick Duncan, coach of the Yosemite Lodge swimming team, who is Patterson's captain of the organization. Phil was a daredevil diver and in attempting a difficult feat, silver medal winner in some manner slipped, dislocated his back and neck. The result is that he will be out of the water for over three weeks in the care of a doctor at the camp hospital.

At the time of his injury, Patterson was training for the Olympic Games trials, which will be held June 24-27 at Neptune Beach, N. J. Patterson is considered one of the best divers in the State.

Al De Parran, another Olympic Club diver, who last Sunday won the Pacific Association Junior title in Oakland against the pick of the California divers, has been added to the personnel of the Yosemite team, according to Duncan. Patterson's recovery will be a great help and with Patterson back after his recovery, the two will make as formidable a team as any in the country.

Plans are being completed for the big Fourth of July swimming meet to be held in the river between the Oakland and the Vallejo Yacht Clubs. The meet will be the previous day at the Lodge pool.

Later in July and during August, a number of divers will have the opportunity to compete in the bay region in the various exhibitions and championship races. The Olympic Club, Pacific Coast Junior Water Team is expected to be the most likely to make the trip during the latter part of July.

INDICTMENT OF OIL COMPANIES IS PROPHESIED

LOS ANGELES, June 19.—Amplifying his previous statement regarding federal investigation of the gasoline shortage, United States Attorney J. Robert O'Connor tonight predicted that indictments against several California oil companies would be returned by next Friday.

The operations of practically every oil company in the state will be probed, O'Connor said, regarding the charges that "unfair discriminatory tactics" to throttle production have been used.

The chief charge, the attorney said, is that distributing companies are advising operators of wells to keep down production.

EVIDENCE GATHERED.
Universal Service.
LOS ANGELES, June 19.—Charging that some of the largest oil companies in California are conspiring to throttle oil production by "unfair and discriminatory tactics," and that they in a measure are responsible for the gasoline shortage, Attorney J. Robert O'Connor launched a searching probe today with a view of placing crystallized evidence in the hands of the federal grand jury.

O'Connor said today that he hoped to have some of his charges in the hands of the grand jury by Friday of next week and he may ask for indictments that will be of a sweeping nature.

Among the tactics the heads of the various oil production companies are alleged to have indulged in, according to the United States district attorney, is that of advising their men at the producing wells to keep the production down to a minimum.

SALESMEN ACCUSED.
Another charge made by O'Connor is that salesmen of some of the oil companies have been advising the owners of gasoline stations with the statement that they must "buy lubricating oils or we won't sell you gasoline."

The investigation is under the direct supervision of O'Connor and in his probe he has enlisted the entire staff of the agents of the department of justice.

HARDING CLEARS DECKS TO OPEN CAMPAIGN DRIVE

By RAYMOND CLAPPER.
United Press Staff Correspondent.
WASHINGTON, June 19.—Warren G. Harding Republican nominee for president, was off to a running start for the big November prize tonight, a week after his nomination at Chicago.

In one week of activity Harding has cleared away minor matters and is now ready to plunge into the heavier labors of his presidential race. Master strategists of the Republican party will meet with Harding Monday to lay plans for his campaign.

BEST PLANS CANCELLED.
Senator Harding has sacrificed all plans for a brief rest at Atlantic City, in order to pitch into his campaign at once. Tomorrow he will leave for New York for several hours to work on his speech of acceptance, in which his major policies will be set forth. He plans to stay in Washington until July 10 or 12 and then go to Marion, O., for the acceptance ceremonies, which will be about July 15.

Harding conferred at length today with A. T. Hart, national committeeman from Kentucky, ex-senator, John W. Weeks of Massachusetts and Harry M. Daugherty, his pre-convention campaign manager. Reports were current tonight that Daugherty and Will Hays, national chairman, and that both seek to play the leading role in the management of Harding's campaign. One report was that a committee would have been charged with the duty of giving instructions to soft-pedaled talk of any one man "bossing it."

CONFERENCE SCHEDULED.
Monday's conference will be between Harding and subcommittee members of the Republican national committee over plans for the campaign. The date of the acceptance speech will also be fixed and the personnel of the campaign discussed.

Harding's efforts to line up progressives have resulted in numerous conferences with progressive leaders this week and several more are scheduled. Senator Pinckney, Washington, former Bull Moose, and favorite son candidate for the nomination, issued a statement tonight pledging his support to Harding.

"I expect to do everything I can to aid in the election of the Republican ticket," Pinckney said. "It is typically an American ticket." Alexander Moore, former congressman from Pittsburgh, and Louis Roosevelt, supporter, declared "Harding is going better every day."

MAJORITY RULE FOR CONVENTION WILL BE URGED
By HUGH BAILEY.
United Press Staff Correspondent.
SALT LAKE CITY, June 19.—A determined effort is being planned to bring before the Democratic national convention the question of changing the rule whereby a two-thirds vote is necessary to nominate, it was learned today. Chairman Homer S. Cummings and other national committee members are opposed to the change and believe they can beat it. A few individuals expected to take a leading part in the fight for the change. What is wanted is a rule making a majority vote sufficient to nominate, the same as in the Republican convention. The change was proposed at the last meeting of the national committee in Washington, but it was never considered. Now its proponents think that if they can get it before the convention they can carry their point.

The census about this proposed alteration of convention procedure was the high light of convention activity here today. A few individual delegates were straggling in but no solid delegations are expected until next week. Several are on the road, making leisurely jaunts. New York will be one of the first to arrive.

LEAGUE TALK GROWS
There was much interest among the few who were here in President Wilson's interview with the New York World, in which he reiterated that the Democratic convention should make the League of Nations an issue. Few Americans were on the ground, but the question of League of Nations was the one most talked about. Mrs. Mary E. Ford of Los Angeles, a delegate to the convention, declared the president had struck the proper note, that the majority of the women voters, regardless of party affiliation, would ratification of the League of Nations as a measure of assurance against war, and that they would follow Wilson's judgment and advice in all matters.

The national committee on June 25 will hear the arguments over the seat of Senator Root as delegate-at-large from Missouri. Despite recommendation of Root's district convention, the Missouri State Convention refused to credential him as a delegate. A meeting is scheduled for Root's district—Kansas City—today, at which it is forecast the Missouri senator will again be chosen. He is expected to come here and demand his seat, regardless of the state convention having turned him down. This contest also will come up June 25.

SENATOR REED'S CASE
The only other possible contest is over the seat of Senator Root as delegate-at-large from Missouri. Despite recommendation of Root's district convention, the Missouri State Convention refused to credential him as a delegate. A meeting is scheduled for Root's district—Kansas City—today, at which it is forecast the Missouri senator will again be chosen. He is expected to come here and demand his seat, regardless of the state convention having turned him down. This contest also will come up June 25.

KEY ROUTE RUNS
636 TRAINS DAY
INTO TERMINAL

Comparison of traffic handled by the $50,000,000 Pennsylvania terminal layout in New York city and that handled by the Key route in Oakland, shows that the latter is the most efficient. The comparison is made in a report just issued by the Eastbay company. In number of revenue trains handled within a given time the local lines have decidedly the best of it.

The Pennsylvania lines handle, on a normal week day, 459 revenue trains, with 2995 cars, in and out, while 636 trains with 1244 cars make the daily run on the local lines. And with this greater number of trains on the Key, these trains running on 60 second clearance, enter a sub-terminal on a narrow track and make their 35-mile speed on in-and-out runs.

While the Key enters less cars than the Penn. it enters 117 more trains daily and does 75 per cent of the traffic in three hours of each day. On a full day schedule at the local speed of operation the Key would handle 2513 cars.

Besides the Key traffic on its line, the Pennsylvania Short Line trains clear at the Key terminals annually. On a time card unit basis 830 full trains are handled daily for the Key system alone, many of these being consolidated into the 636 above mentioned for convenience of operation.

To accomplish this 148 automatic interlocking, blocking switches and signals are placed on the 332 miles of track between the mole and San Pablo avenue. The 45 block signals are automatic, distanced 213 to 420 feet apart, with tripper arms and 1000 volt electric current for stopping trains even if motormen were suddenly rendered incapable of functioning. The total daily car mileage of the line is 75,458, with a total daily train mileage of 4224.78, for 1244 cars on 636 trains, covering 45.51 miles of track.

MILLERS SEEK RATE REVISION

Attack on transportation rates on grains and cereals has been made by the Albers Brothers Milling company of Oakland, against the Southern Pacific company in a complaint filed with the railroad commission. The substance of the complaint is that the Southern Pacific is charging a higher rate on grains and cereals shipped by the complainant from Oakland to points on the company's lines in California than it is charging a similar milling enterprise at South Vallejo. Complainant alleges that it has $1,000,000 invested in the Oakland plant and the discrimination in the rates known as grain tariff No. 730 and flour and cereal tariff No. 630-B puts the complainant at a competitive disadvantage with the plant at South Vallejo.

Since March 20 complainant alleges that it has paid charges on shipments under these tariffs and paid the discriminatory rate as alleged in the sum of $775. The complainant is asked. Damages antedating this period are also asked. The complainant asked that the Southern Pacific be commanded to cease charging discriminatory rates.

Tests for water shut-off this week numbered 15, as compared with 24 during the previous week. Yearly total to date 559, total to same date last year 549.

Deepening or re-drilling jobs this week numbered fifteen as compared with 14 during the previous week. Yearly total to date 240, total to same date last year 240.

Says Demand Great
For Good Residences

"There is a greater demand for high-class residence property in this community at the present time than the real estate market has reflected for many years," says Wickham Havens, former president of the Oakland Real Estate Board. He has announced that he is building several residences of this type at present.

"For some time the general feature of the market has been the demand for medium-priced homes and until recently the sale of a $20,000 residence has been but occasionally reported. The demand for this class of property has been gradually increasing and is today an important factor of the real estate business."

Wickham Havens, Inc., has just closed two transactions of this character. The beautiful residence property located on the Highland avenue home of H. Bonnell, San Francisco paper manufacturer, to Frank McArthur of Modoc county for approximately $20,000.

Giant New Dry Dock in Oakland Harbor

Three sections of the largest floating drydock in the world anchored just off the marine ways of the Moore & Scott Shipbuilding Company's plant on the Oakland estuary. The Key Route ferry Yerba Buena, which is being overhauled, occupies but half of the three sections.

HOME BUILDING IN OAKLAND IS GROWING FAST

Although in the past Oakland has not kept pace with other cities of the State in the amount of investment in building and loan associations, the city is now showing a marked increase in the number of such associations with resources aggregating more than thirty-seven million dollars.

"There is a call for loans for home building," he says, "which is far in advance of the amount available for loaning. Oakland has three building and loan associations with resources totalling more than a million dollars. In the state of California there are eighty-six such associations with resources aggregating more than thirty-seven million dollars."

"The activity of the association is even greater than in California. He cites the case of New Jersey where there is more money invested in such associations than there is deposited in savings banks."

"There is a demand for more money. Building and loan associations net the investor an annual average dividend of six per cent and it would seem that this would be attractive to the non-speculative investor," Clark says.

REALTY MARKET SHOWS BIG GAIN

A brief analysis of the present real estate market in Oakland for the week ending June 12, 1920, shows a marked increase of sales during the first two weeks of this month over the same period of last year. During the first fifteen days of June, 1920, there were recorded 514 deeds, as compared with 414 deeds recorded in the same period of last year.

The company has prepared their own receipts have been requested to sign, duplicates thereof to be sent to the express office or to the shipper. The object of this new order is to make shipments quicker and safer and to enable shippers to effectually do their work in cases of lost, delayed or damaged shipments.

Noteworthy Page Added to Shipping History by Town South in Sections

Lying just off the marine ways of the Moore & Scott Shipbuilding Company's yards on the Oakland estuary there is a huge drydock which has contributed a new page of history to shipbuilding on the Pacific Coast. It is the floating drydock which was towed to Oakland from Seattle in sections, the accomplishment of which assumed maritime and set a precedent in water transportation.

At present the drydock is operated in three sections. Two sections, comprising the original drydock of the Skinner & Eddy Company of Seattle, are now en route to Oakland. Two more sections are under construction and will be added to the original body, which when completed will be the largest drydock on the Pacific Coast and big enough to take any ship that floats in Pacific waters.

Law Would Prevent Aliens
Controlling Corporations

C. E. Bellows, "Blue Sky" Commissioner, Is Trying to Prevent Aliens from Controlling New Corporations

For the purpose of defeating any attempts which may be made to evade the so-called anti-alien land law of California, Commissioner of Corporations E. C. Bellows has caused to be written into permits a clause which imposes a condition providing that the permit shall be void if more than a minority of shares authorized are issued to persons ineligible to become citizens of the United States.

"This permit is issued upon the express condition that not more than a minority of the shares herein authorized shall be issued to persons who are ineligible to citizenship of the United States."

Under the corporate securities act, the violation of any condition of a permit issued by the commissioner renders the stock void.

Commissioner Bellows decided to place in the permits to Japanese and Chinese companies the safe guard condition, because of the many reports and rumors of efforts on the part of aliens not eligible to citizenship of the United States to evade the laws of California relating to the ownership of land. So far as the corporation department has learned there has been no violation of any of the permits thus far issued to such corporations.

During the past several months there has been an increase in the number of applications by Japanese companies, but Commissioner Bellows declares that this increase is not of proportion to the increase in the business of the department. During the past year, the business of the corporation department has increased between 400 per cent and 500 per cent. Thus, it will be seen that not only have the number of Japanese companies increased but also the companies organized and controlled by others.

"This department will continue to do everything within its power to prevent the violation of the laws of the state and the working of fraud upon the people," declared Commissioner Bellows when discussing the question of the activities of Japanese in the form of land companies. The State Corporation Department has nothing whatever to do with the organization of corporations. Each company that comes to the department already has been incorporated and organized. Its articles are filed on the books of the Secretary of State and it has corporate identity before this department is called upon. The department has to do only with the sale and issue of securities, such as stock, bonds, etc.

The department will continue in the future as it has in the past to insist upon the full compliance with the laws of this state by every corporation coming under its jurisdiction."

HAVENS' ESTATE
BUILDING PLOTS
SALE IS OPENED

In announcing the opening for sale of Willowwood Gardens, recently the magnificent manor estate of the late Frank C. Havens, the Villa Site Sales Company, situated in the Syndicate building, offers large, slightly lots surrounded by the choicest residences in Piedmont for prices which average less than half the amount paid for sites in the immediate exclusive environment.

Some of these lots may be bought for but $20 the front foot, and on most liberal terms, which, with the low tax rate prevailing in Piedmont, appeals to those who are buying homesites in Willowwood Gardens.

An agent will be on the grounds toward evening when the midsummer sunsets will be enjoyed by those who motor or stroll through these wonderful gardens, which may be reached most directly by the Piedmont cars, ending within one block of the Cracker avenue entrance to the grounds. The view from these panoramic lots is without parallel or possibility of restriction. Piedmont mansions set in exquisite gardens enhance the foreground, while Lake Merritt and the bay with its encircling cities spread far and wide.

It was the superb view that brought the highest types of home-builders to Piedmont, and it was the natural park effects, combined with incomparable views, that led the late Frank C. Havens to choose Willowwood Gardens as his home. Now the opportunity presents itself to the public to profit by the example.

PROSPERITY SEEN IN NEW ZEALAND
BY AUCKLAND MAN

G. J. Miller, of Auckland, New Zealand, who broke for the California Almond Growers' exchange, just arrived in San Francisco, reports business conditions in his country highly satisfactory. For the year 1919 exports from there amounted to $298,703,710, while during the same time the country bought from abroad commodities to the value of $153,358,430. The country has more money than ever before, according to Miller, there being a surplus of bank deposits amounting to over $30,000,000 during the first three months of the present year.

"This year," says Miller, "everything points to a better season than last, as shipping facilities have considerably improved, placing the country in a position to export surplus stocks of frozen lamb, mutton, beef, butter and cheese. Considerable quantities of wool hides, sheep skins, tallow, flax and timber are awaiting shipment, in value greater than the exports of last season."

"New Zealand, with a population of 1,135,400, bought 4005 automobiles in the first three months of this year, also she bought, principally of the United States, $50,000,000 worth of dry goods, hardware, foodstuffs and beverages," said the enthusiastic visitor.

Bisagno Estate Sues
To Stay Tax Payment

Seeking to prevent the state from collecting the inheritance tax on the estate of Joseph Bisagno, San Francisco merchant, who died on November 4, 1918, leaving property appraised at $325,933, Northern Sales and William F. Hillegas, the executors, have filed a suit to quiet title.

The complaint filed by Charles A. Gray, attorney of San Francisco, sets up that the tax constitutes a lien upon the estate and seeks to have the lien set aside. The will, which contained 109 bequests, left legacies to numerous officials and prominent people on this side of the bay as well as in San Francisco.

NEWS OF WOMEN AND CHILDREN OF THE GREAT EASTBAY DISTRICT

Oakland Tribune

Sunday, June 20, 1920

At Wildwood, the splendid East Indian home of Mrs. Frank C. Havens in the Piedmont hills, the wedding of MISS SALLY HAVENS and THOMAS JOHNSON GRIER Jr., was solemnized Wednesday evening, assembling two hundred men and women of note from the south and from about the bay. Both families typify the social and commercial life of California. The bridal party is made up of (left to right) the MISSES EVANGELINE GRIER, LORNA WILLIAMSON, MARY KENNEDY, MARJORIE SPRING and MRS. THOMAS JOHNSON GRIER Jr., the MISSES LOUISE BRADEN, maid of honor, SALLY LONG, and MARY HILLMAN of Los Angeles. The two little flower maidens are PATRICIA HAVENS and little JANE HAVENS, the daughters of MRS. HAROLD HAVENS.

CALIFORNIA WELCOME EXTENDED DELEGATES

Women's Bureau at Palace Recalls Old Days at the Exposition

By SUZETTE.

SAN FRANCISCO, hostess to the Democratic Big Chief and Chiefesses and their entourage assembling for the Democratic Convention in the City that sits by the Sea, is opening her heart to them in a manner that recalls the early days of the Panama-Pacific when the advance guards came to us from the four corners of the world, and we took them in.

The rooms of the Women's Bureau in the Palace Hotel, on the fourth floor overlooking Market and Geary streets—the center of Californians' world—are assuming much of the social importance of the Woman's Board in those delectable days.

In the rose and gray suite abloom with June roses, Mrs. George Bass, Chicago's foremost woman, who during the war became a national figure through her Liberty Loan service, receives her callers, holds committee meetings, marshals her hair, keeps in touch with the Executive Committee of the Convention of which she is a member, and directs the woman end of the Big Show.

Mrs. Bass knows the bay country. She was a neophyte when the Biennial Convention of Women's Clubs met in San Francisco ten years ago, becoming a zealous convert before she left for home. Since then she has visited here many times and is a thoroughgoing Californian in her viewpoint. Naturally, she has had but little time for formal social doings, but, possessing the man-fashion faculty of combining play with work, she is seeing much of her friends in the fugitive way that busy people must. Every evening sees the Democratic woman with Mrs. Mary Holland Kincaid, Mrs. Maud Cain Taylor and a few congenial spirits at dinner together at the Palace. "What are they plotting over there?" ask the men who are trying to figure the woman vote just as if it could be figured. But anyway, the new psychology that has to be reckoned with is making the politicians a bit nervous.

Yesterday, Miss Elizabeth Marbury, delegate-at-large from New York, arrived, with a host of friends to greet her. She is no stranger to the City-by-the-Golden-Gate that her associate, Elsie de Wolfe, calls home. Her political acumen ought to be worth something, since she is the daughter of a Teutonic chief in the days of Samuel Tilden and Abraham Hewitt.

As soon as the delegate gets her breath, many informal affairs will center around her.

Another interesting woman who reported at headquarters this week was Mrs. Thomas Walsh of Washington, formerly of Colorado, where the Walsh millions were rolled up. Mrs. Walsh has been entertaining Vice-President Marshall's party at Del Monte, planning to be back in town before the big powwows begin.

At luncheon and tea hours, the Palace is already a-swarm with men and women who, though not of our clan, are already "at home." As for feminine pulchritude and distinction of dress and bearing, well—New York has nothing on San Francisco. In fact I have it from Norman Mack, by proxy. And he ought to know. Mr. Mack, you will remember, was a royal host when he and his charming daughters presided over the New York building during the Exposition. Those were great days, and alas! days that can be no more.

The largest social affair of the week will be the luncheon at the Hotel Oakland, given by the Democratic Club of Alameda County on Saturday, Mrs. Carrie L. Hoyt presiding, when the delegates alternate, delegates-at-large and their entourage will be guests, with Mrs. George Bass the guest of honor. The Oakland hostesses fondly hope that Vice-President Marshall, William G. McAdoo, Governor James Cox of Ohio, and one or two more candidates and candidacies will present themselves for inspection and make their intimated talks. It would certainly contribute to the gaiety of nations if they do. Let's hope.

The tables will represent the various states, with a hostess from each commonwealth in charge—a happy thought to revive old associations and stimulate goodfellowship. Miss Mollie Connors is assisting Mrs. Hoyt in carrying out the club's plans. Mrs. W. H. Kelley is chairman of the reservations committee, assisted by Mrs. A. B. Glazier and Mrs. Walter Font. Mrs. Porter Nichol is chairman of the table committee. Mrs. Francis S. Smith of the souvenirs committee, and Mrs. Edward M. Jones of the flower committee. California fruit and flowers will be used to give physical expression to the welcome the Eastbay will give to the visitors, party affiliations to be laid by in the larger attitude of host and guests. And notice is even served that there shall be no suffrage demonstration.

On the preceding day, Mrs. Ray Lyman Wilbur will entertain at the President's home on the Stanford campus in honor of the visitors and their friends, toward which they are looking with keen anticipation, for Stanford is well-known to Easterners as Dr. and Mrs. Wilbur.

Meantime the social doings that will fill in the chinks before the convention gets down to business will necessarily be rather informal. But the California spirit is abroad to take every stranger by the hand and bid him welcome.

Honoring Miss Holene Butreau, fiancée of Raymond M. Schock, Mrs. Frank Macdonald Ogden was hostess at a tea at her home at the Presidio on Thursday at which the Eastbay was quite as well represented as the San Francisco side. The hostess was assisted in receiving by her mother, Mrs. Alice M. Butreau and Mrs. Emerson Spear, William E. Egan, George O'Brien, John Gretnan.

Both girls and men "stood up" handsomely.

To be sure, the bride is a beauty, and competition had no terrors for her, so her group will long be remembered as quite the handsomest bridal party of the year.

Then there were a good-looking pair of parents to round out the picture. Wickham Havens gave his pretty—and his only—daughter into the keeping of the groom, and Wickham is not the least good-looking of the Havens clan. And Mrs. Havens, in a gown of dark silver cloth, very low in the back, with delicious little grapes worked out in pastel tones holding the overdruss of silver, was stunning, the tone of her frock the true note to complement her white hair and dark eyes.

The bride's gown was simple as became so young a bride—a bride who never "came out." It was of white satin with a wonderful overdress of rose-point lace. Orchids and gardenias made up her bouquet. The color note necessary to "make" the picture was supplied by the gowns of Mrs. of the party—short, bouffant satin and tulle—in rose, orchid and turquoise.

The upper drawing room where are some of the finest examples of old Indian carvings, soft-toned lamps and old rugs in America, was simply decorated with masses of Spanish broom, as were the tea rooms and verandas that open off the big chamber. The living room, where the service was read—the amazing room on the lower floor that commands the oak-grown canyon on the estate—was equally simple with roses and broom. Brides' roses graced the bride's table in the old oak dining room.

Altogether, the personnel, the accommodations and the setting of the wedding made it an affair that will go down in the social history of the Eastbay. And the dinner-dance that blew away the villainous chill that will persist at weddings was another outstanding note.

Mrs. Ralph Harrison, widow of Judge Harrison, jurist and scholar.

HAVENS WEDDING

"Wildwood," the East Indian home of Mrs. Frank C. Havens—quite the most distinctive establishment in all the Piedmont hills, where noble homes are scattered generously wherever the Golden Gate lies in the vision—found its highest and loveliest usage on Wednesday, when eloc-eyed Sally Havens became the bride of Thomas Johnson Grier, Jr.

Assembled to witness the wedding were representative men and women from the south and from both sides of the bay, the Havens family typifying the social and financial development of the Eastbay country, and the Griers the old mining interests of California, when Grier pere was one of the leading figures in the picturesque era when mining was king.

Such a lovely entourage as escorted the bride to the dramatic spot

THE AFTER-SMART of SHAVING IS ALLAYED BY SANTISEPTIC

Many men who would like to shave themselves, dread the after-smart caused by using the razor daily on a tender skin. To all such we recommend Santiseptic Lotion; it not only allays the smarting and soreness, but it acts as well as an antiseptic, protecting the face from infection. The sense of security from infection from the use of Santiseptic is especially reassuring. Santiseptic, too, is delightfully cooling and refreshing; it leaves the skin with that soft, velvety finish which bespeaks the healthy, well-groomed man. There is no shave "too close" when Santiseptic is used. The odor of Santiseptic is sweet and clean. Unlike many preparations, it is not sticky. To use it in your daily shave is to enjoy a real luxury. Santiseptic is daily produced at most drug and department stores. If you cannot secure it, send 50 cents, with dealer's name, to the Eberhart Laboratories, Portland, Ore., for full-size bottle, postpaid.—Advertisement.

Last Monday evening being Flag Day was selected as the most appropriate occasion to tender the newly elected grand vice-president, N. D. G. W., Dr. Victory A. Derrick of Aloha No. 106, N. D. G. W., a fitting reception by Past Presidents' Association No. 2, N. D. G. W., Alameda county at Native Sons Hall, Oakland. For the first time in the history of the order, Grand Vice-President Derrick did not have an opponent for the office and is in direct line for the highest office in the order, grand president.

Much praise is accorded the committee arrangements, Anna Silva and Sarah Deary of Brooklyn Parlor, No. 157, N. D. G. W., for the program, table decorations and sumptuous banquet served in honor of the distinguished member of the association.

Presentations were made and responses given by the grand vice-president, Past Grand President, Addie Mosher and Mary Hatherly, president of the Association. A feature of the evening was the reading by Anna Silva of a poem written by James Cronin of Fruitvale Parlor, N. D. G. W., dedicated to Dr. Derrick. Past Presidents' Association No. 2, N. D. G. W. is rapidly growing, being composed of Past Presidents of all Alameda county and various other parlor through-out the state.

Theatrical Offerings In Oakland Present Wide Range of Choice

At the close of the engagement of the Richard Walton Tully play, "Keep Her Smiling," which will start a three-day run Thursday, June 24, the Liberty playhouse will be shut down for five weeks for renovation and repair.

Mrs. Fiske opens Monday at the Liberty in "Miss Nelly of Old England."

Lums and more lums can be seen at the Columbia when a bevy of beauties "shake the shimmy" in "The Shimmy Dancers." Henry B. Walthal, considered by many to be one of the greatest actors of the screen, opens at the Broadway in "The Confession."

The T. and D. is offering a James K. Hackett and Marjorie Ransome production and the usual musical melange. Classic dancing brought to life was interpreted Saturday night at the Greek theater, University of California, by Ruth St. Denis. That heavenly, old fashioned fellow that everybody likes, Will Rogers, will draw in "Yes, Yes, Yes" at the American this week.

Dorothy Dalton of daredevil fame, and Hank Mann the comedian, are Franklyn attractions, while the Kinema gave Robert S. Brinkley a South Sea Island carnival photoplay. Here is a thumb-nail guide for ready reference to the week's bills:

President Is Ardent Movie Fan Fond of Real Police Thrillers

WASHINGTON, June 19.—President Wilson during his illness has become an ardent movie "fan." Hardly a day has passed since he recovered sufficiently to leave his bed that he has not witnessed one or two reels. The President showed a decided fondness for comedy and at least one good one is given at every performance.

He likes the detective film just as he likes to read good detective stories in books. Often, also, but not as often as the comedies and

TRIBUNE FILMS CHAMPION FOR T. & D. SCREEN

"Five Minutes with Jack Dempsey" features the TRIBUNE-T. and D. News Weekly's events at the T. and D. theater. These are the first pictures shown of the American idol and heavyweight title holder since his acquittal in a federal court.

Dempsey is shown leading a tour of newspaper men through the grounds of his new home on Perry street.

Other scenes on this week's TRIBUNE-T. and D. News Weekly show some of the notables who attended the mock G. O. P. convention held by the Chamber of Commerce at the T. and D. theater. Columbus Planning War on Rat Population

COLUMBUS, O., June 19 (By the United Press).—A drive is on to reduce Columbus' population—of rats and mice.

If plans of J. L. Nichols, of the biological division of the Washington Department of Agriculture, pan out, the number of rodents in Ohio's capital will be reduced by 500,000 in six weeks.

Barium carbonate will be the poison. It will be sprayed with food as bait, first in the city's market houses, then in the downtown section and finally in residential sections. Rats are said to be prone to seek the air after particles of the poison and there to die.

Chamber of Commerce workers, boy scouts and school children are to assist in the anti-rat campaign.

Paris Excited by $5000 Hat Envoy in Bad With Milliners

PARIS, June 19.—Parisian milliners and modistes are all excited about that $5,000 hat which the American National Milliners' association wanted to give to Madame Deschanel.

Frankly, they're just going of curiosity to know what a $5,000 hat would look like. A hat like that kind has never yet existed at Paris even with the present H. C. L.

As a consequence while Ambassador Jusserand may have made himself solid with President and Mme. Deschanel by the masterpiece of diplomacy with which he said "no," he's got himself in awfully bad with Parisian milliners and modistes. They would much have preferred to have had him make such a "faux pas" of the whole affair that Madame Deschanel would have been obliged to accept the hat, so that

Gems Gift or Loan? Court Will Decide

Argument was concluded before Judge L. S. Church yesterday in the suit of A. P. Hanson to recover diamonds from his former wife, Mrs. Hanson, who he claimed he had "loaned" her to wear until they should be redeemed by Mrs. Hanson. Mrs. Hanson says they were a gift outright. The stones are worth several thousand dollars.

Phillip M. Carey, attorney for Mrs. Hanson, charged a conspiracy existed between Hanson and Mrs. Hanson, by which Hanson advanced the $200 alleged to have been loaned on the jewels to that Mrs. Hanson could take them out of pawn.

A. C. Agnew and A. Donovan, attorneys, argued that the evidence showed that Mrs. Hanson knew the diamonds were not a gift. Judge Church took the case under advisement.

SIX CHILDREN FATHERLESS IN ROW OVER DOG

SEATTLE, June 19.—Six children, 2 to 11 years old, are fatherless here today as the result of a quarrel over a dog. Peter Angle, 50, the father, was shot and killed by Charles Davis, 60, a dog dealer, who had loaned an animal to Angle some months ago and over which a misunderstanding arose.

The quarrel was renewed last night when Angle accused Davis of stealing a dog from him. The 11-year-old son of Angle is the only one in the family that knows of the tragedy, as the mother is in a hospital awaiting the arrival of the seventh baby.

ALARM OF FIRE REVEALS HIDING PLACE OF STILL

NORWELL, Mass., June 19.—Fire has raised ructions ever since the burning of Rome, but the apothecary of its disability, the tanklessness was reached when flames led to the discovery of two stills at Norwell. Still the alarm was not a still, but the effect was the same.

The fire was in a house on the William Lapham estate and the firemen found considerable raw material strewn about near the stills. Deputy Sheriff Condon was notified and seized the entire "works."

Samuel Stutz, habitant of Detroit, was arrested as a father of the "works." The fire, it was said, started from the still lamps.

JUNE 20-26.

Lord Baltimore sang with great feeling that song "Maryland, My Maryland," on June 20, 1832, the whole territory having been granted to him. The first steam vessel to cross the ocean arrived in Liverpool June 20, 1819. William Penn arrived in New York June 21, 1681; American army arrived in Cuba same date, 1898. Forts at Santiago were bombarded June 22, 1898. Clarence Eddy, organist, was born June 23, 1851. On June 24, 1813, Henry Ward Beecher was born. The day is called Midsummer Day. South Carolina was readmitted to the union June 25, 1865. Sereno E. Payne, lawyer and Congressman, was born June 25, 1843.

EAT, DRINK, AND BE MERRY TO DAY - CAUSE TOMORROW WE'RE GONNA FLOOD!

THE DEMOCRATS ARE COMING.

From the slow and muddy Wabash Where the moon is said to shine, From the Borough of Manhattan Where they favor beer and wine, From the cottonfields of Georgia, And the Louisiana flats Where down to every fence post Folks are registered Democrats: Some are chawin' rank tobacco, Some are smokin' long cheroots, Some are wearin' Windsor neckties, Some are wearin' Congress boots, Some are girded up for battle, Some are mild as ginger ale, Some have ruddy-tipped proboscis, Some are brave, and some are pale, Full of pep and full of ginger, Out to have a load of fun— While they may—for in November Their rejoicing will be done.

The San Francisco merchant who was treed by a pig up in the Feather river country should see to it that his name is not included in the list of those who are boycotting pork.

Man named Whelstone has been arrested at Eureka. Sharper, likely.

Some things we would like to have the Democrats see while in Oakland.

The ducks, or the place where the ducks are when they are. Council member in evening clothes at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The moustache of John Davie. Daily auto race of U. C. students up Telegraph avenue. Picture of our bascule bridge.

Parade of recall petitioners with drawn notebooks and pencils poised. Regular shift of moral squad to the outlying precincts. Former police officers with writs of mandate. Commissioners nailing down seats in city hall. Bery of woman bandits in picture hats.

Radical procession of citizens in pursuit of the high end of things.

If Frank M. Silva is to be the new United States District Attorney, why not a little serenade by the famous Silva-toned cornet band?

If the police ever catch the burglar who stole the bottle of perfume, the powder puff and the hair of Don lions they should see to it that he has both wrists soundly slapped.

IT SAYS HERE - AN INDIAN DEMOCRAT OPEN YOUR EYES TO BE NOMINATED FOR THE LEGISLATURE

IF HE'S AN EXTRA GOOD ONE, HE'S WORTH IT.

An Indiana Democrat spent four cents to be nominated for the state legislature. Let an opportunity for an investigation be overlooked why not charge him with being a cheap politician?

During the dull days of the convention delegates might like to drop in to see the Oakland council in action.

One of the resorts advertises "swimming from hot to cold water without getting out of the river." It is preferable not to swim in the air or on the bank.

The fact that Iceland has no street cars or railroads would seem to preclude any chance for a fare comparison.

The dark horse, as doubtless has been remarked before, never says "nay."

TAMMANY VOTE AWAITS CAUCUS, LEADERS STATE

CHICAGO, June 19.—Full of ideas as to golf, following several days of pill pounding at French Lick, but without any very definite ideas as to what is likely to happen at San Francisco, the Tammany Hall leaders, Charles E. Murphy and Governor Smith, arrived in Chicago today en route to the coast.

McAdoo having eliminated himself, it is evident Tammany is ready to center its interest on another candidate, hearing an administration judge Palmer has not shown enough strength to date to cause any concern and the Tammany fire is as yet undetermined.

Murphy, as usual, would not discuss politics.

"Looks like he says, a poor man can't afford to run," was his only comment on the McAdoo decision.

"Sounds like he meant it," was Governor Smith's comment.

"It looks like a real old-fashioned Democratic convention," said Smith, "and anybody's race as it stands."

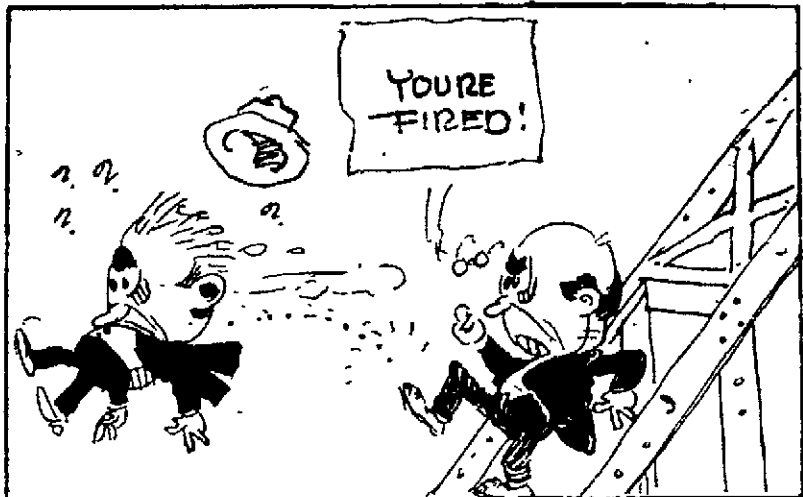

The New York delegation will caucus soon after the arrival of Smith and Murphy in San Francisco, but until new lines are drawn to fit the McAdoo withdrawal decision on any definite program will not be reached.

The only certainty to date is that New York will support any movement for a "wet" platform plank and in view of the Tammany opposition to an administration candidate the Tiger may be fighting Wilson and Bryan at the same time.

FIFTY YEARS FROM NOW

John Miller Jr., Webster street bridge tender, was suspended by the county supervisors this morning at the conclusion of an investigation of the charges made against him several weeks ago. He was charged with having refused to open the bridge until after an Oakland-bound liner had been reported by wireless to be within ten knots of the Golden Gate.

The United States weather bureau has just issued a calendar containing weather forecasts for the coming century. On December 28, at 3:30 a. m., 2012, there will be a cloudburst in Peru and one in Arizona. The greatest way of municipal progress was suggested today by one of the speakers at the Chamber of Commerce meeting at the Hotel Moonshine.

"We have been struggling along for years," said the speaker, "steadily growing year by year. Each city around the bay has progressed rapidly. There is something lacking, however," he continued, "and that something is consolidation of the Eastbay cities." He was greeted with cheer upon cheer.

Dr. Horaninus Hoosierfrassen, who has just returned from his second aerial trip to Mars, relates a story of adventure. While stopping over to make some repairs on the northern continent of the moon, which, as seen from the earth, is the portion just above the "old man's" left eye, he was attacked by a tribe of Eskimos.

Dr. Hoosierfrassen said that on his first trip up he dined with the Eskimos chief, and that while awarding one of the chief's servants for some service he rendered he slipped the fellow a dollar. In the meantime it was discovered that the dollar was a Mexican coin,

Alameda Becomes Center Of Storm in County and City Consolidation Plan

The city of Alameda has suddenly become the storm center of the city and county consolidation movement, and what that city can do and will do has done in connection with the proposed election to form a consolidated city and county government is the nub of the news situation.

It seems fairly well settled that Berkeley will try to form a city and county government of its own and Supervisor D. J. Murphy of Livermore says that his districts will try to join Santa Clara county if they can not remain in Alameda county as now constituted. But what would become of Alameda and what that city would do should the consolidation proposition be submitted is the most absorbing news feature of the situation as it developed yesterday afternoon.

The particular incident that brought Alameda into the spotlight was a statement issued by W. J. Locke, city attorney of Alameda, in which he declared unequivocally that the state legislature would be able to annex or transfer Alameda to the city and county of San Francisco. This statement substantiated the position taken by Supervisor W. J. Hamilton before the board last Thursday.

STATEMENT BY LOCKE.
The statement of City Attorney W. J. Locke is as follows:
Under the provisions of Section 774-1/2, Art. XI of the constitution, if a city and county government should be formed of a less area than the original county, leaving any city under 40,000 inhabitants separated from the largest area remaining, then the legislature may transfer such city to any adjoining county whose exterior boundary may be contiguous thereto.

Now, then, the city of Alameda adjoins the county of San Francisco, the southwesterly boundary line of Alameda forming the northeasterly boundary line of San Francisco. In fact, the tide land, annex to San Francisco. The city council of Alameda, a few years ago submitted several questions to the voters of the city at a general municipal election, one of which was whether they would be annexed to San Francisco or Oakland, and San Francisco won by a large majority, something like 1200. The questions submitted were not binding and were only placed upon the ballot to test the sentiment of the voters, and they voted to annex to San Francisco. What was done at that time, when there was no contest on and no ill feeling, could be done again, particularly if there was an unpopular alternative offered.

But the question is the one that confronts all Americans—what is best for the majority of the people involved. It is a question of what is best for the people of Alameda, county as a whole. I believe in some form of government that would embrace all, and would be just to all, and would reduce expenses and taxes. But I am unalterably opposed to anything that will divide Alameda county, the third largest county in the state. We have not got the time necessary to frame a charter of the right kind and have it presented to the next legislature for ratification, and we want no half-baked charter.

"Now is the time to get together and harmonize all conflicting inter-

Bugs Are Attracting Visiting Artists Fisher About to Paint 'Alameda County'

ALAMEDA, June 19.—Bugs, and not beautiful girls, interested Harrison Fisher, the artist, when he visited the City Bacteriological Laboratory this week in company with Dr. Arthur Hieronymus, a boyhood friend.

Fisher is visiting his aunt, Mrs. William Behrens 1810 Sherman Street, making his annual pilgrimage to the city where he was a lad. On Wednesday last, he passed the day with Doctor Hieronymus, visiting all the departments of the city hall. He was particularly interested in the laboratory, and spent a half hour peering at slides under the microscope and inquiring of them from Mrs. L. J. Ellerton, city bacteriologist, before trying to force something upon any one.

It is said that both San Leandro and Hayward will oppose the calling of an election at the present time, and that they will appear before the supervisors Monday.

The board of trustees of Piedmont has taken a stand in opposition to the calling of the election.

FRANKLIN

SAN FRANCISCO, June 19. This city, in handling the Democratic convention, will be wise if it profits by the mistakes of Chicago, according to the opinions expressed by delegates, newspaper men and spectators who have returned from the Republican gathering.

The chief offenders were the hotel proprietors, who levied all the traffic would bear, and then some. The prevailing rates for a room with two occupants was $20 per day, although one or two smaller hostels cut the rate to $15, with a $12 charge where but one person was accommodated. A number of the more fashionable hotels on Michigan boulevard exacted a higher toll from those willing to stand the gaff. The leading restaurants entered into the spirit of "hospitality" displayed by the big city on the lake, and raked in a few easy shekels. The taxi-cab rates were not exorbitant. Within the Coliseum the arrangements were execrable. The rows of chairs for delegates were so close together that in order to reach a seat not on the aisle every delegate, lucky enough to be already placed, would be compelled to stand up in his or her chair while their less fortunate colleagues squeezed by to the seats allotted. The same difficulty was experienced in getting out. Another very annoying condition was due to overcrowding. Large numbers were admitted who were not provided with seats, with the inevitable result. Frequently it required great effort on the part of a delegate to reach the seat to which he was entitled. This was particularly annoying to the women delegates. With fifteen thousand or more in attendance, a large number of which were women, there were but two small ladies' dressing rooms. Such an arrangement was inexcusable. If a delegate temporarily left a seat it would frequently be occupied by an outsider on his return, and the police had to be called upon to remove the intruder. This is why delegates left Chicago in a somewhat unhappy frame of mind.

Effect on Senatorial Race

The results at Chicago will exercise a decided and important bearing on the present senatorial contest in California. Hiram Johnson, who will undoubtedly seek re-election to the United States senate two years hence, cannot afford, his close friends declare, to support a northern candidate. Failure to recognize the South at this juncture, they aver, will seriously handicap Johnson when the campaign of 1922 opens with both senators hailing from the north. Southern California will be insistently clamoring for recognition—a recognition to which that section is justly entitled with its governmental projects and varied industries so vitally affected by national legislation. From inside sources it is divulged that Mayor Ralph will be in the race for governor two years hence, and he possesses many elements of strength. This further complicates the situation and it doesn't require an ouija board to foretell that a political uprising is due in 1922 that will bode ill for the return of Senator Johnson to the upper house if the senatorial toga does not now fall upon the shoulders of a favorite south of the Tehachapi. Recent events have made Senator Johnson a greater national figure than he has been since he entered the senate. At Chicago he dictated the important League of Nations plank in the platform. If he campaigns for the ticket, which he is honor bound to do, he will gain a wide acquaintance throughout the country and add to his popularity. Republicans who objected to the Californian because of his past party record will be estopped from longer urging that objection which was so potent at Chicago. Recognizing all these facts it is but natural that the friends of Senator Johnson should be turning their attention to the senatorial situation.

Sister Clara Amuck in Texas

Anent the same subject an amusing incident occurred at Chicago. Just before balloting began an excited delegate came to the section where the Californians were seated and complained that word had just come from Texas that Clara Shortridge Foltz of Los Angeles had been in that State lambasting Senator Johnson with that facility of expression and bitterness of tongue for which she is noted, and that Johnson's candidacy had been injured. In the course of her fulminations she had gleefully exclaimed that while in California, for obvious reasons, she had been muzzled and could not give vent to her real feelings, but that in the free air and vast expanses of the Lone Star State no one could still her voice. As brother Sam had declared himself in print to be for Johnson, and to prove his fealty had himself photographed in the act of shaking hands with the junior senator, word was sent to San Francisco that the voice of sister Clara, reverberating over the plains of Texas, must be silenced or the historic picture of the handclasp between the senator that is and the senatorial aspirant must be turned toward the wall. The incident caused no little amusement among the California delegates. Whether

Sam induced Clara to forthwith stop her Texas stunt of spilling the political beans has not been recorded.

It Might Have Been

There is one Republican pre-convention incident, until now unpublished, that might have been pregnant with consequences. The week before the convening of the Chicago convention Senator Boise Penrose, through J. T. King, sent word that he would be pleased to have Senator Johnson call at his home in Philadelphia. It will be recalled that King was the Penrose spokesman during the convention, a private line connecting King's room with a telephone at the bedside of the Republican leader. The California candidate refused the invitation, although his advisors who were then in close touch urged an acceptance. It was pointed out to Johnson that as Senator Penrose was a colleague, a visit under these circumstances would not cause great comment. It was also about this time that Johnson delivered several addresses in Pennsylvania, and a courtesy call upon one of the senators from the state in which he was speaking, who was confined to his bed by illness, would not have afforded an excuse for criticism even on the part of radicals. Senator Johnson persisted in his refusal, however, and now there is much speculation as to what might have resulted from the call. Penrose controlled the seventy-six votes of Pennsylvania. The other senator from the Keystone state, Philander Knox, is a close personal friend of the Californian, their families being on the most intimate terms. Where political post mortems are held the unaccepted Penrose invitation will figure as the wise ones speculate on what might have been.

The Next Convention

The Democratic National Convention will be composed of 1092 delegates. The Republican convention was composed of 981. The two-thirds rule has prevailed in Democratic conventions time out of mind. This, it is of course understood, means that it requires the concurrence of two-thirds of the delegates to nominate. The man who becomes the Democratic candidate must receive 728 votes. In Republican conventions it requires but a majority. Repeated efforts have been made to change the Democratic rule. The attempt is to be renewed in the forthcoming convention, according to some of the preliminary news reports. If the majority rule had prevailed in 1912 instead of the two-thirds rule, Champ Clark would have been elected. He had an easy majority when Bryan tipped over the apple cart. The weak part of the Republican body is the Southern contingent, which figures as big in ratio as any other section, but amounts to nothing on election day. The dominating faction of the Democratic convention comes from the South, which is so thoroughly in accord as to have gained the appellation, "Solid South." Therein it is of a very different composition from the North, which is never solid on anything.

Looks Like McAdoo

Signs multiply to the effect that the Democratic choice would be William G. McAdoo—if he would accept, and there are many here who believe he will be induced to reconsider his announced decision not to permit his name to go before the convention. Others who are talked of are Governor Cox of Ohio, Governor Edwards of New Jersey, Senator Owen of Oklahoma, Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, Attorney-General Palmer, Vice President Marshall and of course William Jennings Bryan. The President, shattered though he and his administration may be, it is believed will have much to say regarding the doings of the convention. He is likely to dictate the nominee. Whence it is the natural conclusion that McAdoo would have a big advantage. His partisans point out that as the first director of railroads when the government took over the lines he raised every employee's wages and granted all the demands. If any allusion is made to the mess that was left when the government relinquished control it is held that this will not offset the advantage likely to be realized from the easy complaisance when McAdoo was director. That the deluge came after he relinquished the reins will make no difference with the large contingent of railroad workers, it is confidently affirmed. One other thing the McAdoo supporters call attention to is that he is not talking for publication. He is ubiquitous, but not loquacious, and they cite the fact that the man in the spotlight who is sparing of his words plagues the public interest and gains its attention. In proof of which they point to Colonel House.

Democratic Platform

The outstanding issue in the Democratic platform will of course be the League of Nations pact, as negotiated by the President. That is to be the pole around which the campaign is to revolve. The South is opposed to woman suffrage and in favor of prohibition. There is likely to be a contingent which will see a chance to do politics in saying something to mollify the ladies who desire to vote, and another which will favor action that will appeal to the man with a thirst and the other man who was wont to make a business of assuaging it. But the soft pedal is likely to be put on both. What will probably happen is a treatment of these issues that will leave plenty of room for inference. The faithful will be expected to read between the lines. Obviously nothing direct, or at least appealing, can be said concerning the Mexican situation. The Mexican situation results from the country's Mexican policy of the past seven years. It is not expected that a radical position will be taken on any economic question, and the questions that might be covered by the word "Americanism" are likely to be left more or less for campaign orators to treat. On the whole, there is a great opportunity for adroit exercise of the art of not saying it, yet meaning it, which it is admitted Democrats are more adept in than Republicans.

Rather Interesting Case

Justice Waste of the Appellate Court, First Division, has rendered a decision that is interesting, especially to laymen. A 10-year-old boy went to the circus. Of course, he was interested in the animals. The cages were roped off, as they always are, to keep the curious and more venturesome out of reaching distance of the animals' claws. But this boy crawled under the ropes to get a more intimate view, and while getting it was clawed in the face by a leopard. An action for damages was resisted on the ground that the boy willfully and knowingly placed himself within reach of the animal, and that his injuries were not the result of negligence on the part of the defendant. The superior court gave judgment for the defense, which was appealed from, and the Appellate Court sustained the court below. Justice Waste in his opinion said: "Just how far to apply the rule of accountability to a bright 10-year-old boy at a circus, with the allurements and excitement attendant thereupon, and keeping in mind the propensity to curiosity every normal boy possesses, was no doubt a matter of grave concern to the trial court, as it has been to us. The court below, having before it all the facts and witnesses in the case, and particularly having an opportunity to hear the testimony, observe the actions and determine the intelligence of the injured boy, has determined and announced its conclusion, which we do not feel we may properly reject."

Mexico's Financial Plight

The debt of the Mexican government in 1913 was $221,773,000, and it must have been largely placed when money was cheap, as some of it bears interest at the rate of 5 per cent. From that it ranges up to 5. No interest has been paid, however, in seven years, and the obligation must have increased at least a half. An American engaged in the banking business there is now here, and gives first-hand information as to conditions in that country. Mexico is utterly prostrate. Its rehabilitation calls for capital. The European countries upon which it has relied themselves are in need of help. That Mexico has paid no interest for seven years on account of the prevailing chaos, and no assurance being possible as yet that the chaos has been allayed, places her at an enormous disadvantage as a borrower. The great problem of those who essay to right the country is to devise means to assure capital that investment there is safe. The first step will be to subdue brigandage, such as that for which Villa is responsible, and after that financing of a high order will be necessary to bring the country out of its dismal pit.

Mexican Visitors

There has been a notable increase in the number of upper strata Mexican visitors within the last few weeks, and they have contributed somewhat to our city's social life, especially around hotels. While not admitted by them, it is the opinion of some of their hosts that the recent revolution has much to do with their presence, which idea would seem to be sustained in the fact that the predominance of the gentler sex is pronounced. It may be readily imagined that the fathers, husbands and brothers in that "most distressful country" are permitting no chances to be taken by their female members, though taking every chance themselves, feeling obliged to remain to protect their homes, business and property from bandits and marauders who always take advantage of unsettled conditions to pose (and loot as "patriots." A better idea of the better class of Mexicans is thus being obtained. In some respects the situation affords object lessons in punctilious behavior, especially in the junior members, who are not at all given to those restless and skylarking proclivities that are rather characteristic of some domestic youngsters.

San Francisco's Russian Population

There are some 8000 Russians in San Francisco and the bay region, and there is a considerable controversy among them as to whether the czar is still alive. Factions have formed and even bitterness is manifest when the matter comes up, as it frequently does, for they are intense nationalists, and are tenacious of the institutions under which they were bred. The forces that now have Russia by the throat are understood to be of the small organized minority. The large majority would still do obeisance to a czar, but seem to lack the force to organize and assert themselves. The controversy over Czar Nicholas was started by the report that the man who gave currency to the story that he had been murdered by Red guards was never within miles of the place where the tragedy is said to have occurred. That story is supplemented by another to the effect that he has been smuggled off to Manchuria and is held there. Those who accept the generally credited story—that he and all the royal family were put to death by the savage guards—are looked upon as lacking in loyalty and patriotism. It is considered the thing by the faction that believes in the czar's survival to stick to it despite all reports to the contrary.

Protection to Shipping

The restoration of one of the fireboats which had been maintained to protect the shipping on the waterfront, but was laid off some months ago, was probably due to a fire that occurred last month aboard a vessel loaded with 30,000 cans of kerosene and lubricating oils. It is considered a miracle that the fire did not reach the oils and cause an explosion, which might have resulted in a disastrous conflagration along the waterfront. The fire was first discovered at 10 a. m. and it was 4 p. m. before it was extinguished, the vessel being towed to the Alameda thence in the meantime. Long ago the State Board of Harbor Commissioners stood half the expense of maintaining fire boats. For some reason this support was discontinued. Some time last year the crews struck for eight hours, which would have necessitated organizing three crews to a vessel, as the watches were of twelve hours. The resumption of one boat will entail a cost of $65,000 a year, and of both $95,000. The Chamber of Commerce is taking a hand and the crews have receded from their demand for eight hours and have agreed to stand twelve-hour watches. The legislature will be appealed to at its next session, and the city will do its share, though the feeling in municipal circles is that it should not be called on to shoulder the whole burden.

The Gas Question

A wail long and strong and resounding has gone up from automobilists over the proposal to limit the supply of gasoline which may be sold for pleasure cars. Another is heard from hotel managers, who represent that the mere rumor of such limitation has resulted in the cancellation of accommodations by foreign visitors, who had intended to tour California during the coming months. The question has already arisen as to what, in fact, a pleasure car is. Is it one that is being used exclusively for pleasure, or one that may be so used? If gasoline should be sold for utility machines exclusively it is argued that California's magnificent system of highways, upon which has been spent so many millions of public funds, and which millions more are being and to be spent, would be traversed too exclusively by trucks and tractors, which was not at all the idea that prevailed when the people of California so wholeheartedly supported the good roads movement. However, there is a probability that this trouble is like most of those which people worry over—it will never arrive. As a matter of fact, those who return from tours report that there is no appreciable difference from other times in procuring gas.

Real Estate Market

A noticeable check in the buoyancy of the real estate market during the past week is reported by those in close touch with affairs in that realm. They attribute it in part to the action of the Federal Reserve Board in directing the banks to reduce their loans 10 per cent. and in part—and this is a very considerable part—to the outcry against what is designated as "rent profiteering." It is an entirely natural result that capital will not seek investment, especially at the present cost of building, when it is to be limited by public outcry, soon to crystallize into laws in all probability, in realizing a commensurate return. This applies to all building, but particularly to apartment and residence building. The tenant has the landlord at a great disadvantage. Profiteering has been charged in many lines of business; but the profiteer is not as certainly come up with anywhere else as in the landlord class. Some owners of real estate, and others who were considering investment in new buildings—very much needed, indeed—are holding plans in abeyance because of this situation.

Wilbur's Position Fortified

The orgy at a college fraternity club house in Berkeley that has attracted so much attention and invoked such considerable comment directs attention to an action of President Wilbur of Stanford some months ago, aimed at college fraternities and sororities. He considered that they are dominating undergraduate life and interfering with the objects for which universities are maintained. At Stanford many of the fraternities have built club houses on university premises, and according to President Wilbur's plan, these are to be taken over and paid for by the university. A great hue and cry was raised against this onslaught. A considerable number of the university trustees are alumni, and it was proposed to enlist these in opposition to the Wilbur plan. The disclosures at Berkeley are likely to strengthen Wilbur's position, however, and make it difficult for a college trustee to come out in open opposition to at least some action that will check what appears to be a growing tendency in college life.

There are understood to be some twenty fraternities at Stanford, and half as many sororities. Probably this number is exceeded at Berkeley, which serves to show the extent of college organizations.

Annette Adams' "Promotion"

Now, I will not vouch unreservedly for this, but it is such an interesting rumor that I feel warranted in rescuing it from its tenuous realm and giving it a place in print. Considerable has been said about the recent promotion of United States Attorney Annette Adams to an Assistant Attorney-Generalship, and the resultant transference of her activities to Washington. The sub rosa story is that it isn't a "promotion" at all. There are a large number of liquor violation cases in the Federal courts, which the District Attorney must prosecute. It is considered desirable in administration circles to enter into some sort of a gentlemen's agreement concerning them. Mrs. Adams, being a lady, has an imperfect appreciation of gentlemen's agreements. It is understood either that she has manifested a disinclination to further such a pact, or that there is a fear to approach her on the subject; and so the plan was followed of getting her up higher. Considering the brief time this administration is to remain in power, and the fact that an appointee transferred to Washington will hardly get settled to the duties of the new position, and considering further, that Mrs. Adams was filling the somewhat particular office of federal attorney here with signal success, the rumor has certain elements of plausibility.

The Status of Statuary

The municipal predilection for statuary, in James Lick's time most pronounced, is on the wane. The agitation recently mentioned by The Knave to remove the Donahue fountain from Market street has disclosed the fact that none of the municipal departments naturally looked to in such an emergency is at all enthusiastic about receiving it. The Park Commissioners are of the opinion that already they have too many statues. They contend that the statuary that has found place in parks and squares tend to give them too much the appearance of cemeteries—of a sleeping place for the dead rather than an outing place for the living. When it was proposed a few years ago to set apart a "statue zone" in Golden Gate Park it was rejected for the reason that such a zone would intensify the mausoleum feature. However, the idea of parks as sites for statues persists, as this suggestion to gather them off the streets and out of the niches tends to show. Also as another suggestion, to put statues in the national parks, tends to corroborate. As California has a goodly area of national parks, the steady production could thus be taken care of for some time to come.

California's Writers

"Literary California," recently from the press and compiled by Ella Sterling Mighels, is most readable to those who are interested in the stores of literature produced in California, inspired by its stirring episodes and commanding scenery. It is a sort of continuation of the same author's "Story of the Files," which supplies a want that no other compilation does. Few Californians of the present day, perhaps, absorbed in their affairs, realize how much has been contributed by Californians to the world-wealth of literature. They may have an appreciation of the high lights—of the Mark Twains and Bret Hartes—but they are likely to be oblivious of the many who wrote well and were recognized in their day as having been truly representative of the California guild. Besides the value of this book as an anthology, it has great value in its photographs of many of the writers of the past, some of whom may have been partly forgotten and whose memories are thus recalled. Like wine, the value of such a work increases with age, as "The Story of the Files" has.

Newest Gold Discovery

The newest gold discoveries have not provoked a "rush," though they are said to be richer than those which caused the hegira to Dawson and Nome. One cause of this may be the indifferent estate in which gold finds itself. While everything else has enjoyed a boost in price, gold has remained as it was, and in consequence of the high costs, gold mining, in some instances, has ceased to pay. A reason why the new discoveries have not resulted in the usual stampede of those who would make their fortunes quick may be that they are located in Siberia. The name of the new district is Auadir, and it is 120 miles from Nome, almost directly across Behring's Strait at the point where it is less than thirty miles in width. Siberia just at this time is a doubtful land to venture into, though such considerations never yet deterred a goldfield rush. The lure has tempted men to brave everything. It is a good deal to say that the days of the mining rush are over. That was thought to be the case for years before the Dawson discoveries, and was disproven again in the Goldfield and Tonopah excitements. Given normal times and the excitements that have characterized every period of discovery on the Pacific Coast will be repeated.

POLICEMAN WEDS
GIRL HE RESCUED
IN RUNAWAY CAR

A romance that had its inception when Sergeant J. L. Davis of the Piedmont police department rescued Miss Pauline Sampson from a runaway automobile four months ago led to the altar of the Plymouth Congregational church Friday night, when the Rev. Charles L. Kloss officiated at the marriage of the couple.

Sergeant Davis, according to the story told for the first time yesterday, rescued his bride one evening when off duty in Oakland. Mrs. Davis, then Miss Sampson, was seated in the rear seat of an automobile that was parked on the side of a hill. The car started to coast down hill with no one at the steering wheel.

FILM FEAT DULCATED
Coming along on his motorcycle, Davis saw the girl's predicament and sped up, driving alongside of the wildly racing automobile. Leaping from the motorcycle he jumped on the running board and set the emergency brake on the car.

He had no sooner done this than he lost his footing on the running board and fell beneath the machine. He suffered a fractured leg.

With the brake set, the car quickly stopped and what might have been a serious accident was prevented. Miss Sampson's friends arrived and Davis was taken to a local hospital.

BROTHER IS ATTENDANT
During the three weeks which it took Davis to recover, Miss Sampson frequently visited her rescuer and their romance developed.

At the wedding ceremony Oscar F. Davis, a brother of the bridegroom, also a member of the police department, was best man and Miss Florence Sampson, a sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. The Sampson sisters came here from Long Island, New York, less than five months ago.

The couple will pass a brief honeymoon at their summer cottage at Santa Cruz. They will enjoy a second sojourn there later in the summer, when Sergeant Davis will take his annual vacation.

Dr. Aurelia Reinhardt Talks to Little Tots In Home Of Playmate

Agnes Colvin, 8 years old, gave a luncheon party at 1 o'clock yesterday to Mrs. Abbie Valley, principal, and to the twenty pupils of Beulah school.

Dr. Aurelia Reinhardt, president of Mills College, made an address to the youngsters.

"There is nothing so innocent and beautiful as the heart of a child," said Dr. Reinhardt as she looked into the upturned faces of the tots gathered around the table. She then spoke of the necessity for building character step by step and of living unselfishly.

The luncheon was given by Miss Barton Farren.

SCOUT CAMP TO HOUSE 105 BOYS

At least 105 Oakland boy scouts tomorrow will go to Diamond Canyon, where their annual encampments are to be held this year. A corps of volunteer workers from the carpenter's union are at work completing the mess hall, which they commenced one week ago, after volunteering to do the work when it appeared that the encampment might not be held because there were not sufficient funds for the hall.

H. J. Bemis, scout executive, in charge of the camp, says he expects this year to set a record, and that during the remaining part of this month and in July he thinks 200 boys will participate in the drill and frolic.

For the past few days the boys have been busy during spare moments assisting the Chamber of Commerce in its membership drive by distributing the "Keep the O. K. in Oakland" stickers.

"Y" Official Heads Social Workers

A luncheon and meeting of the social workers section of Alameda County Union of Social Agencies was held yesterday at Mosswood Park.

Miss Alice Brookman of the Y. W. C. A. was elected chairman of the section. Forty members were present.

J. H. Nash outlined the plans for the Oakland Recreation Camp near the Yosemite. A resolution was adopted expressing regret that Miss Jeanette Shafer is severing her connection with the Berkeley Charity Organization Society.

BEAUTY MARRED
BY SCAR, ACTOR
WANTS $27,372

LOS ANGELES, June 19.—A scar on the forehead bids fair to blight the career of Herbert Standing, motion picture actor, so he alleged in a $27,372 damage suit filed in the Superior Court against the Los Angeles Railway. He blames the railroad for the scar.

Standing alleges that he was Fifth and Spring streets on May 2, and when he came out of the hospital two weeks later, in addition to having a fractured arm, he had this ugly scar in the middle of his forehead.

His face is his pocketbook, he alleges, and the scar has reduced his earning capacity. The complaint was filed through Attorney P. H. Moore.

Oakland to Run Electric Snake
Reptile to Be Made of Junk, Juice
Will Exhibit Betrayer of Eve

Oakland is to have the only electrically-operated rattlesnake in the world.

Re—that is his electrical anatomy—is now under construction.

When completed he will be exhibited at the Oakland Public Museum, Fourteenth and Oak streets.

The part of Mr. Snake that is much alive—he is in a cage in the workshop of the museum, where he is showing his pep by constantly rattling his rattles almost continuously while the museum staff is at work.

More than that—besides being the only electrically operated snake in the world, this snake is going to be used in the development of a new method of snake taxidermy which is being tried by John Rowley, curator of the museum.

The new taxidermic stunt consists in giving the snake a "shot of hop" to make him drowsy.

While in this condition the snake is laid on a rock and his body coiled in the position that he is to have when mounted.

While the snake enjoys his hashish dream, Rowley pours a bowl of plaster-of-paris over him and allows it to set. A mold of the shape of the living snake is thus secured.

The mold thus secured is taken by Rowley and used to cast a replica of the snake of papier-mache. When this is complete, the snake is killed. His skin is cured and scraped and recolorized with dyes which will not fade, and the skin glued to the papier-mache.

The method of making a plaster cast of a living snake has just been worked out by Rowley.

"We were never able to get the correct curves in a model made from a dead snake for the reason that the body will not hold its shape and cannot be posed properly," Rowley says.

RATTLE OUT OF JUNK
Edward Salsbach, assistant in the city electrical department, is at work in his spare time with some bits of wire, an old electrical device, the rattles from an old rattlesnake and other miscellaneous junk. He is rigging a device which will fit inside the rubber tube of Mr. Snake's inflatable tail.

When the button is pressed—there always is a button somewhere when the thing is electric—the tail will rise right angrily from the ground and the rattles will begin to rattle viciously.

The completed twentieth-century betrayer of Eve will be mounted in an exhibit case with a background of brush and twigs and used to show the city's school-children what a rattlesnake's rattle is like.

"And when we get the snake finished," says Fred Shaw, "we are going to make an electrically-operated goat that will yawn and look cross-eyed at you. That is, when you press the button, of course."

RED CROSS SHOP
SUPPORT SOUGHT

BERKELEY, June 19.—Efficient and immediate community service through the medium of the Red Cross shop is being urged by directors of the Berkeley chapter of the American Red Cross.

Despite the summer vacation period, business is reported as fairly active in the establishment at Oxford street and Allston Way, and the closing weeks of the June reduction sale promise to be successful, according to those in charge.

"There is a widespread, and, we feel, unanimous support of the undertakings maintained by the Berkeley Red Cross," said a director this morning. "We wish it to be equally well understood that the Red Cross shop is the sole financial support of the chapter, aside from the comparatively small amounts realized from the dollar membership dues."

"The size of the Red Cross program may be understood when one realizes that the Berkeley chapter is doing many important things for the younger generation."

WOMEN WILL SEW TO AID CITY'S NEEDY

ALAMEDA, June 19.—A work room where clothes, donated to the city's needy, may be repaired, has been established by the Social Service Commission. The workroom, which is now in the process of being fitted up, is above the garage of the city hall. The Social Service Commission hopes that within the next few months many Alameda women will find it possible to give an hour or two weekly to the repair of the many garments which are donated.

The Social Service Commission is also considering the opening of a day nursery at McKinley Park, where children of mothers who are employed, will be given supervised care during the day. Miss Zdenka Euker, social agent, will make a survey of homes next week in order to determine the immediate need of the institution.

TOOL BURGLAR JAILED; ADMITS MANY THEFTS

Believed by the police to be the tool burglar who for two weeks has consistently raided buildings under construction and carried away tools valued at hundreds of dollars, Harry Edwards, who confesses that he is a thief, was arrested yesterday in a second-hand store at 451 Eleventh street.

Inspectors Harry Orrell and John Mulhern have been trailing the tool burglar for several days, and had traced him to the store on Seventh street, which is owned by Fred Hicks.

Hicks gave the police a description of the man who had disposed of a quantity of tools which the police identified as the tools stolen from various places in Oakland and San Francisco.

Little Performers Corner Sunshine For Other Children at Party

World, listen! They did it again—cornered the sunshine on the roof of The TRIBUNE house! Just another one of those parties which the kiddies of the Aunt Elsie club give themselves and their group up pals, mothers and other comforts. Just a party. BUT—

There never was anything just like these parties since we used to have "shows" in the barn. Did YOU used to have shows, world? I did, and nothing, not nuthin' ever since has had the feeling those shows had. We didn't have much in the way of costumes, only rag bag stuff. And you couldn't say the admittance fee was anything special in the way of a graft—two pines or a piece of gum or any old thing you happened to have in your pocket. And I can't remember that the program themselves would have made Belasco sit up and take notice. But Oh! World—the PEPPIING YOU HAD! The feeling that everything in life was right—right—that every person you met had a gay secret, too, had and would make the most wonderful sort of a friend—the feeling that common days were wrapped in twinkle dust and all life was a pirate cruise.

ENJOYMENT IS KEEN. You can't buy that feeling nowadays, World. Sometimes you think that the act is all there's left to the memory of it. But listen—you can find it all over again. "Honest, Injun—hope to choke" if you can't. For THAT'S the feeling they have at these Aunt Elsie club parties which the kiddies have up on The TRIBUNE roof.

The were some new performers this time, some so tiny their bobby girls were almost tangled with their dimpled toes—some pretty nearly to high school dignity. And one and all THEY WERE A RIOT WITH THE OTHER KIDDIES. The boys lined up in a solid wall of grinning, giggling appreciation—the girls surged like a flower garden of delight—and the mothers, bless 'em, just BEAMED.

What they did: Florrie May Tyrell, song and dance; Marjorie Stebbins, piano solos; Lloyd Kramer, piano solos. And how they could play, these two. June Honey-Lesser, song and dance. The sound like a choir of a small girl but June's about as big as a bunny rabbit's giggle—and just as merry. Margaret Marten, dances. Lovely! How they watched her! Ruth Stone, solo. A new voice and such a welcome one. Shirley Ives, dance. Half a dozen inches of dimpled bounce and EYES and a smile. Rania McVicker, song. With Claude accompanying her. Another new was one and a delight. Bernice Claire Janhingen, OUR Bernice, as fine as ever, and there's nothing finer. William Ayers, police officer. Nothing for it in the future but a traffic cop job. William, Calla Maque, songs. She sang her way into our hearts some time ago, and this made her all the more at home. Community singing.

'TYPO TELEGRAPH' COPIES MESSAGES

CINCINNATI, Ohio, June 19.—An invention in telegraph instruments which transmits and receives press messages through the operation of a machine similar to a typewriter was officially demonstrated between this city and Baltimore, Md., at the Baltimore & Ohio railroad offices in the Central Union Railway Station here recently. The instrument is the invention of Dr. L. M. Potts, of Baltimore, Md.

A message written with the instrument is transcribed on a similar machine at the other end of the line. It can be connected through the same wires from which the key and sounder have been taken.

The device has been used with particular and gratifying success on press and commercial telegraph business. It is said and next will be tried out on stock market business. It does away with the receiver operators' knowledge of alphabetic codes. All that is required of the operator is ability to manipulate an ordinary typewriter keyboard. The official Baltimore-Cincinnati experiment was on a wire distance of more than 600 miles, the longest ever attempted with the invention. The trial is said to have been exceedingly successful.

Should Judith have told?

Q Perhaps not, but—
Q Listen!
Q It was a wonderful night in June—a moonlit and honeysuckle night!
Q It was a night for love!
Q Miss Judith Baldwin knew it. She was a regular girl—a very fine girl—of Washington, D. C., and she knew just a little of moonlight and—love.
Q Three fine men loved "Miss Judith"—daughter of U. S. Senator Baldwin.
Q They all seemed like real men.
Q They all proposed—and all were put off.
Q Which should Miss Judith accept?
Q One was a Congressman.
Q One was a blue-blooded languid clubman.
Q One was "Tod," the young ranch foreman—her father's foreman—from Arizona.
Q They all proposed. Which should Judith accept, on a moonlit and honeysuckle night?
Q "Let's test 'em," quoth Judith, to herself.
Q The test came.
Q To each Miss Judith told a tale of an earlier—ah—indiscretion—a mishap—piece of a blot—a stain—ah—girls will be girls, quoth she.
Q What do you think happened?
Q How did the men act?
Q What did the clubman do?
Q What did the Congressman say?
Q What did Judith's "paw"—Senator Baldwin do—and say?
Q What did "Tod," the young ranch foreman do, and say?
Q What did "Mrs. Langley," a brilliant, cynical Washington widow, who was angling for Judith's rich "pa"—what did she do?
Q What did "Aunt Hallie"—the sweet old maid aunt of Miss Judith, do and say?
Q What did "Old Jefferson," the ancient colored servitor, do and say?
Q Which man finally won the dainty Judith?
Q And what happened in between?
Q Well, what happened is all in "Moonlight and Honeysuckle" and that's the most delicious comedy of romance that Henry Miller ever staged—or that Ruth Chatterton ever starred in. Need we say any more?

Librarians Urge Books for Blind Many New Activities Planned

Enlarged activities for the American Library Association were agreed on at the annual convention of the association at Colorado Springs, from which Librarian Charles S. Green has just returned. The program covers activities for three years and budgets the expenditure of a $2,000,000 fund raised by popular subscriptions during the past year. An important feature of the association's plans is the extensive publication of the Braille raised type books for the blind by subsidizing private publishing houses and directly through the association's own agencies. "There are at present only about 130 titles in this type," the revised program states, "of which 94 are for adult readers. Of this the American Library Association has brailled 36." Other activities which will be undertaken by the library association cover the establishment of a co-operative information service on library methods, work with the foreign born citizens, library publicity, the establishment of special libraries in large industrial plants, and the maintenance of a European bureau of the association in Paris for the interchange of information between American and European libraries. Other local librarians who attended the convention are: Carl Joekel of Berkeley; Lillian Durt, librarian of the Pacific Unitarian school at

Sinn Fein Teaches Hatred of England

DUBLIN, June 19.—A story printed by the London Globe declares that the Sinn Fein's educational campaign in Ireland is directed toward creating an absolute separatist public within ten years. The Globe says that not only in the Irish schools, but in all Irish homes Protestant included, the principles of hatred of England are inculcated. Domestic servants throughout Ireland are being drawn from southern Ireland. The servants are Sinn Fein propagandists and children of parents entirely loyal to England are often heard uttering the most terrible threats against England. It is said. Berkeley; Edith M. Coulter, reference librarian; and Rosamond Parma, law librarian of the State University.

Dempsey Won't Be Satisfied Until Carpentier Signs Fight Articles

The pictures show exactly how the fighters feel about it. Jack Dempsey is seen during Georges Carpentier to fight him, while Carpentier's expression needs no explanation. Georges has reaped a fortune in this country and is going to sail for France July 10.

Georges might well be saying to himself when the picture was taken, "Why should I fight this big, rough American when the American people make me rich without fighting?"

The picture of Dempsey was made by a TRIBUNE staff photographer at the champion's Lakeside home Thursday

CARPENTIER WILL SAIL FOR HOME JULY 10

By BOB SHAND

Georges Carpentier is due to sail for France July 10, but before he climbs up the gang plank Jack Kearns is going to have an interview with him. Dempsey is not going to sit meekly by and let Georges get away with a meaningless challenge. He is going to hit the Frenchman down to brass tacks; it is going to be fight or keep quiet. Kearns knows that if Carpentier comes to terms without signing articles which call for a fight with Dempsey, the thing will be a disgrace to the sport.

"Dempsey and I are going after the money now and if Carpentier is bluffing we will get other matches," said Kearns. "We are certainly not going to permit him to satisfy a

SPORTING GOULASH

By Bob Shand

"Don't Ayres, being a veterinary surgeon, would be a mighty handy man around the Oakland club, who would take care of all the charity horses."

Of course, since Ayres shut out Philadelphia and Boston, he is going to be shipped here at once. Detroit fans have a wonderful pitching staff, it can afford to lose Ayres.

Yes, just like the Bears could dispense with a star offensive line.

If Savin and Hughes Jennings are tired of life they could send Ayres here at once. Detroit fans would attend to the final rites.

Just before departing for Portland Harold Alcorn Fitzgerald Brown predicted that the Oakland club would win the Pacific Coast championship.

Go buy a basket of raspberries and see if that isn't what you got.

Our best friend slipped a burglar 40 cents per basket, which goes to prove that the fellows are charging the berries more for their support, and that it takes $15-a-day measurables to pick 'em.

However, they present you with a cute little rule book which says that the berries are to be eaten in the center, and it holds just as much upside down as downside up.

"The Bourbons are coming, hooray, hooray, and they might as well sing 'The canals are coming' those days."

The Trinity river is great now and returning anglers tell glowing tales of the size and quantities of trout that are caught in that stream.

The Garcia river is affording wonderful fishing now and though the fish do not run large they are plentiful.

Alameda Beths Win From Constructors In One-Sided Game

The Alameda Beths have tightened their hold on first place in the Shipbuilders' Athletic League by handing the Union Construction team a 12 to 2 trouncing at Lincoln Park in Alameda. J. Hefey and Anderson, the Alameda Constructor pitchers, were untroubled for sixteen hits and ten errors were made behind them.

Thompson at third made six of them and Tait at short made four. Beths played errorless ball. Shuey was the hitting star for the winners with a triple and two singles. Simpson held the Constructors to eight hits, three of them going to McEthan. The score: BETHS 12, UNION 2.

BETHS: Hefey, 1; Anderson, 1; Thompson, 2; Tait, 2; Simpson, 1; Shuey, 1; McEthan, 1. UNION: Hefey, 1; Anderson, 1; Thompson, 1; Tait, 1; Simpson, 1; Shuey, 1; McEthan, 1.

Waconia Wins Feature Course At Emeryville

A large crowd witnessed yesterday's dog racing at Emeryville. The feature race was a close contest and was won by Waconia in a fierce drive from Snookum. The hurdle race was a thriller. Smoky B. N. led to the last jump where he hit the hurdle, letting Blanche win in a most spectacular race of the meeting. The results:

First Race, 3-16 mile—Napa Nee, first; Mission Maid, second; Uncle Hiram, third. Royal Gold and Oakland also ran. Time, 2:13.5.

Second Race, 3-16 mile—Black Jack, first; Montana Boy, second; McKenna, third.

SWING HIGH! SWING LOW! SING HO! SING HO! THEN LOOK WHERE THE PIP AND SKEE DID GO! OFF TO THE LAND OF BY-LO-LO!

Text by HOWARD R. GARIS
Author of the Famous UNCLE WIGGILY BEDTIME STORIES

One day, when the bees were humming in the clover and the wind blew through the branches of the apples-trees in the orchard, Sammie and Susie Littletail, the two rabbit children, started to make a swing. "What shall we use for a rope?" asked Susie. "I'll get some twisted honeysuckle vines," answered Sammie. "And we'll fasten the vines to the limb of the apple tree." Sammie and Susie tried, but they were not tall enough to reach up and fasten the vine rope to the tree to make a swing. "Uncle Wiggily will help us," said Susie.

Uncle Wiggily Longears, the nice rabbit gentleman, came along as Sammie and Susie were trying to make a swing. "I'll help you," said the bunny. "You want a rope made of a wild grape vine, not honeysuckle, which is not strong enough. And you need a ladder to climb up the tree." Uncle Wiggily made a ladder from some branches, and he twisted a grape vine rope. Then he started to climb up the ladder to make the swing. Along came the goat children, and, if you look closely, you'll see the Pip and Skee.

Uncle Wiggily climbed up the ladder and straddled the limb of the apple tree as if he were riding a horse. He fastened one end of the grape vine rope to the branch to make a swing. "May we have some swings in it?" asked Jackie and Peetie Bow Wow, who came along to see what was going on. "Oh, yes," promised Sammie Littletail. The Pipsisewah and Skeezecks, bad chaps that they were, sneaked up closer. "What shall we do?" asked the Pip of the Skee. "Let's grab the ladder and run," answered the Skee. "He can't get down!"

All of a sudden, as Uncle Wiggily had one end of the grape vine rope fastened to the tree branch, out rushed the Pip and Skee and grabbed the ladder. "Here! Stop that! Don't take my ladder away, if you please!" cried Uncle Wiggily. "Well, we don't please, and we're going to take the ladder!" howled the Skee. "And we'll wait until you fall down and then we'll get some souse off your ears," added the Pipsisewah. "Oh, dear!" cried all the animal children. "How can we save Uncle Wiggily? This is terrible!"

All at once, when Uncle Wiggily was thinking of jumping down, and maybe bumping his pink, twinkling nose, for all I can tell, along came Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, the muskrat lady housekeeper. "Here, children!" she cried. "Take off my apron and hold it under Uncle Wiggily to catch him if he falls." So they did this. "Now, Uncle Wiggily," said Nurse Jane, "pull up, and fasten on the limb, the other end of the vine rope. I'll hold this lower end, then you can slide down like a fireman. Quick, before the Pip and Skee come back!"

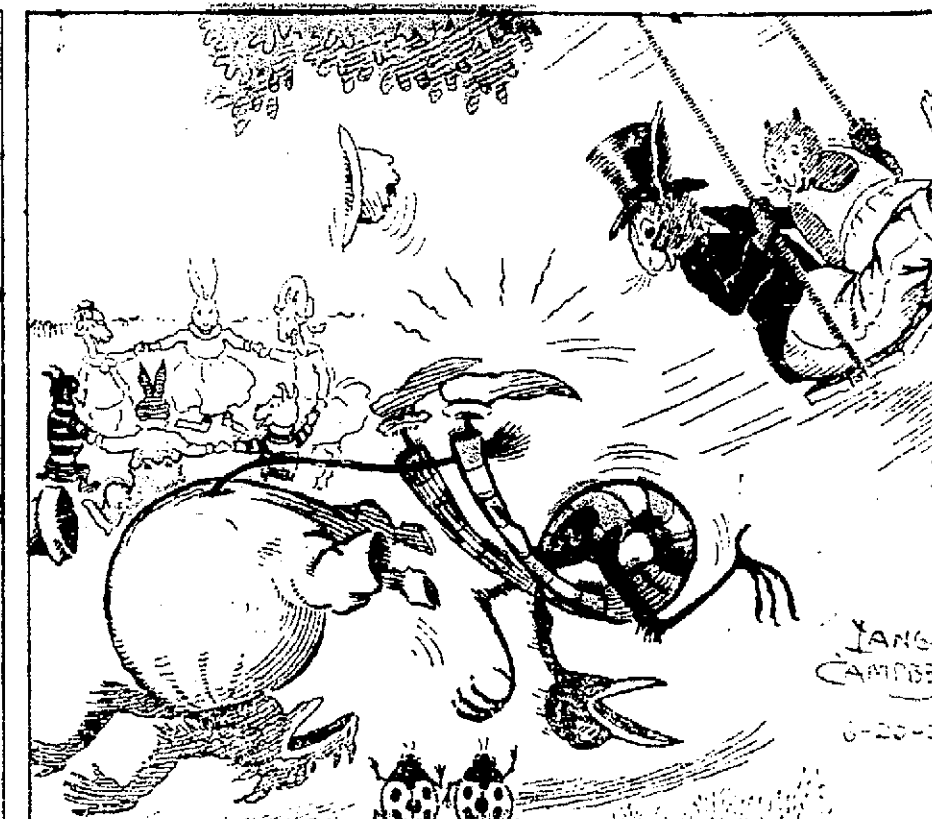

After he had finished making the grape swing, having seen to it that the knots were tightly fastened, Uncle Wiggily began to slide down one side of the vine rope. Jackie and Peetie Bow Wow gnawed a swing board out of a piece of wood and put it on the lower end of the vine. "It's a good thing you happened to come along, Nurse Jane, or we never would have known how to get Uncle Wiggily down," said Susie Littletail. "Now we can all have a nice swing." The old Pip and Skee, having taken away the ladder, came sneaking back.

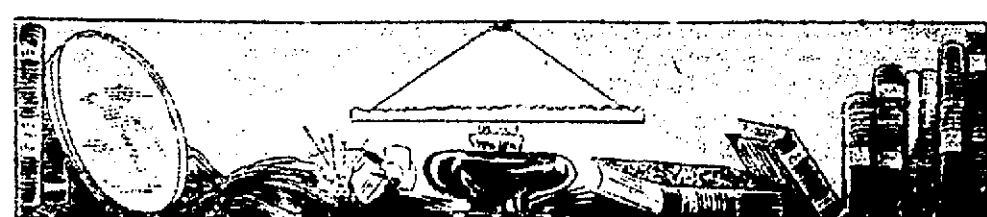

"Sammie and Susie must have the first swing," as they started first to make it," said Uncle Wiggily when he was safely down. So Sammie and Susie sat on the swing board, and Jackie and Peetie pushed them. Nannie and Billie Wagtail waited for their turn, and the bunny and Nurse Jane felt glad to see the animal children so happy. "Now is our chance to get him!" said the Pip to the Skee, as they hid behind a bush. "He has his back toward us. Let's rush up and get his souse." The Squiggle Bugs ran to tell Uncle Wiggily his danger.

After Sammie and Susie had had their turn at swinging, Jackie, the puppy dog, said: "Let's give Uncle Wiggily and Nurse Jane a swing next." The animal children thought this would be fine. So, before the Pip and Skee had a chance to jump out and grab the bunny gentleman's souse, Uncle Wiggily and Nurse Jane were in the swing, and had been given a long, hard, high push by their little friends. As they swung downward, up rushed the Pip and Skee. "We want souse!" howled the bad chaps. "We'll stick out our paws!" said the bunny.

"We want souse! We want souse!" the Pip and Skee kept on shouting, as they rushed at Uncle Wiggily and Nurse Jane in the swing. "Oh, you do, eh?" asked the bunny gentleman. Then, all of a sudden, he and the muskrat lady hit the bad chaps right in the middle with their stuckout paws. And the Pip and Skee were knocked over sideways and in a back and front peppercorn and somersault and they didn't get Uncle Wiggily's souse at all; nor Nurse Jane's, either. And the animal children danced ring-around-rosey.
